

A Renaissance In Paradise

A Place Of Few Regrets

Log Of: A Renaissance In Paradise

A Place Of Few Regrets

Opening Conjecture	1
Mr. D. Searches For Catherine Theresa And Mr. D.	20
News Of Catherine	31
Fort Detrick	41
Lydia	44
Catherine And Mr. D.	47
Ponderings	54
To The Island	55
On The Road	61
Immortality In The News	68
The Threesome	70
The Imperatives Dealing With The Human Condition	79
The Magnitude Of The Condition	89
On The Road Again	93
The Persistent Condition	98
More Time At The Anvil	102
The Imperative Persists	111
Impediments To A Resolution	117
A Reality Check	137
The Father	139
The Other Sister	152
The Third Arrives	192
Return To The Island And Other Matters	206
Getting Back To Cases	228
The New Beginning	310
The Vicissitudes	327
What Matters, Matters	348
Another Labors With The Pen	355
Whereof Doth we Proper	363
Discourse On The Beginning	369
Catherine's Response	379
The Author Returns To The Task	389
The Beyond Is That Where It Will All End	399

A Renaissance In Paradise, A Place Of Few Regrets is more or less a continuation of the earlier Catherine.

Amidst other considerations Catherine pretended to discuss many problems inherent to the Human Condition.

Catherine most likely did not resolve any of the problems it set out to reveal, examine, and remedy.

A Renaissance In Paradise pretends to solve even less the problems occurring in Catherine. Rather it attempts to find suitable occupations for its disenchanted protagonists.

The author is currently at work on another prospective dimension to the Human Condition in a work titled The Beyond.