

The Best of the Sand Hill Review

Edited by Martin F. Sorensen

Silicon Valley isn't known only for computers and technology; it's also home to many artists and writers. For the past fifteen years, The Sand Hill Review has been publishing short stories and poetry in its yearly anthologies. In The Best of The Sand Hill Review Sorensen has gathered the most entertaining stories published over the last decade. Enjoy this marvelous collection. It will entertain all who venture inside!

Cover note: The cover photo was gleaned from the Menlo Park Historical Association and shows two riders ambling down Sand Hill Road, which now is probably in the middle of Highway 280. It recalls a time in Silicon Valley when life was slow and writers used fountain pens to scratch their stories across heavy cotton paper. Methods of writing may have changed, but good stories live forever.
