Words from Latin: Challenge

indigenous	soliloquy	egregious	ameliorate
belligerent	accommodate	aggregate	commensurate
vernacular	pernicious	tertiary	facetious
infinitesimal	efficacy	corpuscle	prerogative
recalcitrant	visceral	perennial	ubiquitous
innocuous	exacerbate	precocious

Words from Latin: Spelling Tips

1. One of the hardest things to remember about words from Latin is whether an internal consonant (like rr in interrupt) is doubled. To reinforce your memory of the correct spelling, try to remember related words all together (like interrupt along with interruption or necessary along with necessity.)
2. The \ü\ sound (as in ooze) is nearly always spelled with a u in words from Latin. It typically follows a \d\, \j\, \l\, \r\, or \s\ sound. After other consonants, this sound normally becomes a \yü\ (as in bugle, subterfuge, ambiguity, and prosecute and in one pronunciation of refugee.)
3. Beware of words like crescent in which the \s\ sound is spelled with sc in words from Latin. Other examples include visceral, discern, discipline, susceptible, and corpuscle.
4. When you hear within a word from Latin the \s\ sound followed by any of the sounds of e (long, short, or schwa), there's a possibility that the \s\ sound is spelled with c as in exacerbate, access, adjacent, condolences, facetious, and necessary.
5. The letter I is a vowel often used to connect two Latin word elements. If the connecting vowel sound is a schwa (\ə\) and you must guess at the spelling of this sound, the letter I might be a good guess: See carnivore and herbivore. Other examples include non-study-list words that end in iform such as oviform and pediform.
6. The letter k rarely appears in words from Latin, and its sound is nearly always represented by c as in canary, prosaic, canine, mediocre, Capricorn, cognition, ductile, incorruptible, vernacular, innocuous, and many other words on the list.
7. The letter x often gets the pronunciation \gz\ in words from Latin (as in exacerbate and exuberant).
8. The combination ious ends many adjectives of Latin origin. When the consonant that preceded ious is c or t, the sound of the final syllable is \shəs\ as in facetious, ostentatious, pernicious, and precocious. It is important to keep in mind that several adjectives from Latin ending with this sound end in eous rather than ious. In such instances, the definitions of the words usually contain phrases such as “consisting of”, “resembling”, or “having the characteristics of”. Examples include non-study-list words herbaceous, cetaceous, and lilaceous.

Words from Spanish: Study Words

Words from Spanish: Challenge

sassafras	comandante	novillero	rasgado
punctilio	embarcadero	picaresque	vaquero
sarsaparilla	rejoneador	conquistador	caballero

Words from Spanish: Spelling Tips

1. A long o sound (\o\) at the end of a word is often a mark of Spanish origin, and it is nearly always spelled simply with o as in embargo and many other words on this list.
2. A long e sound (\e\) at the end of a word of Spanish origin is usually spelled with i as in mariachi.
3. The \k\ sound is sometimes spelled with qu in words of Spanish origin. This is especially true when the vowel sound that follows is a long a (\a\), long e (\e\) or short i (\i\). Quesadilla and conquistador (in its pronunciations with and without the \s\ sound) are examples from our list.
4. It is much more common for the \k\ sound to be spelled with c in words of Spanish origin. This is almost invariable when the vowel sound that follows is a schwa \e\ as in canasta and embarcadero; short a (\a\) as in castanets and caballero; or long o (\o\) as in flamenco and junco.
5. A schwa at the end of a word from Spanish is very common and is usually spelled with a as in mesa, bonanza, and several other words on the list.
6. The combination ll in Spanish words is traditionally treated as a single letter and is pronounced as consonant \y\ in American Spanish. When such words enter English, sometimes that sound persists. At other times it is pronounced just like ll would be in an English word: that is, as \l\. Some words- such as mantilla, tomatillo, Amarillo, and caballero- even have two pronunciations in English. Quesadilla, tortilla, and novillero always have the \y\ pronunciation in English; chinchilla, flotilla, vanilla, peccadillo, cedilla, and sarsaparilla always have the \l\ pronunciation. Be on the lookout!
7. Note that, except for ll, double consonants in words from Spanish are not very common. Buffalo and peccadillo represent exceptions. In Spanish, buffalo has only one f and peccadillo has only one c. English spelling rules prefer two consonants as a signal that the previous vowel is short, as in the case in these words.

Words from Old English: Challenge

heifer	salve	Wiccan	chary
mistletoe	kirtle	shrieval

Words from Old English: Spelling Tips

1. Old English likes double consonants following short vowels, especially if the vowel is in a stressed syllable. Examples include quell, paddock, mattock, sallow, fennel, hassock, errand, barrow, kipper, and Wiccan.
2. A long a sound (\a\) at the end of words from Old English is nearly always spelled ay as in belay.
3. Long e (\e\) at the end of an adjective or adverb from Old English is nearly always spelled with y. Examples include dreary, watery, windily, fiery, creepy, daily, stringy, timely, womanly, and chary.
4. Long o (\o\) at the end of words from Old English is typically spelled with ow as in sallow and barrow. By contrast a long o at the end of a word in many languages that English has borrowed from is simply spelled with o.
5. When the syllable \sel\ ends words from Old English, it is nearly always spelled stle, with the t being silent (as in gristle and nestle).

6. Silent gh after a vowel is common in words from Old English, as in slaughter. Silent gh usually appears after i in words like plight (not on the study list) and nightingale, and it signals that the vowel is pronounced \T\.
7. The vowel combination oa in words from Old English is nearly always pronounced as long o (\ō\), as in loam and goatee. Examples not on the study list include shoal, boastful, and gloaming.
8. Silent e on the end or not? For words from Old English that end in either hard th (\th\), or soft th (\th\), remember this: More often than not, soft th will have a silent e at the end of the word. Consider, for example, bequeath, dearth, kith, hearth, and hundredth, versus blithe, lithe, and tithe. Interestingly, the word blithe can be pronounced both ways.

Words from New World Languages: Challenge

opossum	hoomalimali	ipecac
terrapin	coati	menhaden
ocelot	jacamar	sachem

Words from New World Languages: Spelling Tips

1. Remember that words settling down in English are often spelled according to English word patterns. If you're completely unsure how to spell a word from a New World language, you can try just "sounding it out". This strategy would work for hurricane, muskrat, wigwam, and several other words on the list.
2. Take note of the language(s) a word may have traveled through on its way to English, for the path to English often gives a clue about spelling. For example, if it had been up to an English speaker, the \ü\ sound at the end of caribou would probably have been spelled oo; but the influence of French gives us the current spelling because French usually spells this sound ou.
3. Coyote shows evidence of having passed through Spanish on its way to English: The voiced final e is often seen in Spanish words. Two other examples on this list are tamale and mole.
4. Remember what folk etymology is? Words that entered English from New World languages were prime candidates for this process. If parts of a native word sounded familiar, they were often spelled by the settlers in a familiar way, as in woodchuck. Muskrat is also probably a result of folk etymology.

Words from Greek: Spelling Tips

1. In a few words from Greek, e appears at the end of a word and has a long e sound (\ē\): Some examples are acme, apostrophe, and hyperbole.
2. A \k\ sound in English often represents a sound from Greek that we don't actually use, and the most common spelling of this sound in English is ch: See anachronism, arachnid, character, chronic, chronology, dichotomy, hierarchy, matriarch, melancholy, patriarch, synchronous, notochord, tachometer, and gynarchy.
3. The most frequent sound that y gets in words from Greek is short i (\i\) as in acronym, calypso, cryptic, cynical, dyslexia, eponym, homonym, myriad, Olympian, synchronous, synergy, synonym, synopsis, syntax, symbiosis, and polymer.
4. A long i sound (\ī\) in a word that comes from Greek is sometimes represented by y, especially after h, as in hydraulic, hydrology, hygiene, hyperbole, hyphen, hypothesis, dynamic, cynosure, gynarchy, xylophone, and pyre.
5. In ancient Greek, the letter phi (pronounce \fī\) represented a breathy or “aspirated” version of the sound that is represented in English by f. Speakers of Roman-alphabet language did not have this sound or a corresponding letter, so they substituted the \f\ sound but memorialized the original sound of phi by using ph to spell it. As a result, the English \f\ sound almost always appears as ph in words from Greek origin. Consider, for example: amphibious, apostrophe, cacophony, diphthong, epiphany, euphemism, hyphen, metamorphosis, metaphor, periphery, phenomenon, philanthropy, philately, philhellenism, spherical, topography, xylophone, and zephyr.
6. The letter o is the vowel most often used to connect two Greek word elements. If the connecting vowel sound is a schwa (\e\) as in xylophone, notochord, orthodox, ergonomic, geonics, and asthmogenic and you must guess at the spelling of this sound, the letter o is a very good guess. The non-study-list words hypnotist, geometric and electrolyte are among the many, many words made of Greek word elements connected by o.
7. The \j\ sound is always spelled with g in words from Greek. Why? When the \j\ sound appears in words from Greek origin, it does so as an anglicized pronunciation of a root originally pronounced with a hard g. Note that no j appears in any of the words on this list!
8. A schwa in words from Greek is occasionally spelled with y: See analysis, etymology, misogynist, odyssey, and zephyr.

Words from Italian: Challenge

Scherzo	archipelago	mozzarella	vivace
Adagio	charlatan	garibaldi	cappelletti
Segue	maraschino	ocarina	pizzicato
Zucchini	paparazzo	prosciutto	intaglio
capricious	fantoccini	trattoria

Words from Italian: Spelling Tips

- Long e (\ē\) at the end of a word from Italian is usually spelled with i as in confetti, graffiti, zucchini, fantoccini, cappelletti, and many other words on the list. In Italian, a final i usually indicates a plural form. This is not always true, however, of Italian words in English.
- Long o (\o\) at the end of an Italian word is spelled with o as in incognito, stucco, virtuoso, concerto, prosciutto, pizzicato, vibrato, and many other words on the list.
- A long e sound (\ē\) at the end of a word from Italian can be spelled with e as in provolone, finale, and one pronunciation of vivace, although this spelling of the sound is less common than i.
- The \sh\ sound has various spellings in words from Italian; a spelling it usually doesn't have is sh! It can be spelled sc as in crescendo and prosciutto or ch as in charlatan and pistachio. The spelling of the \sh\ sound in capricious is also seen in words that come from Latin- the ancestral language of Italian.
- The \k\ sound can be spelled cc when it comes before long o (\o\) as in stucco or when it comes before \ä\ as in staccato.
- Another Italian spelling of \k\ is ch as in scherzo.
- The sound \ê-nê\, common at the end of Italian words (it forms diminutives), is usually spelled ini (as in zucchini and fantoccini).
- The double consonant zz is typically pronounce \ts\ in words from Italian, as in paparazzo, mozzarella, pizzicato, and on pronunciation of piazza.

Words from French: Spelling Tips

1. French nearly always spells the \sh\ sound with ch, and this spelling of the sound is very common in words from French. Chagrin, chauvinism, and crochet are examples.
2. A word from French ending with a stressed \et\ is usually spelled with ette as in layette and croquette.
3. A long a sound (\ā\) at the end of a word from French can be spelled a number of ways. One of the more common ways is with et as in cachet, croquet, and crochet.
4. One way to spell long a at the end of a word from French is with er as in dossier and in foyer. (Most Americans, however, do not pronounce the ending of foyer with a long a.)
5. A long e sound (\e\) at the end of a word from French can be spelled with ie as in prairie and sortie.
6. Words ending with an \äzh\ sound are common in French. This sound is spelled age as in collage, mirage, dressage, garage, barrage, camouflage, entourage, and fuselage.
7. A \k\ sound at the end of a word from French is often spelled que as in physique, mystique, and boutique.
8. The \ü\ sound (as in rouge and many other words on the list) in words from French is usually spelled with ou. Sometimes however, it is spelled with u as in tutu and ecru.
9. When the \sh\ sound occurs at the end of a word from French, there is nearly always a silent e that follows it, as in quiche and gauche.
10. Words ending with an \äd\ sound are common in French. This sound is spelled ade as in fusillade.
11. French speakers have a number of vowels that English speakers modify in pronunciation. Our way of pronouncing the French aise (pronounced \ez\ in French) is usually \äz\.

Weimaraner	pfeffernuss	anschluss	schnecke
Ersatz	edelweiss	wedel	Weissnichtwo
fräulein	glockenspiel	springerle

Words from German: Spelling Tips

1. Don't shy away from consonant clusters! German words often have combinations of three or more consonants that don't occur in thoroughly in English words. Examples include ngst in angst, sch in shadenfreude, sch in schnauzer, and nschl in Anschluss.
2. A \k\ sound in a word from German is usually spelled with k at the beginning of a word or syllable (as in kitsch and einkorn) and often with ck at the end of a word or syllable (as in knapsack and glockenspiel).
3. A long I sound (\ī\) usually has the spelling ei in words from German, as in fräulein, Meistersinger, zeitgeber, and several other words on the list.
4. The \f\ sound, especially at the beginning of a word, is sometimes spelled with v in German words as in vorlage. Other examples include the non-study-list words volkslied and herrenvok.
5. The letter z is far more common in German than in English. Note that its pronunciation is not usually the same as English \z\. When it follows a t, which is common, the pronunciation is \s\ as in spritz, pretzel, blitzkrieg, and several other words on the list.
6. The \sh\ sound in words of German origin is usually spelled sch as in shadenfreude, whether at the beginning or end of a word or syllable. In schottische, you get it in both places!
7. A long e sound (\ē\) usually has the spelling ie in words from German, as in blitzkrieg and glockenspiel.
8. The letter w is properly pronounced as \v\ in German, as you hear in one pronunciation of edelweiss and in wedel and Weissnichtwo. Many German words, however, have become so anglicized that this pronunciation has vanished. Most Americans, for example, say "bratwurst" not "bratvurst".

Words from Arabic: Spelling Tips

1. Double consonants are often seen in words from Arabic. More often than not, they occur in the middle of a word as in mummy, cotton, henna, foggara, coffle, tarragon, and several other words on the list. Their appearance at the end of a word (as in albatross and tariff) is usually because of the spelling conventions of English or some other language that the word passed through to get here.
2. A typical word from Arabic has three consonant sounds, with or without vowels between them. Gazelle, safari, talc, carafe, mahal, tahini, alkali, hafiz, and salaam are typical examples.
3. Note how many words on this list begin with al: This spelling can be traced to the definite article al ("the") in Arabic, which sometimes gets borrowed along with a word. Most of the time the spelling is al in English, but note el in elixir.
4. A long e sound (\ē\) at the end of a word from Arabic is often spelled with i as in safari and several other words on the list but may also be spelled with y as in mummy and alchemy.
5. The schwa sound (\ə\) at the end of a word from Arabic is usually spelled with a as in henna, tuna, algebra, alfalfa, foggara, and diffa.
