

Construction List Admit Standards

Owners for every property on the approved AC construction list are informed in writing once their project is approved, that all workers and contractors will be allowed in for their property address. If an owner wants to be called for every contractor/worker coming in or for a particular person, the owner must provide that instruction to the entry station. This is a long-standing rule of the approved construction procedures.

Most owners don't want to be called every time a worker or vendor comes to their building project. A few do and give that instruction to the station. Owners can also inform the station to contact them for a specific person, company, or trade. The owner may modify their construction entry instructions at any time for their individual property. Without specific instructions, the officers' standing orders are to allow access for construction-related individuals to an approved construction project without calling the resident.

Owners also need to inform Lulu in the BCA office as soon as their project is complete, so that their property is removed from the approved construction list and admits revert to normal access procedures. If you have any questions about construction entry, please call Erman at the BCA office, 818-346-9879.
