

Nathan Hervey

Nathan currently serves a band director at Arlington High School in Arlington, Texas.

In that role he conducts the Jazz ensembles as well as the Concert Band and assists with the Marching Band. Other duties include teaching beginner musicians at Bailey Jr. High.

An Arlington native, he is a graduate of Bowie HS. After high school, he earned a Bachelor of Music Degree in Music Education from UT Arlington. While at UT Arlington, he performed with the jazz orchestra, wind ensemble, trombone choir, jazz combo and the marching band. Upon completion of his undergraduate studies, He earned a Master of Music degree in trombone performance from the University of North Texas. While at UNT, he performed with the symphony orchestra, trombone choir and the 2 o'clock lab band.

Composition has long been one of Nathan's passions, and it has grown out of a desire to provide beautiful music for young musicians. His earliest compositions were quartets and piano pieces. He has also done a lot of transcriptions/arrangements for jazz bands that he has conducted over the years. Throughout his teaching career, he began getting ideas for music that he could write for his own ensembles. It started with arranging chorales, warm-ups, etc. and then moved into original music for them to perform. As time went on, his strong desire to write for young ensembles simply grew and students also encouraged me to keep writing. Today, his passion for writing has driven him to create meaningful music for young ensembles. Print Music Source is pleased and proud to have several new works from Nathan.
