

Animal shelter raises $5,750

The recent book sale and auction in Roanoke raised $5,749.50 for the Randolph County Animal Shelter.

“The Randolph County Animal Shelter would like to take this opportunity to thank all our friends that participated in making our book sale and auction so successful,” said Chuck Smith, president of the RCAS board. “Our volunteers do an outstanding job shelving all the books that are donated by all the animal lovers of Randolph County and without them we would not be so successful.

“Special thanks to Chris Mitchum again for allowing us into his historic and beautiful warehouse.”

The auction and petting zoo were a great success thanks to all the effort put forth by Daniel Hall of Flaming H. Farms in Graham and his friend Bill Segrest, who took such good care of the animals.

Children and adults enjoyed seeing and feeding the beautiful animals especially the llama, Smith said.

“We will be opening our doors again for another book sale at the warehouse on Saturday, June 1, to participate in The Summer on Main Festivities in Roanoke,” he said.

Books can be left at the warehouse or the shelter anytime before June 1.
