

Moan vs. Complaint

You moan
for emotional
release;
you complain
for decisive
improvement.

A moan
makes you
feel better;
a complaint
wants the situation
to get better.
That's why
you moan
for yourself,
but complain
to someone else.

A moan
expresses
a reaction;
a complaint
desires
a remedy.

Inconvenience and
annoyance
are defused by a
moan;
inefficiency and
injustice
demand a complaint.

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski

August 24, 2003

Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com

www.fatherwaltersparish.org