

DORIEN CARROLL – MODERN INSTRUCTOR (RECREATIONAL & COMPETITIVE)

Dorien Carroll is a choreographer, dance instructor, and music producer from Baltimore, MD. His training expands in various styles such as Classical/Contemporary Ballet, Modern, Jazz, Lyrical, Musical Theater, Liturgical and more. Dorien was introduced to dance when he joined the Ava Fields Dance Company/Ministry. He gained most of his classical training from The Baltimore School for the Arts. Dorien has worked with numerous choreographers and performed well-known work such as Martha Graham's "Appalachian Spring", George Balanchine's "Who Cares", and many more. Dorien received his Associate of Fine Arts Degree in Dance at the Community College of Baltimore County and is currently working towards getting a BFA in Business Administration at Morgan State University. Dorien is currently the Assistant Artistic Director of the Aliyah C. Artist Collective, which is based in the local Baltimore area to give committed artists an outlet to perform. Above all, Dorien believes that any and everyone is able to find an escape through Dance. He's looking forward to sharing light and knowledge within the Baltimore community.
