

Casey Flat Ranch

5,250± acres in Guinda, California

Vineyard Cattle Recreation

For Sale offered at $10,500,000

Casey Flat Ranch is one of Northern California's hidden gems located in the mountains along the west side of the Capay Valley above the small hamlet of Guinda in Yolo County. Within its boundaries are wonderful surprises with one of kind views of the Capay Valley along with views of the west side of the Sacramento Valley. Then from its highest reaches there is a peek at Lake Berryessa as well.

Starting from the valley floor with a hay field, barn, and corrals the ranch road climbs up through a moraine of chaparral, scrub oak and small meadows. After reaching the top road intersection the terrain flattens out to the south into a series of grassy meadows intersected by oak covered hills. It is here scattered through these meadows one finds the vineyard, main house, managers house, bunk house, and small guest house, plus a set of corrals for working the cattle. Going north from the intersection the ranch road drops down into a narrow valley with another series of grassy meadows strung out all the way to the northern most border of the ranch. Within this northern reach of the Casey Flat Ranch is a deep rugged canyon that runs to the east draining the narrow valley in to Cache Creek below.

The stewardship of the Casey Flat Ranch is a perfect example of how a ranch can be managed to tap and enhance its potential yet maintain the wonderful environmental qualities that were so attractive in the first place. Most of the Casey Flat Ranch is still in the same pristine condition it was one hundred years ago. The only real change is the addition of the classically designed vineyard that follows the traditions established in the great wine growing regions of Europe and the Napa Valley.

The beautiful villa style main house was designed to leave the slightest foot print with only a feather like touch on the surrounding vista. Rarely, does such a magnificent home not overwhelm the view area, yet with the tasteful attention to the surrounding peaceful environmental beauty the villas under stated profile is a further reflection on the careful stewardship of the Casey Flat Ranch.

Vineyard

Selected for the moderately rocky soil composition, gentle hillside mountain slopes, and 2000-foot elevation, the site provides for excellent growing conditions.

The vineyard is sustainably cultivated, using materials and farming techniques that emphasize water and soil conservation. Weather data records indicate climate conditions at the Vineyard are parallel in almost every aspect to the Oakville/Rutherford appellations of the Napa Valley. Remarkably, average daily daytime temperatures are cooler than St. Helena, located 22 miles to the west.

There are 22 planted acres with the first vines planted in 2004. There is an additional 60 to 70 acres that have been selected for expansion.

Soil tests have been done and water development is next. There is a large shop with an employee's restroom and a separate building that includes a small office for the vineyard manager. There is also a full line of vineyard equipment.

Cattle

The herd of long horn cattle is raised naturally and makes use of the whole ranch north to south depending on the time of year. Ranches such as The Casey Flat Ranch are sometimes called a boots and saddle type operation as the cattle are raised in the early California Vaquero style meaning most of the work is done horseback.

Farming

On the Capay Valley floor, as one enters the Casey Flat Ranch, there are 60 to 90 acres of ground that could be planted to walnuts, olives, or possibly pistachios or almonds.
