Amy Carmichael

God hold us to that which drew us first, when the Cross was the attraction, and we wanted nothing else.

Born: December 1867 Millisle, County Down, Ireland

Carmichael was a Protestant Christian missionary and author in India for 55 years. Known for her beliefs that "missionary life is simply a chance to die." Her dedication to her religious beliefs inspired many other individuals to go into missions. While in India she opened an orphanage and founded a mission in Dohnavur, as well as authoring numerous books about her missionary experiences. Some of the titles are; Things as they are; mission work in southern India, Gold Cord - Christian Literature Crusade, Though the Mountains Shake, Candles in the Dark and Rose from Brier. Many of her works are still available today.
