

Meet Joshua.

As a young child in public school kindergarten, Joshua had tantrums that were hard to control, and he was sometimes aggressive with students and teachers. As a result, he had trouble concentrating and learning at the same pace as other students.

At age five, Joshua was enrolled in the ECF Kayne Eras Center School, where for the past eight years, he's been a model student – proof that small class sizes, counseling, educational therapy, and a variety of enrichment activities can make an impact and change lives.

During this past school year, ECF partnered with Unified Theater, a youth-led program that empowers young people to lead and puts the spotlight on ability. Joshua helped direct the year-end performance by preparing actors to go on stage and serving as prop manager. We are so proud of Joshua's accomplishments as a leader, because he successfully worked with students of all ages and abilities.

Joshua is excited that school has started as he looks forward to being a 9th grade freshman at KEC.
