Child's total includes groceries and household bills.

Groceries -Total amount divided by the number of adults, this is a formula, full-time college student siblings count, so Austin's portion was 1/3. House hold expenses uses the same formula.

The child's percentage is based on 1/3 of the total spent on groceries utilities, rent, etc.. As explained to me by SS it is based on the number of individuals over 18 in the household. We don't have a mortgage or pay rent, if we did we would include household expenses.

Now I'm not sure that Austin could include Donations/gifts but it doesn't really matter because his expenses exceed what is provided without including the Donations/gifts. Gifts may be gifts provided at the end of the school year to his support school, Donations may include gifts during fundraisers.

Personal Exp, 100% his, doesn't matter how many adults tin the household. Personal Care and Entertainment is less a catch all group. Personal care includes his trips to the Salon, or the time we had to replace his razor. Entertainment includes his extra trips to the Movies, Bowling or his Nintendo (a losing battle of late, he's broken his 3rd)
