2023 CALIFORNIA LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY

April 6, 2023

The 2023 Legislative session continues to proceed with a record number of bills pending in the California Assembly and Senate, including a significant number of employment bills. The next important date in the legislative process is April 28th. This is the deadline for bills to pass the crucial first substantive committee votes. Soon after that deadline, we should have additional clarity regarding the key bills likely to continue moving forward. Some bills will fail to proceed, thus culling the overall number of bills. We expect many other bills will be materially amended.

We have identified the “Top Ten” proposed employment law changes that – if enacted – would have the most significant impact on California employers. These bills would:

1. Increase paid sick leave from 24 hours/3 days to either 40 hours/5 days or 56 hours/7 days (SB 616 and SB 881)
2. Mandate five days of leave for reproductive loss (SB 848)
3. Prohibit discrimination on the basis of family caregiver status (AB 524)
4. Expand the availability of remote work as a reasonable accommodation (SB 731)
5. Repeal and replace California’s Fair Chance Act with a sweeping set of new rules limiting employer consideration of conviction history for applicants and employees (SB 809)
6. Require creation, implementation, and training re: workplace violence protection plans (SB 553)
7. Expand the law against non-compete agreements (AB 747, SB 699 and AB 1076)
8. Significantly expand California’s Worker Adjustment and Retraining Act (CalWARN) (AB 1356)
9. Expand rehire requirements for displaced workers beyond COVID-19 context (SB 723)
10. Impose new restrictions on use of artificial intelligence tools in employment decision-making (AB 331)

In this newsletter, we first describe new laws and ordinances already in effect, then outline our “Top 10” pending issues, and close with a description of other pending employment bills, organized by subject matter.

NEW LAWS AND ORDINANCES

Meal and Rest Period Exemption for Flight Crews Covered by Collective Bargaining Agreement (SB 41)

Signed by Governor Gavin Newsom on March 23, 2023, this immediately effective law adds new Labor Code section 512.2 exempting airline cabin crew employees from state law and regulations requiring meal and rest periods under two circumstances:

1. The employees are covered by a valid collective bargaining agreement under the Railway Labor Act containing a provision addressing meal and rest periods for cabin crew members; or
2. The employees are organized pursuant to the Railway Labor Act but not yet covered by a collective bargaining agreement for at least the first 12 months of organization, or longer if agreed to by the employer and the labor organization representing the employee.

For purposes of this exemption, a CBA must have a provision providing for meal and rest periods, provide compensation in lieu of meals or per diem (in lieu of meals), or recognize a right to eat on board an aircraft during the course of a duty day.

As mentioned, this law was deemed an urgency statute and took effect immediately once signed. Starting December 5, 2022 (the date the bill was introduced), the new law prohibits a person from filing a new legal action for alleged meal and rest breaks violations on behalf of an employee covered by a CBA that meets the listed requirements. However, this new section does not affect a settlement agreement or final judgment of any civil action brought by a cabin crew employee, or class thereof, against an employer on a claim of a meal or rest break violation.

Los Angeles Retail Worker Predictive Scheduling (Los Angeles Municipal Code Sections 185 and 188)

The Los Angeles “Fair Work Week Law” went into effect April 1, 2023. The ordinance covers retail businesses with 300 or more employees globally (at least one of whom works in the city of Los Angeles). The new ordinance creates numerous detailed obligations for covered employers, including the duty to: provide a good faith estimate of an employee’s work schedule, consider employee scheduling preferences, provide advance notice of a schedule and pay penalties for schedule changes, offer new work to existing employees before hiring, retain records and post notices, and more. WTK’s original summary of the ordinance is available here. For more detailed information, including the text of the ordinance, the City’s FAQs regarding implementation, and required posters, visit the City’s website here.

TOP TEN PROPOSED EMPLOYMENT LAW CHANGES

1. Paid Sick Leave Increases (SB 616 & SB 881)

Two pending bills would amend California’s Paid Sick Leave law (Labor Code section 245 et seq.) to increase the number of paid sick leave days by amending Labor Code section 246, effective January 1, 2024. SB 616 would simply increase the amount of required paid sick leave (PSL), while SB 881 would increase the amount of PSL while also taking certain steps to reduce the administrative burdens of compliance on employers. It is not yet clear which approach (if any) the legislature may pursue this year.

Several recent attempts to increase California’s Paid Sick Leave law to allow five days/40 hours of paid sick leave have stalled (e.g., AB 555 in 2020 and AB 995 in 2021), but this issue has been identified as a legislative priority by organized labor.

- Increase PSL to 40 hours/5 days and Ease Implementation for Employers (SB 881)

This bill would increase PSL while also making several changes to ease implementation for employers.

First, the bill would increase the amount of required sick leave from 24 hours or 3 days up to 40 hours or five days:

- While current law allows an employer to limit an employee to carryover three days or 24 hours of paid sick leave, SB 881 would increase the employer's authorized limitation to five days or 40 hours and would also change the definition of "full amount of leave" to mean five days or 40 hours. (It would also make corresponding changes to the sick leave accrual rate for individual providers of in-home support services and waiver personal care services).
- While employers may presently use a different accrual method rather than the "one hour of paid sick leave for every 30 hours worked" provided the employee has at least 24 hours by the 120th calendar day of employment, SB 881 would require employees have no less than 40 hours of accrued sick time by the 200th calendar day of employment, or in each calendar year or in each 12-month period. Similarly, while employers may presently satisfy the accrual requirements by providing 24 hours or three days of paid sick time by the 120th calendar day of employment, SB 881 would modify this satisfaction provision to require the employer to provide at least 40 hours or five days available to the employee by the 200th calendar day of employment.
- While employers are not currently required to provide additional paid sick days if they have a paid leave or paid time off policy (usable for the same purposes as paid sick leave) if the employee may earn up to 24 hours or three days off within nine months of employment, SB 881 would increase these amounts to 40 hours or five days of sick leave or paid time off.
- Further, while employers may presently limit an employee's total accrual of paid sick leave to 48 hours or six days, provided an employee's right to accrue and use paid sick leave is not otherwise limited, SB 818 would increase these accrual thresholds for paid sick leave to 80 hours or 10 days.

Second, SB 881 would specify that PSL can be paid out at a non-exempt employee's base rate of pay (rather than the "regular rate," as is currently required by law).

Third, SB 881 would allow an employer to request that an employee using PSL provide a written statement indicating the employee was absent for a specified reason. And if an employee uses three consecutive days of PSL, the employer could ask for written documentation of the reason for the leave. The bill specifies that an employer is not in violation of the law if the employer denies leave based on a determination that the verification or documentation is false.

Fourth, SB 881 would also provide that on or after January 1, 2024, no county, city or municipality shall adopt any ordinances or rules regarding paid sick leave other than related to COVID-19-specific paid leave. In addition, the bill would specify that any existing local ordinances or rules are preempted by the state law (other than those regarding COVID-19-specific sick leave). If enacted, this would mean that California employers would only need to comply with the state law regarding PSL, and would not need to worry about local laws with increased or different sick leave rules (except for those related to COVID-19).

Finally, SB 881 would provide that violations of the PSL law are not enforceable under the Private Attorneys General Act (“PAGA”).

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

- Increase PSL to 56 hours/7 days (SB 616)

SB 616 would increase Paid Sick Leave accruals even more than SB 881. Citing lessons learned from the recent COVID-19 pandemic, this bill would increase the amount of required sick leave from 24 hours or 3 days up to 56 hours or seven days:

- SB 616 would increase the employer’s authorized limitation to seven days or 56 hours and would also change the definition of “full amount of leave” to mean seven days or 56 hours. (It would also make corresponding changes to the sick leave accrual rate for individual providers of in-home support services and waiver personal care services).
- SB 616 would require employees have no less than 56 hours or 7 days of accrued sick time by the 280th calendar day of employment, or in each calendar year or in each 12-month period.
- While employers are not currently required to provide additional paid sick days if they have a paid leave or paid time off policy (usable for the same purposes as paid sick leave) if the employee may earn up to 24 hours or three days off within nine months of employment, SB 616 would increase these amounts to 56 hours or seven days of sick leave or paid time off.
- Further, while employers may presently limit an employee’s total accrual of paid sick leave to 48 hours or six days, provided an employee’s right to accrue and use paid sick leave is not otherwise limited, SB 616 would increase these accrual thresholds for paid sick leave to 112 hours or 14 days.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

2. Reproductive Loss Leave Proposed (SB 848)

In 2022, California enacted a new law (AB 1949, codified at Government Code section 12945.7) allowing employees to take up to five days of bereavement upon the death of a family member. This bill would incorporate much of the same framework but add a new Government Code section 12945.6 allowing employees to take “reproductive loss leave.” Employers with five or more employees would be required to allow an employee who has been employed for 30 or more days to take up to five days leave following a miscarriage, unsuccessful assisted reproduction, failed adoption, failed surrogacy, diagnosis negatively impacting pregnancy, diagnosis negative impacting fertility or childbirth.

New Government Code section 12945.7 would include detailed definitions for “assisted reproduction,” “diagnosis negatively impacting fertility,” “diagnosis negatively impacting pregnancy,” “failed adoption,” “failed surrogacy,” “miscarriage” and “unsuccessful assisted reproduction.”

As mentioned, this time off is otherwise modeled upon the recently-enacted bereavement leave statute. Accordingly, this time off would be unpaid (unless the employer’s policies provide paid leave or the employee chooses to use vacation, personal leave, accrued and available sick leave or compensatory time off), need not be consecutive, must be completed within three months of the qualifying event and would be considered separate and distinct from any other leaves authorized by the Government Code (e.g., CFRA, bereavement leave, pregnancy disability leave, etc.). Employers would be prohibited from retaliating against employees who have taken reproductive loss leave, or provided information or testimony regarding their own or another person’s reproductive loss leave in an enforcement action regarding these rights, and would be required to maintain the confidentiality of employees requesting reproductive loss leave.

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

3. Prohibition of Discrimination on the Basis of Family Caregiver Status (AB 524)

This bill would amend the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) to preclude discrimination or harassment based upon an employee’s “family caregiver status.” “Family caregiver status” is defined to mean “a person who contributes to the care of one or more family members.” In turn, “family member” would mean spouse, child, parent, sibling, grandparent, grandchild, domestic partner, or any other individual related by blood or whose association with the employee is the equivalent of a family relationship. (The bill does not define what it would mean to “contribute to the care of” one of these family members.) The bill would make it an unlawful employment practice to discriminate against or harass an employee on the basis of family caregiver status.

This bill is a narrower version of AB 2182, which stalled in 2022 after passing two committee votes. Unlike AB 2182, this version does not impose any explicit obligation on employers to accommodate an employee’s family caregiver responsibilities, although it remains to be seen whether, if this bill is enacted, an employer’s failure to grant scheduling requests or remote work requests for employees with family caregiver status might be interpreted to be prohibited discrimination in the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment.

Status: Passed the Assembly Judiciary Committee on a party-line vote and is pending in the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee.

4. Working from Home as a Reasonable Accommodation (SB 731)

This bill would amend the FEHA to make it easier for employees to be allowed to work from home as a reasonable accommodation. Specifically, it would enact new Government Code section 12940.2 to allow an employee with a “qualifying disability” to initiate a renewed reasonable accommodation request to perform their work remotely if all of the following requirements are met: (1) the employee requested remote work as a reasonable accommodation before March 1, 2020 (i.e., before COVID-related lockdowns) and that request was denied or an alternative accommodation was provided; (2) the employee performed their essential job functions remotely for at least six of the 24 months preceding the renewed request; and (3) the employee's essential job functions are the same at the time of the renewed request as when the employee performed their work remotely as described in the second requirement.

If these three conditions are met, the employer will be required to grant the renewed request to work remotely as a reasonable accommodation unless the employee can no longer perform all of their essential functions remotely. If the employer denies a renewed request, the employer must: (1) provide written notice to the employee within 30 days of denial, including providing the employer's reasons for denial; and (2) give the employee 30 days' notice to report back to in-person work.

Notably, even if the employee's "renewed request" under this new law is denied or revoked because the employee cannot perform all essential job functions remotely, the employee would still have the ability to request remote work as a reasonable accommodation under the FEHA's general accommodation provisions (Government Code section 12940(m)) and these new provisions would not impact the employer's accommodation or interactive process duties under Government Code section 12940, subsections (m) and (n).

For purposes of this new section, a "qualifying disability" would mean "an employee's medical provider has determined that the employee has a disability that significantly impacts the employee's ability to work outside of their home." Employers would have the ability to request written notice from the employee's medical provider to determine if the employee has a qualifying disability.

Status: Pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

5. Fair Chance Act of 2023 (SB 809)

In 2018, California enacted the Fair Chance Act (AB 1008, codified at Government Code section 12952) enacting new limits upon employer consideration of applicant conviction history and detailing the procedures regarding when and how such information could be obtained and considered. Citing various findings that formerly incarcerated individuals continue to struggle in finding employment, this bill – entitled the Fair Chance Act of 2023 – would repeal section 12952 and replace it with a sweeping set of new provisions regarding employer consideration of conviction history. This bill is very detailed and overarching so the reader should consider the bill's text for further details and expect numerous amendments moving forward, but here are some of the key points.

- Expanded Definitions of "Employee" and "Employer"

SB 809 commences with some broad definitions, defining employee as "an employee, unpaid intern, or volunteer, independent contractor or any other individual providing services pursuant to a contract, and freelancer." "Employer" is similarly broadly defined to include the definition in Government Code section 12945.7 and includes "any direct and joint employer, any entity that evaluates the applicant's conviction history on behalf of an employer, any staffing agency and any entity that selects, obtains, or is provided workers from a pool or availability list."

- Unlawful Employment Practices Enumerated

It then specifically identifies the following as “unlawful employment practices:”

- Using any employment advertisement, solicitation or publication that states any limitation or specification regarding conviction history;
 - Including on any application for employment or promotion, or directly or indirectly asking the applicant about conviction history;
 - Inquiring into, directly or indirectly asking the applicant, or considering the conviction history of the applicant about conviction history (except where expressly allowed elsewhere in these new provision);
 - Ending an interview, rejecting an applicant or otherwise terminating the employment or promotion application process based on conviction history information provided by the applicant or learned from any other source (notably, this includes if the applicant volunteers this information, in which case the employer must disregard the information and advise the applicant in writing of their right not to disclose conviction history);
 - Making an adverse decision based on the applicant’s response, including denial of conviction history, to a question, inquiry or voluntary disclosure regarding the applicant’s conviction history;
 - Requiring self-disclosure of an applicant’s conviction history at the time of, or any time after, a conditional offer of employment or promotion;
 - Requiring or requesting that an applicant share any social media, or the employer inquiring into, considering or disseminating conviction history information it obtains from social media, the internet or any source;
 - Inquiring into, considering, distributing or disseminating information while conducting a conviction history background check that employers cannot presently obtain or consider (e.g., arrests not resulting in convictions, referrals to or participation in pre-trial or post-trial diversion programs, sealed/dismissed/expunged convictions);
 - Interfering with, restraining or denying the exercise of any rights provided under SB 809;
 - Taking adverse action on the basis of a delay in obtaining or failing to obtain information during an authorized conviction history check;
 - Discriminating against or taking adverse action against an employee because of their arrest or conviction history;
 - Discriminating against employees in the terms, conditions or privileges of employment based on arrest of conviction history; or
 - Threatening adverse employment action based on an employee’s arrest or conviction history.
- When Conviction History Checks are Permitted

The general prohibition about employers inquiring about conviction history would not prohibit employers from conducting a conviction history background check in the following circumstances only: (1) federal or state law requires the employer to obtain information about the applicant’s particular conviction; (2) federal or state law prohibits an individual with a particular conviction history from holding the position sought, regardless of whether the conviction has been expunged, judicially ordered sealed, statutorily eradicated or judicially dismissed following probation; (3) federal or state law prohibits an employer from hiring an applicant with that particular conviction, regardless of whether the conviction has been expunged, judicially ordered sealed, statutorily eradicated or judicially dismissed following probation. For purposes of these exceptions, “particular conviction” means a conviction for specific criminal conduct or a category of criminal offenses prescribed by federal law, federal regulations or state law.

SB 809 would also not preclude any employer required by federal or state law to conduct conviction history background checks for employment purposes or to restrict employment based on conviction history from complying with these requirements, or from seeking or receiving an applicant’s conviction history report. However, as under current law, the employer would be precluded from inquiring about or considering conviction history until after a conditional employment offer has been made, and any background screening process required would need to be done in compliance with the individualized assessment, notification and other requirements of this law.

- Individualized Assessment Process (and Potential Reassessment Process)

As under current law, employers intending to deny a position of employment or promotion solely or in part because of the applicant’s conviction history must make an “individualized assessment” of whether the applicant’s conviction history has a direct and adverse relationship with one or more specific job duties, considering all of the following: (1) the nature and gravity of the offense or conduct; (2) the time that has passed since the offense or conduct; and (3) the nature of the job sought. The employer must put this individualized assessment in writing and provide a copy to the applicant along with the preliminary decision, and any denial will require demonstrating that one or more specific elements in the nature and gravity of the offense or conduct in the applicant’s conviction history has a direct and adverse relationship to one or more specific elements in the nature of the job held or sought.

Notably, where the applicant is currently not incarcerated or has completed a sentence of conviction for the crime, a rebuttable presumption will exist that there is no direct and adverse relationship between the conviction and the position, and that the applicant does not pose a risk to the public safety in ordinary circumstances. (However, “completion of a sentence” will not include parole, probation, supervised release, and any other form of supervision.) Similarly, the issuance of a license, certificate, authorization, or other credential from a licensing, regulatory or other government agency or board will demonstrate there is no direct and adverse relationship between the applicant’s conviction history and the position.

If the employer makes a preliminary decision that the applicant’s conviction history is disqualifying, the employer must notify the applicant in writing of this preliminary decision, providing particular enumerated information regarding the information considered and the employer’s reasoning. Largely as before, an applicant must be provided at least 10 business days (rather than the current five business days) to respond to the notice before a final decision may be made, and if the applicant notifies the employer in writing that it disputes the accuracy of the conviction history information relied upon and is obtaining contrary evidence, the applicant must be provided five additional business days to respond.

As before, if the applicant provides additional information, the employer must then conduct a second individualized assessment regarding the conviction history. However, SB 809 would require this second assessment to assume the information provided by the applicant is true and accurate, and not dispute the truth and accuracy of the new information unless substantially inconsistent with information obtained from a third party pursuant to these rules or voluntarily provided by the applicant. As with the first assessment, this second assessment must also be in writing.

If the employer makes a final decision to deny an applicant for employment or promotion solely or in part upon the applicant's conviction history, the employer must notify the applicant in writing with all of the following information: (1) the employer's reasoning for making the final denial or disqualification; (2) any existing procedure with the employer for the applicant to challenge the decision or request consideration; and (3) the right to file a complaint with the DFEH.

The employer would be prohibited from taking adverse action, disadvantaging the applicant or filling the position during this individualized assessment process. The employer also cannot revoke a conditional offer of employment or promotion because of any delay in obtaining information to comply with these requirements.

- Posting and Notice Guidelines

SB 809 would also impose new posting obligations, requiring the employer to post a clear and conspicuous notice regarding this law "at every workplace, jobsite and other location under the employer's control and visited by applicants or employees" and include it in any job posting, solicitation or advertisement seeking applicants for employment. These notices would need to be in English, Spanish and any language spoken by at least 10 percent of the employees at the workplace, jobsite or other location at which it is posted. Employers would also be required to affirmatively note in all solicitations or advertisements that they will consider qualified applicants with conviction histories consistent with this law and other federal, state and local laws.

Employers intending to conduct conviction background checks for employment purposes would also need to include both of the following in any job posting, solicitation, advertisement or application: (1) a list of specified job duties of the position for which a conviction may have a direct and adverse relationship and potentially result in an adverse action; and (2) a statement that the employer is considering arrest or conviction history under proposed new section 12945.2.02 and a list of all laws and regulations that impose restrictions or prohibitions for employment on the basis of any conviction, if any.

Any materials required by these notice provisions would need to comply with the notice and certification requirements of Civil Code section 1786.16 regarding investigative consumer reports. SB 809 would also amend Civil Code section 1786.16 regarding consumer reports and require the disclosure provided to the "consumer" also include either (1) all of the specific job duties of the position for which a conviction may have a direct and adverse relationship that has the potential to result in an "adverse employment action;" or (2) all laws and regulations that impose restrictions or prohibitions for employment on the basis of conviction, if any.

- Record Retention and Inspection Requirements

SB 809 would also impose record retention and inspection requirements. For instance, employers and their agents would be required to retain all records and documents related to an applicant's employment or promotion application and any written assessments and reassessments for four years following the receipt of an applicant's employment application. Employers and their agents would also be required, upon request, to provide access to these records and documents to the DFEH in any administrative enforcement action, or to the applicant.

- Regulations and Enforcement

The DFEH will be required to issue rules and regulations regarding when an employer's action constitutes a violation justifying civil penalties under these new rules. Individuals would also be entitled to pursue an action to recover civil penalties under SB 809, with the penalty amount depending upon the number of employees and whether there have been prior violations. These penalty and enforcement provisions are quite detailed but would allow the penalties to be split between the complainant and the DFEH, with the DFEH's portion being deposited into a special enforcement fund.

Status: Pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

6. Workplace Violence Restraining Orders and Prevention Plans (SB 553)

This bill would take several steps to expand protections against workplace violence. First, the bill would amend the Workplace Violence Safety Act (codified at Code of Civil Procedure section 527.8). As discussed in connection with SB 428, the law currently authorizes employers to seek a temporary restraining order and injunction on behalf of employees who suffer unlawful violence or a creditable threat of violence (as defined) that can reasonably be construed to have been carried out or to have been carried out at the workplace. SB 553 I would also allow a collective bargaining representative of an employee to seek such restraining orders and injunctions.

Second, the bill would amend the California Occupational Safety and Health Act's requirement that an employer establish, implement, and maintain an effective injury prevention program (Labor Code section 6401.7) by requiring that every employer also have a workplace violence prevention plan. The bill would create Labor Code section 6401.9 to detail the requirements of the workplace violence prevention plan. Notably, this new requirement would apply to any employer with one or more employees and the state and any subdivision of the state. In part, this new section of the Labor Code would effectively extend 2017 workplace violence regulations that currently affect only healthcare settings (8 Cal. Code Regs. § 3342) to all employers. This bill goes even further than the existing regulations applicable to healthcare settings – it includes a broad definition of “workplace violence” that encompasses not only the threat or use of physical force against an employee, but also conduct that seriously alarms, annoys, or harasses an employee, that serves no legitimate purpose, and that has a high likelihood of resulting in psychological trauma or stress, regardless of whether the employee sustains an injury, including, but not limited to, verbal harassment based at least in part on one or more actual or perceived characteristics identified in the hate crime statute (Section 422.55 of the Penal Code). CalOSHA is currently working on a Draft Multi-Industry Standard for workplace violence prevention. (Workplace Violence Prevention in General Industry - Advisory Meetings \(ca.gov\)) If it passes, SB 553 – which goes much farther than the draft standard – would seem to replace that rulemaking effort. However, employers should note that even if SB 553 fails, CalOSHA will presumably continue its work on workplace violence prevention regulations.

SB 553 has lengthy and detailed requirements for the workplace violence prevention plan, including a list of twelve elements (many with subparts) that must be included in the plan, including but not limited to procedures for the employer to accept and respond to reports of workplace violence and to prohibit retaliation against employees who make such a report, assessment procedures to identify and evaluate risk factors, procedures to correct workplace violence hazards in a timely manner, and procedures for post incident response and investigation.

Additionally, the bill would require the employer to record information in a violent incident log about every incident, post incident response, and workplace violence injury investigation required to be performed as part of the workplace violence prevention plan. There is a detailed list of the information that must be included in such a log.

The bill would also require the employer to establish and implement a system to review, at least annually and in conjunction with employees and their collective bargaining representatives, if any, the effectiveness of the workplace violence prevention plan. The employer would also be required to correct any “problems” found during the review and to update the workplace violence prevention plan if necessary.

Next, the bill would require the employer to provide effective training to employees that addresses the workplace violence risks that employees may reasonably anticipate to encounter in their jobs. The employer would be required to have an effective procedure for obtaining the active involvement of employees and their collective bargaining representatives, if any, in developing the training materials, participating in training sessions, and reviewing and revising the training program. All employees of the employer would be required to receive the training in person, during work time, at the workplace, and in an atmosphere designed to provide an opportunity for interactive questions and answers with a person knowledgeable about the workplace violence prevention plan. The bill includes a list of the specific topics that must be included in the training and specifies that employees must receive the training when the workplace violence prevention plan is first established or when an employee is newly hired and at least annually thereafter, and at any time when new equipment or work practices are introduced or a new or previously unrecognized workplace violence hazard has been identified.

The bill would require records of workplace violence hazard identification, evaluation, and correction to be created and maintained in accordance with specified law for various periods of time, and all records must be made available to employees and their collective bargaining representatives upon request for examination and copying.

Finally, employers would not be allowed to prohibit an employee from, or to take punitive or retaliatory action against an employee for, seeking assistance and intervention from local emergency services or law enforcement when a violent incident occurs.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor, Public Employment and Retirement Committee.

7. Expansion of Law Against Non-Compete Agreements (AB 747, SB 699, and AB 1076)

There are three pending bills that would all expand California's law against non-compete agreements in different ways. Existing law (Business and Professions Code sections 16600 to 16607) voids every contract that restrains anyone from engaging in a lawful trade or business, with certain specific exceptions. However, as one of the pending bills makes clear, there are concerns that despite these rules, many California employers continue to have their employees sign noncompete clauses and pursue frivolous noncompete litigation, which has a chilling effect on employee mobility, suppresses wages, and reduces entrepreneurship and innovation. Thus, all three of these bills would specify that it is a violation of law to require employees to enter into void noncompete agreements and would impose various penalties for such violations. Each law would also make different additional changes to the law. While it is unclear which path – if any – the legislature may take to revise the law against noncompete agreements, it appears there is broad interest in doing so.

- Expansion of Law Against Non-Competes and Additional Limitations on Employment Agreements (AB 747)

This bill would change California's rules regarding "non-compete" agreements, choice of law in employment agreements, and employee payment for specified work-related training.

First, this bill would expand and strengthen California's existing law against non-compete agreements (Business and Professions Code sections 16600 to 16607) in several ways.

- This bill would narrow the exception for people with an ownership interest in a business. Existing law authorizes a person selling their ownership interest in a business to agree to refrain from carrying on a similar business within a specified geographic area. This bill would modify the definition of "ownership interest" to require the partnership interest, membership interest, or capital stock to be more than 10% of the total, thus limiting the number of people who fall within the exception.
- Existing law voids certain non-compete agreements but does not impose penalties on employers who include such void provisions in contracts. This bill would add section 16610 to the Business and Professions Code to expressly prohibit an employer from entering into such an agreement, presenting such an agreement to an employee or applicant, or attempting to enforce any such agreement. For purposes of this law, "employee" includes employees and independent contractors. This bill would allow employees or prospective employees to bring an action for injunctive relief, actual damages, and an additional penalty of $5,000 per employee for violation of this provision, along with recovery of attorneys' fees and costs.

- The bill would also add section 16608 to the Business and Professions Code. The new section would specify that any contract that requires someone to pay a debt for education-related expenses or employment-related expenses after termination of employment is an illegal restraint on trade. However, the bill would specify that an employer can require an employee to pay for training-related costs if they are incurred pursuant to a union-affiliated apprenticeship program, and an employer may require an employee to pay the cost of maintaining professional licensure required by the state.
- In addition, the bill would add section 16609 to the Business and Professions Code, prohibiting employers from imposing any penalty, fee, or cost on an employee or independent contractor for terminating the employment relationship, including, but not limited to, replacement hire fee, retraining fee, reimbursement for immigration or visa-related costs, liquidated damages, lost goodwill or lost profits.
- Further, this bill would add Section 6090.5 to the Business and Professions Code to sanction any attorneys with suspension, disbarment or other discipline if they enter into a void non-compete agreement with an employee, prospective employee, or former employee or present such an agreement to an employee or applicant or attempt to enforce such an agreement. (It is unclear whether this provision would sanction attorneys only for actions with respect to their own employees, or whether it would also sanction attorneys for working on behalf of a client to attempt to enforce the client's non-compete agreement.)
- The bill would also add another enforcement mechanism for the rule against non-compete agreements. Specifically, the bill would add Section 926 to the Labor Code. This new section would provide that any contract that violates Section 16610 of the Business and Professions Code is void as contrary to public policy, and would give the Labor Commissioner authority to enforce the section, including by issuing a citation against an employer collecting civil penalties, and filing a civil action. This new section would also allow a person, including a local government or employee representative, to bring a civil action on behalf of the person or other persons similarly situated to enforce the section.

Second, the law would further limit employers' and employees' ability to enter into an employment contract that is governed by a law other than California law. Existing law (Labor Code section 925) prohibits an employer from requiring a California employee to agree to a contract that specifies employment claims would be adjudicated outside of California or deprives the employee of the substantive protection of California state law, unless the employee is individually represented by counsel in negotiating the terms of the agreement. This bill would amend section 925 to provide that an employee is not considered "individually represented by legal counsel" if the attorney was paid for by, or was selected based upon the suggestion of, the employer.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee.

➤ Expansion of Law Against Non-Compete Agreements (SB 699)

Like AB 747, this bill would expand California's existing law against non-compete agreements (Business and Professions Code sections 16600 to 16607). However, SB 699 would take a slightly more limited approach.

First, it would add section 16600.5 to the Business and Professions Code to establish that any contract that is void under California law would be unenforceable regardless of where and when the contract was signed. It would expressly prohibit an employer from attempting to enforce a contract that is void as a restraint on trade regardless of whether the contract was signed and the employment was maintained outside of California.

Second, and like AB 747, this bill would clarify that an employer is prohibited from entering into a contract that presents an employee or prospective employee with any void non-compete agreement and would specify that an employer may not attempt to enforce such a contract (in a new section 16608 to the Business and Professions Code). The bill would specify that if an employer enters into an agreement that the employer knows or reasonably should know is prohibited commits a civil violation, and the Attorney General or employee may bring an action to enforce the section. An employee or prospective employee could bring an action for injunctive relief and for the recovery of actual damages and penalties, along with attorneys' fees and costs.

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

➤ Clarification/Expansion of Law Against Non-Competes (AB 1076)

Like AB 747 and SB 699, this bill seeks to clarify and expand the prohibition on non-compete agreements but is less specific than either. First, this bill would codify the holding of Edwards v. Arthur Andersen LLP (2008) 44 Cal.4th 937, that existing law voids the application of any non-compete agreement in the employment context that does not satisfy an exception in the law. This does not change the law but is simply a declaration of existing law.

Second, this bill would make it unlawful to include a noncompete clause in an employment contract or to require an employee to enter into a non-compete agreement, if the agreement does not satisfy an exception set forth in the statute. The bill specifies that a violation would be unfair competition under the Unfair Competition Law (Bus. & Prof. Code section 17200).

Status: Pending in the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee.

8. Cal-WARN Act Changes (AB 1356)

This bill would make a number of changes to California's version of the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Act (CalWARN, Labor Code section 1400, et seq.) including regarding the length of notice required, the definitions of those affected, and the use of severance agreements. For instance, it would increase from 60 days to 90 days the period for employers to provide required notices regarding a mass layoff, relocation or termination (as defined in section 1400) before the order takes effect. It would also preclude employers from utilizing compliance with CalWARN in connection with a severance agreement and waiver of an employee's right to claims.

The bill would change the definition of "covered establishment." The current law defines a "covered establishment as any industrial or commercial facility or part thereof that employes, or has employed within the preceding 12 months, 75 or more persons. The new bill would revise this definition to remove the reference to "industrial or commercial facility," and simply state that a covered establishment is "place of employment." It would also specify that a "covered establishment" may be a single location or a group of locations, including any facilities located in the state of California.

It would also change the definition of "employer" to include a client employer of a labor contractor, and the definition of "employee" to include a person employed by a labor contractor and performing labor with the client employer for at least six months of the 12-month period preceding the date on which notice is required. "Labor Contractor" would mean an individual or entity that supplies, either with or without a contract, a client employer with workers to perform labor within he client employer's usual course of business.

The bill would also revise the definition of "mass layoff" to include a layoff of 50 or more employees at or reporting to a covered establishment. This appears aimed at resolving any confusion as to whether the layoff of remote workers "counts" in determining applicability of the law.

The bill would also expand the remedies and increase the liability for failure to provide the required notices. For instance, in light of the new 90-day notice period, it would make a conforming change to 90 days for the calculation of the employer's liability if the notice is not provided. Second, a proposed new subsection to Labor Code section 1402 appears to require that labor contractor employees are entitled to the same amount of backpay and the value of the cost of any lost benefits, because it specifies that the labor contractor shall remit the payment provided by the client employer in the full amount calculated pursuant to the damages subdivision of Section 1402.

Lastly, it would make several changes regarding the use of severance agreements in the context of a mass layoff, relocation or termination. First, it would expressly prohibit and render void any general release, waiver of claims or non-disparagement or nondisclosure agreements conditioned on the employer's payment of amounts for which the employer is liable under section 1402. The bill would also specify that any employer who includes such a general release, waiver of claims, or nondisparagement or nondisclosure agreements as a condition of such payments will be subject to a civil penalty up to $500 per violation. Second, employers required to provide notice under section 1401 would be prohibited from offering a separate agreement containing a general release, waiver of claims or non-disparagement or nondisclosure agreement unless it is offered in exchange for consideration in addition to which the employee is already entitled under section 1402 and states in clear and unequivocal language that the consideration being offered is in addition to anything of value to which the individual already is entitled under Section 1402. Any non-complying agreement would be deemed void and unenforceable.

9. Rehiring of Displaced Workers (SB 723)

In April 2021, California enacted SB 93, which created rehire rights for employees in the hospitality and business services industries who had been laid off for reasons related to the COVID-19 pandemic. The bill was codified in a new section 2810.8 of the Labor Code and was set to expire December 31, 2024. This new bill (SB 723) would amend Section 2810.8 to remove the expiration date and remove the requirement that affected employees were laid off due to COVID-19. Thus, under the new bill, covered employees would have a permanent right to recall for practically any layoff or reduction in force.

As a reminder, Section 2810.8 applies to the following businesses (which are defined in detail in the statute): hotels, private clubs, event centers, airport hospitality operations, airport service providers, and building services. The bill does not change the definition of covered businesses, but would change the definition of “laid-off employee” to mean any employee who was employed by the employer for 6 months or more and whose most recent separation from active employment occurred on or after March 4, 2020, and was a result of a public health directive, government shutdown order, lack of business, a reduction in force, or other economic, nondisciplinary reason.

This bill would not change the substantive requirements of Section 2810.8 with respect to laid-off employees (offering re-hire to laid-off employees pursuant to a specified procedure and giving laid-off employees five business days in which to accept or decline the offer; written notice to laid-off employees if the employer declines to recall the laid-off employee on grounds of lack of qualifications; retaining records; non-retaliation). However, because of the new definition of “laid-off employee,” the scope of the statute’s rehire obligation would be dramatically increased – it could conceivably cover any layoff or reduction in force, and not only those related to COVID-19. Moreover, it would apply indefinitely into the future. And because of the new definition, this bill would require employers to offer rehire to any employee laid off after March 4, 2020, regardless of the date a new position becomes available (even if it is decades after the original layoff).

10. Restrictions on the Use of Artificial Intelligence and Automated Decision Tools (AB 331)

This bill is a part of recent trend reflecting increased concern regarding the use of artificial intelligence (AI) and Automated Decision Tools (ADTs) in ways that may discriminate against workers, students, participants in the criminal justice system, and other users of public services. The bill would create a new chapter in the Business and Professions Code to regulate ADTs and impose requirements on both the users of such tools and the developers of such tools. While employers who use ADTs are covered by this bill, the scope of the proposed new law is not limited to the employment context. California employers thus may also need to consider possible impacts of this bill on their use of ADTs with respect to consumers and other members of the public in addition to their employees.

- What is an Automated Decision Tool?

The bill defines and Automated Decision Tool (ADT) as a system or service that uses artificial intelligence and which has been specifically developed and marketed to make, or be a controlling factor in making, consequential decisions. “Artificial intelligence” means a machine-based system that can, for a given set of human-defined objectives, make predictions, recommendations, or decisions influencing a real or virtual environment.

“Consequential decisions” are defined to be decisions or judgments that have a legal, material, or similarly significant effect on an individual’s life relating to the impact of, access to, or the cost, terms, or availability of a number of things, including:

- Employment, worker management, or self-employment, including but not limited to pay or promotion, hiring or termination, and automated task allocation;
 - Education;
 - Housing or lodging and essential utilities;
 - Family planning and health care or health insurance;
 - Financial services;
 - The criminal justice system;
 - Legal services and voting; and
 - Access to benefits or services or assignment of penalties.
- Who Would Have New Obligations Under this Bill?

This bill would apply to both “Deployers” and “Developers” of ADTs. A “Deployer” is a person, partnership, state or local government agency, or corporation that uses an ADT to make a consequential decision. A “Developer” is a person, partnership, state or local government agency, or corporation that designs, codes or produces an ADT or substantially modifies AI for the purpose of making, or being a controlling factor in making, consequential decisions.

Thus, because of the breadth of the definitions of “Deployer” and “Consequential Decision,” this new bill apparently would apply to (among others) any employer in California who uses an ADT to make practically any decision about any aspect of employment or worker management.

- Obligation to Perform Impact Assessment

All Developers and all Deployers who have at least 25 employees or use an ADT that impacts more than 999 people per year would be required to prepare an annual “impact assessment” for any ADT they use or develop. The first such assessments would be required to be completed by January 1, 2025. The bill includes detailed lists of the elements of the “impact assessments,” which include (but are not limited to): a statement of the purpose of the ADT and its intended benefits, uses, and deployment contexts; a description of the ADT’s outputs and how they are used in making consequential decisions; a summary of the data collected and processed by the ADT; an analysis of the potential adverse impacts on the basis of sex, race, color, ethnicity, religion, age, national origin, limited English proficiency, disability, veteran status, or genetic information; and a description of the safeguards implemented to address reasonably foreseeable risks of algorithmic discrimination from the use of the ADT. “Algorithmic discrimination” would be defined to mean the condition in which an ADT contributes to unjustified differential treatment or impacts disfavoring people based on their actual or perceived race, color, ethnicity, sex, religion, age, national origin, limited English proficiency, disability, veteran status, genetic information, reproductive health, or any other classification protected by state law.

In addition, Developers would be required to provide a statement to a Deployer regarding the intended uses of the ADT and documentation regarding, among other things, the known limitations of the ADT, including any reasonably foreseeable risks of algorithmic discrimination arising from its intended use. In its impact statement, the Deployer would be required to describe the extent to which their use of the ADT is consistent with or varies from the Developers' statement of intended use.

Developers and Deployers would be required to provide the impact assessments to the Civil Rights Department (CRD) within 60 days of completion. A violation of this section would result in an administrative fine up to $10,000 per day. The CRD would be authorized to share impact assessments with other state entities.

The bill would prohibit cities and counties from separately regulating the performance of an impact assessment.

- Prohibition on Algorithmic Discrimination

The bill would specifically prohibit the use of an ADT in a manner that contributes to algorithmic discrimination.

Employers should note that even without this bill becoming law, it is possible that use of AI or an ADT could lead to a discrimination claim. In May 2022, the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and Department of Justice issued guidance regarding the use of algorithms and artificial intelligence to assess job applicants and employees and warned that use of AI may violate the Americans with Disabilities Act. (The Americans with Disabilities Act and the Use of Software, Algorithms, and Artificial Intelligence to Assess Job Applicants and Employees | U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission \(eoc.gov\)) and Guidance Document: Algorithms, Artificial Intelligence, and Disability Discrimination in Hiring \(ada.gov\)) And in March 2022, California's Fair Employment and Housing Counsel issued proposed amendments to the regulations implementing the Fair Employment and Housing Act which would regulate the use of Automated Decision Systems in employment and specifically define the ways in use of such systems could constitute unlawful discrimination. (AttachB-ModtoEmployRegAutomated-DecisionSystems.pdf \(ca.gov\))

- Disclosure/Notification Obligations

All Developers and all Deployers (regardless of the number of employees) would be required to notify any natural person that is the subject of a consequential decision that an ADT is being used to make, or will be a controlling factor in making, the consequential decision. The disclosure must be made at or before the time the ADT is used to make a consequential decision. And the disclosure would be required to include a statement of the purpose of the ADT, contact information for the deployer, and a plain language description of the ADT that includes a description of any human components and how any automated component is used to inform a consequential decision.

- Accommodation Requirement

If a consequential decision is made solely based on the output of an automated tool, a Deployer (regardless of the number of employees) would be required to accommodate a natural person's request to not be subject to the ADT and to be subject to an alternative selection process or accommodation if technically feasible.

- Creation of Governance Programs

All Developers and all Deployers who have at least 25 employees or use an ADT that impacts more than 999 people per year would be required to establish, document, implement, and maintain a governance program with reasonable administrative and technical safeguards to map, measure, manage, and govern the reasonably foreseeable risks of algorithmic discrimination associated with the use or intended use of an ADT. The bill includes specific requirements for the governance program, including designation of at least one employee to be responsible for overseeing and maintaining the governance program and compliance with the new law, conducting an annual and comprehensive review of policies, practices, and procedures to ensure compliance, and maintaining results of an impact assessment for at least two years.

The bill prohibits cities and counties from separately regulating the performance of an impact assessment.

- Artificial Intelligence Policy

Every Developer and Deployer would be required to make publicly available, in a readily accessible manner, a clear artificial intelligence policy with a summary of the types of ADTs in use or made available to others, and how the Deployer or Developer manages the reasonably foreseeable risks of algorithmic discrimination.

- Enforcement and Potential Penalties/Liability

In addition to the penalties for failure to submit an impact assessment, Deployers and Developers would be subject to civil actions brought by "a person" for any violation of the new law, in which a court could award compensatory damages, injunctive relief, declaratory relief, and attorney's fees and costs. There is an extremely narrow safe harbor provision – prior to commencing an action for injunctive relief, a person must provide 45 days' written notice, and if a Developer or Deployer demonstrates to the court within 45 days of receiving the written notice that it has cured a noticed violation and provided the person who gave the notice an express written statement that the violation has been cured and that no further violations shall occur, a claim for injunctive relief may not be maintained (unless the alleged violation is a repeat of a violation previously cured).

Status: Pending in the Assembly Privacy and Consumer Protection Committee.

ADDITIONAL PENDING BILLS

Harassment/Discrimination/Retaliation

Expansion of Retaliation Protections (SB 497)

This bill would amend multiple Labor Code provisions to expand protections against retaliation and/or increase the statutory penalties available. For instance, it would amend the current retaliation protections in Labor Code section 98.6 (dealing with wage-related complaints) and Labor Code section 1197.5 (Equal Pay Act complaints) to state that any adverse actions taken within 90 days of a complaint will create a rebuttable presumption of retaliation in favor of the employee. Further, while California's general whistleblowing provision (Labor Code section 1102.5) presently authorizes a civil penalty up to $10,000 for each violation, this bill would allow $10,000 to be awarded to each employee for each violation, in addition to any other remedies.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Local Enforcement of the Fair Employment and Housing Act (SB 16)

While Government Code section 12993 presently provides that the Civil Rights Division (CRD) is solely responsible for enforcing the FEHA, this bill is intended to address concerns the CRD is underfunded and often unable to enforce the claims received. Accordingly, it would clarify that the FEHA does not limit or restrict efforts by local entities (including cities, counties, and political subdivisions) to enforce state law prohibiting discrimination against classes of persons covered by the FEHA. It would also direct the CRD to promulgate regulations governing local enforcement of the FEHA and to require local jurisdictions to proceed according to these regulations if they choose to pursue local enforcement of the FEHA. These forthcoming regulations would be intended to ensure consistent application of employment discrimination law, protect complainants against inadvertent loss of federal or state legal claims and avoid duplication of investigatory work.

Status: Passed the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Prohibition Against Caste Discrimination (SB 403)

Citing concerns about widespread "caste discrimination" in certain parts of the world that the author believes has spread to work, school and places of worship in California, this bill would amend numerous California civil rights statutes (including the FEHA and the Unruh Act) to preclude discrimination based on "caste." For FEHA purposes, Government Code section 12926 would define caste as "a system of social stratification where each position is characterized by hereditary status, endogamy, social barriers and social exclusion." These changes would be deemed declarative of existing law and therefore apply retroactively if enacted.

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

Prohibition on Inquiring about an Applicant's Prior Cannabis Use (SB 700)

In 2022, California enacted a new law (AB 2188, set to take effect January 1, 2024), precluding discrimination based upon an applicant's or employee's use of cannabis off the job and away from the workplace, or based upon a drug-screening test revealing non-psychoactive cannabis metabolites (as opposed to THC revealing active impairment). This bill would further amend new Government Code section 12954 to preclude employers from requesting information from an applicant for employment relating to the applicant's prior use of cannabis. Notably, while AB 2188 had stated that its limitations on drug-testing or employment decisions regarding non-workplace usage would not apply in certain circumstances (i.e., in building and construction trades or where required by enumerated federal laws), SB 700 does not appear to include these exceptions for its broad prohibition on inquiries about prior cannabis usage.

Status: Pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Privilege for Communications re: Complaints of Sexual Assault, Harassment, or Discrimination (AB 933)

Civil Code section 47, subdivision (c) presently provides qualified or conditional privilege protection against a defamation claim for a complaint of sexual harassment by an employee, without malice, to an employer based upon credible evidence, as well as communications between the employer and interested persons, without malice, regarding a complaint of sexual harassment.

AB 933 is motivated by the author's concern that this protection is not broad enough, and should cover any communications made by an individual who has experienced an incident of sexual assault, harassment, or discrimination, regardless of whether they have filed any formal complaint. The bill was prompted, at least in part, by the case of Pamela Lopez, a lobbyist who publicly accused Assemblymember Matt Dababneh of sexual assault, and who was later sued for defamation by Assemblymember Dababneh.

Accordingly, this bill would add a new section 47.1 to the Civil Code. It would specify that a communication made by an individual, without malice, regarding an incident of sexual assault, harassment, or discrimination would be privileged under Section 47. The bill specifies that this rule shall apply only to an individual that has, or at any time had, a reasonable basis to file a complaint of sexual assault, harassment, or discrimination, regardless of whether the complaint was filed. Further, it defines the privileged "communication" as "factual information related to an incident of sexual assault, harassment, or discrimination experienced by the individual making the communication, including but not limited to: sexual assault; sexual harassment; workplace harassment or discrimination, failure to prevent workplace harassment or discrimination, or retaliation for reporting workplace harassment or discrimination; an act harassment, discrimination, or retaliation in housing; or an act of sexual harassment under the Education Code." Notably, this protection extends beyond communications regarding sexual assault and sexual harassment to cover communications relating to all workplace harassment or discrimination, failure to prevent workplace harassment or discrimination, and retaliation for reporting workplace harassment or discrimination.

To further safeguard against defamation claims regarding the types of allegations in this new privilege, AB 933 would also specifically authorize a prevailing defendant (i.e., the speaker accused of making a defamatory statement) to recover their reasonable attorneys' fees and costs plus treble damages for any harm caused as well as potentially punitive damages under Civil Code section 3294.

Status: Passed the Assembly Judiciary Committee and is pending on the Assembly Floor.

Veterans' Hiring Preference for Private Employers (SB 73)

While the FEHA presently allows employers to grant a hiring preference in favor of Vietnam War-era veterans and as a defense against sex discrimination claims, this bill (entitled the Voluntary Veterans' Preference Employment Policy Act) would update and expand this exemption for almost all veterans (regardless of when served) and as a defense against all FEHA discrimination claims.

Such a hiring preference would be deemed not to violate any state or local equal employment opportunity law, including the FEHA, if used uniformly and not established for purposes of or having the effect of unlawfully discriminating against any group protected by the FEHA, including against veterans who are members of any other FEHA-protected classification.

"Veterans" would be defined as any person who served full time in the Armed Forces in time of national emergency or state military emergency or during any expedition of the Armed Forces and was discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable.

Employers adopting such a preference policy would need to annually report to the Civil Rights Department the number of veterans hired in that reporting year under this policy and any demographic information the department requires. An employer's failure to submit this report would nullify the preference's protections for those hiring decisions.

Employers with a veterans' preference employment policy would be permitted to accept the following as proof of an individual's status as a veteran: (1) a DD Form 214, Member-4; (2) a current and valid driver's license with the word "veteran" printed on its face; or (3) a current and valid identification card with the word "veteran" printed on its face.

A similar bill (SB 665) unanimously passed the Legislature in 2021 before being vetoed by Governor Newsom, and similar preference laws have been enacted in nearly 40 states.

Status: Pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Workgroup to Address Californians with Disabilities in Connection with Workforce and Employment (AB 222)

This bill addresses a concern that the Americans with Disabilities Act and state laws for the protection of people with disabilities are outdated. The bill would require the Civil Rights Department to convene a workgroup to make recommendations to the Legislature for the development of disability laws and policies related to workforce and employment, including ensuring that all sectors of California's labor, workforce, and employment are covered by civil rights laws to the maximum extent possible, and improving the effective enforcement of civil rights laws in California's workplaces. The workgroup would be required to submit a report to the Legislature by July 1, 2025, and the Legislature would be required to hold public hearings within one year of submission of the report.

Status: Unanimously passed the Assembly Judiciary Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

Evaluation of Gender Discrimination in State Agencies (AB 549)

This bill would require all state agencies, in consultation with the Commission on the Status of Women and Girls, to conduct an evaluation of their own departments to ensure the state does not discriminate against women through the allocation of funding and delivery of services. State agencies would be required to report their findings and recommendations on January 1, 2025, and every 2 years thereafter.

Status: Passed the Assembly Judiciary Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

Utility Worker Protections (SB 705)

This bill is motivated by concern that utility workers, who provide essential services to California residents and businesses, have experienced open hostility and threats since the 2017-2018 wildfires and 2019 power shutoffs. Accordingly, the bill would require the Public Utilities Commission to work with electrical corporations, gas corporations, and the unions representing impacted workers to develop and conduct a five-year public campaign to raise awareness and understanding around the harassment of utility workers and contractors in the state. The commission would be required to evaluate the effectiveness of the campaign each year and publish an annual report on its website. The program would be funded through fines collected from electrical and gas corporations.

Status: Pending in the Senate Energy, Utilities and Communications Committee.

Leaves of Absence/Time Off/Accommodation Requests

Increased Paid Sick Leave for Healthcare Employees (AB 1359)

While California's paid sick leave requirements are generally enumerated in Labor Code section 245 et seq., this bill would add new Labor Code section 246.6 establishing procedures governing the accrual and use of paid sick leave days for employees of a covered health care facility (as defined). For instance, it would permit accrued paid sick days to carry over to the following year of employment for these employees, would prohibit covered health care facilities from limiting an employee's use of accrued paid sick days, and would exempt those employees from certain existing limits on the use of accrued paid sick days. Employers wishing to avoid these accrual carryovers or to rely upon their own paid sick leave or paid time off policy would be required to provide 56 hours or seven days of paid time off that may be used for the same purposes and conditions as California's paid sick leave provisions.

An “employee of a covered health facility” is specifically defined to include nineteen different types of clinics, facilities or worksites (including with cross-references to various Health and Safety Code definitions), so health care employers should review these closely to determine if they apply. However, this new Labor Code section would not apply to employees of a covered health care facility who are subject to an existing collective bargaining agreement.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee.

Veterans Day Off for Veterans (SB 855)

This bill would amend the FEHA to make it an unlawful employment practice to require a “veteran” to work on “Veterans Day” (i.e., November 11th) provided three requirements are met. First, the employee must provide 21 days’ notice before November 11th that the employee intends to take November 11th as a holiday. Second, the employee must provide the employer with proof of the employee’s veteran status (including but not limited to a DD Form 214 or other Armed Forces certificate of discharge). Third, the employee’s absence – either alone or in combination with other veteran employees’ absences that day – does not negatively impact public health or safety or cause significant economic or operational disruption (as determined by regulations the Civil Rights Department would develop). An otherwise eligible employee who is denied the day off because of the third factor above (i.e., impact on public health, safety or the employer’s operations) would be entitled to choose another day off within the next full year to observe Veterans Day, subject to the employer’s approval.

For purposes of this law, “veteran” would mean (1) a former member of the United States Armed Forces; (2) a former or current member of the United States Armed Forces reserved who has been called into active military service of the United States; or (3) a former or current member of a California National Guard unit who has been called into active military service of the United States.

This new law also would not require or prevent employers from providing employees with a paid holiday in observation of Veterans Day.

Status: Pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Religious and Cultural Observances for State Employees (SB 461)

This bill would amend Government Code section 19853 regarding specified and personal holidays for state employees. While presently a state employee who works on a state holiday may elect to receive eight hours of straight time pay and eight hours of holiday credit, SB 461 would allow the employee to elect to receive eight hours of holiday credit for religious or cultural observance in lieu of personal holiday credit for at least 23 specifically enumerated cultural or heritage celebrations (e.g., Yom Kippur, Diwali, Eid al-Fitr, etc.).

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Human Resources/Workplace Policies

Prohibiting Mandatory Employee Attendance at Certain Employer-Sponsored Meetings (SB 399)

Entitled the “California Worker Freedom from Employer Intimidation Act,” this bill would enact new Labor Code section 1137 to preclude employers from requiring employees to attend employer meetings regarding certain topics and create new remedies for violations of these prohibitions. Specifically, it would prohibit employers from requiring employees to attend an employer-sponsored meeting or participate in any communications with the employer or its agents or representatives, the purpose of which is intended to communicate the employer’s opinion about religious matters, political matters or certain rights guaranteed by the United States or California Constitutions.

“Political matters” would be defined as “matters relating to elections for political office, political parties, legislation, regulation and the decision to join or support any political party or political or labor organization.” “Religious matters” would be defined as “matters relating to religious affiliation and practice and the decision to join or support any religious organization or association.” The rights guaranteed by the United States and California Constitutions would include, but not be limited to, the rights of freedom of speech, freedom of association and freedom of religion.

This bill would not prohibit the following: (1) employers or their agents from communicating to employees information the employer is required by law to convey, but only to the extent of that legal requirement; (2) employers or their agents from communicating information that is necessary for employees to perform their job duties; or (3) higher education institutions or their agents from meeting with or participating in communications with employees that are part of coursework, any symposia or an academic program at that institution.

This prohibition also would not apply to the following: (1) religious entities (as enumerated) with respect to speech on religious matters to employees who perform work connected with the activities of the religious entity; (2) a political organization or party with respect to communication of the employer’s political tenets or purposes; or (3) an educational institution requiring a student or instructor to attend lectures on political or religious matters that are part of the institution’s regular coursework.

The Division of Labor Standards Enforcement will be responsible for enforcing this section and responding to employee complaints. However, employees who have been subjected or threatened to be subjected to discharge, discrimination or retaliation or other adverse action for refusing to attend a prohibited employer-sponsored meeting may bring a civil action for damages, punitive damages, and reasonable attorneys’ fees. In such actions, an employee or their exclusive representative may also petition for injunctive relief. Because the bill creates a new section of the Labor Code, it could also lead to PAGA liability.

Student Loan Repayment Assistance under California Tax Code (AB 509)

While California and federal law presently allow employers to annually provide up to $5,250 of payments for an employee's ongoing educational assistance that is exempted from state and federal income taxes, this bill would change the definition of "educational assistance" to include payments for educational loans incurred by the employee for their own education. In this regard, it is like the recent provisions in the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act that enable employers to provide tax-favored repayment assistance for existing student loan debt that would not be considered income for federal income tax purposes.

Similar bills have been introduced on several occasions, including AB 2478 (2017), AB 152 (2019), and AB 1729 (2022), which passed the Tax and Revenue Committee before stalling.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Revenue and Tax Committee.

Changes to Wage Theft Prevention Act Notices (AB 636)

Existing law – the "Wage Theft Prevention Act" (Labor Code section 2810.5) requires employers to provide a written notice to employees at the time of hiring with certain specified information. This bill would require the notice to include information about the existence of a federal or state emergency or disaster declaration applicable to the county or counties where the employee is to be employed, that was issued within 30 days before the employee's first day of employment, that may affect their health and safety during employment.

In addition, the bill would require that any notice given to employees admitted under the federal H-2A agricultural visa program must include more detailed information, including information about pay rates, frequency of pay, rest periods, meal breaks, compensation for travel time, and many more topics. The bill contemplates that the Labor Commissioner would provide a template for such disclosures.

Expansion of Workplace Temporary Restraining Orders (SB 428)

Enacted in 1994 (ABX 68, and codified at Code of Civil Procedure section 527.8), the Workplace Violence Safety Act authorizes employers to seek a temporary restraining order and injunction on behalf of employees who suffer unlawful violence or a creditable threat of violence (as defined) that can reasonably be construed to have been carried out or to have been carried out at the workplace. Citing concerns that employers should be able to seek such protections before the conduct escalates to violence, this bill would also allow employers to seek a TRO and injunction on behalf of an employee who has suffered "harassment." For purposes of this bill, "harassment" is defined as "a knowing and willful course of conduct directed at a specific person that seriously alarms, annoys, or harasses the person, and that serves no legitimate purpose," and the "course of conduct must be that which would cause a reasonable person to suffer substantial emotional distress, and must actually cause substantial emotional distress."

While presently section 527.8 precludes any court order prohibiting constitutionally protected speech or activities, this bill would also specify that any such order also cannot abridge labor-related protections in the National Labor Relations Act or the California Government Code.

To address concerns TRO's or injunctive relief targeting harassment might abridge free speech, particularly in the public employer context, an employer seeking such relief would be required to provide "clear and convincing" evidence of harassment (as opposed to simply "reasonable proof" for unlawful violence or threats of violence) and that the requested order would not violate the protected items noted above.

Domestic Violence Prevention Posters (SB 526)

This bill would require the Department of Industrial Relations to develop and prepare a poster regarding domestic violence prevention that employers may display in their workplaces and make it available to employers for download on the internet. The bill does not purport to require employees to display the anticipated poster.

Employer Electronic Notification Requirements of Employee Benefits (AB 1355)

This bill would allow California employers the option to provide certain required documents to employees via email, but only if the recipient has opted into receipt of electronic statements. The bill would separately allow electronic distribution of: (1) required notifications regarding the federal and California earned income tax credit and (2) information about unemployment benefits claims, but only if the employee or unemployed individual opts in to receipt of electronic statements or materials.

The bill does not specify whether employees must specifically opt into receipt of each type of document, or whether a generic opt-in to receipt of electronic messages would suffice.

Limitations on Downloading Social Media Programs on State-Owned Devices (AB 227/SB 74)

Echoing similar proposals at the federal level to limit state employees from downloading "Tik Tok," these bills would prohibit applications for social media platforms from being downloaded on state-owned or state-issued devices if certain conditions are met. Broadly speaking, these conditions would include that an "entity of concern" or a "country of concern" (as defined) owns, directly or indirectly controls, or holds 10 percent or more of the voting shares of the social media company that owns the application. While SB 74 would define "countries of concern" as any country identified by the International Traffic in Arms Regulations, AB 227 specifically identifies them as follows: (1) Venezuela; (2) North Korea; (3) Iran; (4) China; (5) Cuba and the (6) Russian Federation.

Status: AB 227 is pending in the Assembly Privacy Committee; SB 74 is pending in the Senate Governmental Organization Committee.

Proposed Standard to Require Women’s Restrooms (AB 521)

This bill is motivated by the concern that women are underrepresented in the trades, and that one barrier faced by women is access to clean and secure restrooms on jobsites. This bill would require the Division of Occupational Safety and Health to submit a rulemaking proposal to consider a regulation to require at least one women’s designated restroom at any jobsite with two or more required water closets. The deadline for submitting the proposal would be December 1, 2025.

Human Trafficking Notice – Pediatric Care Facilities (AB 1740)

Existing law requires specified businesses (including airports, hotels, etc.) to post a notice from the Department of Justice relating to slavery and human trafficking. This bill would extend the posting requirement to facilities that provide pediatric care.

Status: Unanimously passed the Assembly Judiciary Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

Wage and Hour

Health Care Worker Minimum Wage (SB 525)

While the current statewide minimum wage is $15.00 an hour, this bill would establish, beginning January 1, 2024, a special minimum wage for health care workers of $25.00 per hour for hours worked in covered health care employment, as defined. It would further provide that the health care worker minimum wage constitutes the state minimum wage for covered health care employment for all purposes under the Labor Code and the Industrial Welfare Commission Wage Orders and would be enforceable either by the Labor Commissioner or by the covered worker in a civil action.

It would further require that to qualify as exempt from the payment of minimum wage and overtime, an employee paid on a salary basis must earn a monthly salary equivalent of at least two times the health care worker minimum wage for full-time employment. This industry-specific minimum wage would also be adjusted annually with the Director of Finance calculating by August 1st the greater of either 3.5 percent or the changes in the Consumer Price Index. The result of these changes would then be rounded to the nearest ten cents and take effect on the following January 1st.

For purposes of this new minimum wage, “covered health care employment” would be defined as either (1) all work performed on the premises of any health care facility, regardless of the employer’s identity; or (2) all paid work providing health care services (as defined) performed for any person that owns, controls, or operates a covered health care facility, regardless of location. As currently drafted, this could theoretically apply to any worker who performs any work at a health care facility, including workers making deliveries, catering companies, etc. It would not include, however, employment as an outside salesperson or any work performed in the public sector where the primary duties performed are not health care services.

“Health care services” would also be broadly defined to mean “patient care-related services, including nursing, caregiving, services provided by medical residents, interns or fellow, technical and ancillary services, janitorial work, housekeeping, groundskeeping, guard duties, business office clerical work, food services, laundry, medical coding and billing, call center and warehouse work, scheduling, and gift shop work, but only where such services directly or indirectly support patient care.” Lastly, “covered health care facility” would be specifically defined to include twenty-one different types of clinics, hospitals or facilities, so a potentially affected health care provider should consult this list contained in proposed Labor Code section 1182.14(b)(2).

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Individualized Alternative Workweek Schedules (SB 703)

Entitled the Workplace Flexibility Act of 2023, this bill would allow individual employees to obtain a so-called “alternative workweek schedule” (e.g., a 4 day/10 hour schedule rather than a 5 day/eight hour schedule) allowing them to work up to ten hours a day without daily overtime but without complying with the stringent requirements for such schedules when proposed by an employer (i.e., secret ballot election, work unit approval, etc.). Hours worked in excess of ten hours would be entitled to overtime and the employee or employer would have the ability to discontinue the schedule by giving written notice.

Similar versions of this bill have been introduced on numerous occasions but have consistently stalled in the face of labor opposition.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Pilot Program to Test 32-Hour Workweek (AB 1100)

An emerging discussion has been whether the standard 40-hour workweek should be reduced to 32 hours, including via proposed new laws at the federal and state level. Rather than mandate such a change now, this bill would establish a 32-Hour Workweek Pilot Program under the administration of the Department of Industrial Relations. Beginning July 1, 2024, the DIR would be able to award grants to employers with five or more employees who apply for such grants and adopt programs providing hourly employees the option to work a 32-hour workweek. Employers receiving such grants would be required to implement a 32-hour workweek within 90 days and to report within the first six months and upon completion of the pilot program the impact of this program upon employee and employer satisfaction. The DIR would also be required to report its findings regarding this program to the Legislature.

Status: Pending in the Assembly.

Reliance on DLSE Opinion Letters (SB 592)

The Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (DLSE) occasionally publishes opinion letters and enforcement policies. This information is available on its website, and employers sometimes rely on the opinion letters and enforcement policies when the law and regulations are unclear. However, courts are not bound to follow the DLSE's opinions or policies; thus, there is a chance that an employer who complies with the DLSE's recommendations might still be found to be in violation of the law.

This bill would prohibit the imposition of punishment or liability for costs on a person who has relied on a published opinion letter or an enforcement policy of the DLSE that is displayed on the division's website, except for restitution of unpaid wages. The bill would require the person asserting the defense to have acted in good faith and to have relied upon, and conformed to, the applicable opinion letter or enforcement policy, and to have provided true and correct information to the division. A person asserting reliance on this defense would also need to post a bond with the applicable court or administrative body in the amount of the reasonable estimate of alleged unpaid wages resulting from reliance on the opinion letter or policy.

The bill would also require the Labor Commissioner to translate each of its internet websites, and all materials available on those websites, into Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, and Vietnamese by January 1, 2026.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Expand PAGA Notice Obligations for Aggrieved Employees (SB 330)

The Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 (PAGA) currently requires an aggrieved employee or representative to provide notice of a claim to the employer and the Labor and Workforce Development Agency (LWDA) before filing a lawsuit. The notice must identify the specific provisions of the Labor Code that have allegedly been violated, and facts and theories that support the alleged violation. Employers have a right to cure certain violations.

This bill would amend Labor Code section 2699.3 to require that each PAGA notice (other than some related to safety in employment) must include the relevant facts, legal authorities, and authorities supporting each violation. It would also require that the notice inform the employer of any right to cure the alleged violation and would require an estimate of the number of employees on whose behalf relief is being sought and a description of the harm alleged to have been suffered by each employee. Finally, if the aggrieved employee or representative is seeking relief on behalf of 10 or more people, the bill would require them to verify the notice under penalty of perjury, and a copy of the proposed complaint must be attached to the notice.

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

Alternative Enforcement of Labor Code Provisions (AB 594)

Citing claims that employers continue to engage in wage theft and that existing resources are insufficient to protect workers, this bill would provide several alternative Labor Code enforcement mechanisms. First, it would authorize a “public prosecutor” (e.g., a district attorney, city attorney, county counsel, etc.) to pursue civil or criminal actions for Labor Code violations or enforce the Labor Code’s provisions, and without specific direction from the state agency (e.g., DLSE, Cal-OSHA, etc.). While the public prosecutor would be limited to redressing violations within their geographic jurisdiction (unless authorized to enforce statewide), they would be entitled to also recover reasonable attorneys’ fees and expert costs, and to seek injunctive relief to prevent continued Labor Code violations.

Any arbitration agreement between the employer and its employees that purported to limit representative actions or to mandate private arbitration would be deemed inapplicable to the public prosecutor’s authority, and any motion to compel the public prosecutor to arbitrate would be deemed frivolous. Further any appeal of the arbitration motion denial or other court proceedings shall not stay the public prosecutor’s enforcement actions.

Secondly, in 2011, California enacted SB 459 (codified in Labor Code section 226.8), creating a procedure for the Labor and Workforce Development Agency or a court to examine potential willful misclassification of an individual as an independent contractor instead of an employee. This bill would create an alternative process (to be codified in new Labor Code section 226.9) authorizing the Labor Commissioner to issue determinations regarding such willful misclassification and the issuance of a civil penalty via a citation. For purposes of issuing, contesting and enforcing judgments for these Labor Commissioner citations, the same procedures in current Labor Code section 1197.1 would apply. However, AB 594 would also entitle an employee, for the same violation, to recovery under this new provision or by enforcement of a civil penalty under the Private Attorneys General Act (PAGA). The Labor Commissioner would be authorized to enforce these provisions by informal hearing or in a civil suit.

Recommendation re: Linking Minimum Wage and Housing Costs (SB 352)

The proponents of this bill posit that a minimum wage earner would have to work more than two full-time jobs to afford a one-bedroom apartment in most major markets in California. The bill would require several state government officials to examine housing costs by county, regionally and in the state and create a formula to determine how much the local minimum wage must be for a full-time minimum wage worker to afford a decent standard of living, including appropriate housing and basic expenses. The California Workforce Development Board would also annually recommend to the Legislature the minimum wage needed for these purposes, and to annually adjust figures to account for inflation.

Working Group to Recommend Minimum Wage Levels (AB 1516)

While historically the Legislature has determined minimum wage levels – including via SB 3 (enacted in 2016) that raised the current statewide minimum wage to $15 an hour – this bill would require the Labor and Workforce Development Agency to convene a working group to study minimum wage-related topics in California. Comprised of representatives from the Labor Commissioner’s office, the EDD, organizations representing low-wage or immigrant workers, and organizations advocating for the rights of incarcerated workers, this working group would be tasked with providing recommendations to the Legislature by July 1, 2024 regarding raising the minimum wage.

Potential Changes to Rest Period Rules for Community-Based Providers (AB 1031)

Existing law requires employers to provide rest breaks to employees during working hours. The length and number of such rest breaks is specified in the Labor Code and applicable Wage Orders. Existing law requires that employees be relieved of all duties during rest periods. Employers who fail to provide required duty-free rest periods must pay employees a penalty equal to one additional hour of pay for each day a required rest period is not provided. There is a limited exception for employees of 24-hour residential care facilities for elderly, blind, or developmentally disabled individuals. This bill would expand that exception to employees providing services in community settings.

Accordingly, new Labor Code section 226.77 would specify that the requirement that an employee be relieved of all duties during a rest period would not apply to employees providing direct support to an individual with an intellectual and developmental disability in an integrated community setting to the extent that the employee providing direct support may be required to maintain general supervision of the consumer during rest periods and may be required to respond to emergencies or health and safety risks of the consumer. If a nonexempt employee covered by this exemption is affirmatively required to interrupt their rest period to respond to the consumer’s needs, another rest period shall be required and permitted reasonably promptly after the circumstances that led to the disruption have passed. If circumstances do not allow for the employee to take such a rest period, the employer shall pay the employee one hour of pay at the employee’s regular rate of pay for the rest period that was not provided.

This exemption would only apply to employees subject to IWC Wage Orders 4-2001 or 5-2001. Employers that provide such community-based services and qualify for this exemption would be required to identify in the employee’s wage statements the total hours or pay owed to an employee on account of a rest period that was not authorized or permitted for purposes of the exceptions noted above.

Indefinite Exemption from “ABC Test” for Licensed Manicurists (SB 451)

This law would extend until January 1, 2030 (instead of the current expiration of January 1, 2025) the exemption from the so-called “ABC Test” for employee classification purposes for certain enumerated professions (e.g., licensed manicurists, estheticians, electrologists, barbers and cosmetologists) who meet certain specified requirements. These working relationships will continue to be governed by the multifactor Borello test for purposes of determining whether the worker is an employee or an independent contractor.

Compensable Time for Obtaining Food Handling Cards (SB 476)

California's Retail Food Code requires a food handler to obtain a food handler card within 30 days of hire and to maintain a valid food handler card for the duration of their employment as a food handler. This bill would require the employer to pay the employee for any cost associated with the employee obtaining a food handler card, including the time it takes for the employee to complete the training, the cost of the food handler certification program, and the time it takes to complete the certification program. Employers would also be required to relieve the employee of all other work duties while the employee is taking the training course and examination. Employers would also be prohibited from conditioning employment on the applicant or employee having an existing food handler card.

The State Department of Public Health will be required, by January 1, 2025, to publish on its website a list of all certified food handler training programs along with the costs. Local public health organizations would also be required to post a link of this page on their internet website or provide the same list on their internet website.

Status: Passed the Senate Health Committee and is pending in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Extension of Joint and Several Liability for Property Services to Public Entities (AB 520)

To address concerns about wage theft in the property service and long-term care industries, in 2015 the California Legislature enacted SB 588 making businesses that contract for services in the property services or long-term care industries jointly and severally liable for certain wage and hour violations by the vendor actually employing the individuals doing the work. This bill would further extend this joint and several liability to public entities that contract for such services in the property service or long-term care industries.

In instances where property services labor is performed in buildings owned or leased by public entities by individuals who are not employees of that public entity, the public entity will be required to allow representatives from a collective bargaining unit representing property service workers to have access to the workers within that building to provide training regarding, amongst other things, workers' rights, workplace health and safety and sexual harassment. For purposes of this section, "property services" would mean janitorial, security guard, valet parking, landscaping, and gardening services.

Payroll Records for Public Works Projects (AB 587)

Existing law requires each contractor and subcontractor on a public works project to keep accurate payroll records, showing the name, address, social security number, work classification, straight time and overtime hours worked each day and week, and the actual per diem wages paid to each journeyman, apprentice, worker, or other employee employed by the contractor or subcontractor in connection with the public work. Existing law specifies that any copy of records made available to a Taft-Hartley trust fund for the purposes of allocating contributions to participants be marked or obliterated only to prevent disclosure of an individual's full social security number, as specified.

This bill would require any copy of records made available for inspection by, or furnished to, a multiemployer Taft-Hartley trust fund or joint labor-management committee be provided on forms provided by the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement or contain the same information as those forms. The bill would specify that copies of electronic certified payroll records do not satisfy payroll records requests made by Taft-Hartley trust funds and joint labor-management committees.

Status: Unanimously passed the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

Layoffs/Establishment Closures

Expanded Obligations to Notify and Rehire Workers Laid Off Due to Closure of a "Chain" Establishment (SB 627)

Entitled the Displaced Worker Retention and Transfer Rights, this bill would impose new obligations on an employer operating a chain of establishments upon closure of an establishment in the chain. For purposes of this law, a "chain" is a business in California that has 100 or more establishments nationally that share a common brand and are owned and operated by the same parent company.

The bill would impose several obligations on employers who close an establishment in the chain, resulting in layoffs of workers:

1. The employer must give a "displacement notice" to covered works and their exclusive representative 60 days before the closure takes effect, including specified information.
2. The employer must provide all covered workers the opportunity to remain employed by the employer and to transfer to a location of the chain within 25 miles of the closed establishment as positions become available for one year after the closure. There are specific requirements regarding maintaining a preferential list of workers and deadlines and methods for providing notice of job openings.
3. The employer must retain specified records for each covered worker for three years, including name, job classification, date of hire, contact information, and copies of written notices and communications.
4. The employer must not retaliate against workers for seeking to enforce their rights under this section.

For purposes of this bill, a “covered worker” is a person whose primary place of employment is at the covered establishment subject to closure, who is employed directly by the employer, and who has worked for the employer for at least 6 months before the date of the closure; however, this law does not cover managerial, supervisor, or confidential workers, or temporary/seasonal workers. (The bill does not define “confidential worker.”)

This bill would not apply to employees covered by a collective bargaining agreement under certain circumstances, including that the agreement expressly waives the requirements of this bill in clear and unambiguous terms.

A laid-off worker would be authorized to file a complaint with the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement for violation of these new rules, seeking transfer and reinstatement, front pay or back pay, and the value of benefits the covered worker would have received. Any employer, agent of the employer, or other person who violates or causes to be violated these rules would be subject to a civil penalty of $100 for each worker whose rights are violated and an additional sum payable as liquidated damages in the amount of $500 per worker per day continuing until the violation is cured, which shall be recovered by the Labor Commissioner, and paid, upon appropriation by the Legislature, to the worker as compensatory damages.

Notably, “employer” is defined to include any person, including a corporate officer or executive, who directly or indirectly owns or operates a chain and employes or exercises control over the wages, hours, or working conditions of workers; and the penalties could specifically be imposed on any person who violates these rules. Therefore, this bill could impose personal liability on corporate officers, executives, or other individuals who fail to comply with the new requirements in connection with closures.

While the DLSE will have exclusive authority to enforce this new section, this law would not preclude an employee’s ability to sue for wrongful termination, and it would not preempt local ordinances providing greater worker protections.

Changes to Protections for Grocery Workers Upon Change in Control of Grocery Establishment (AB 647 and SB 725)

Existing law imposes requirements on grocery employers upon change in control of a grocery establishment, including requiring that the incumbent employer provide the successor employer with list of eligible grocery workers within 15 days, and that the successor maintain a preferential hiring list, hire from that list for 90 days, and retain eligible workers for at least 90 days. (Labor Code section 2500 et seq.) There are two pending bills that would make different changes to strengthen employee protections under the law.

➤ Grocery Workers (AB 647)

First, AB 647 would add and change some key definitions. It would specify that the “eligible grocery workers” under the law include workers at the grocery establishment with at least six months’ tenure at the establishment and separated employees who were employed by the incumbent employer for 6 months out of the last 12 months and whose most recent separation was due to change in control, lack of business, reduction in force, transfer more than 15 miles from the employee’s residence, or another economic nondisciplinary reason. Further, it adds distribution centers to the definition of “grocery establishment.”

Second, the bill would specify that in addition to a list of workers, the incumbent grocer must provide the successor with cell phone numbers and e-mail addresses for eligible workers. If the incumbent employer does not provide the information within 15 days, the successor employer may obtain the information from a collective bargaining agreement.

Third, bill would also extend the preferential hiring period for eligible grocery workers to 120 days, and states that if a separated employee is offered a position more than 15 miles from their place of residence, they have the right to refuse the offer and retain a right to recall without loss of seniority prior to the hiring of any new employees for one year after the separation of employment. The bill would extend the period for which the successor employer shall retain each eligible grocery worker hired pursuant to this law to at least 120 days, during which period they shall not discharge eligible grocery workers without cause.

Fourth, the bill would prohibit retaliation against a person seeking to enforce rights under the law.

And finally, the bill would create an enforcement mechanism for violations of this law. An employee, collective bargaining representative, or nonprofit corporation would be able to bring a civil action and recover hiring and reinstatement rights, front pay or back pay, the value of benefits the employee would have received, punitive damages, and attorneys’ fees and costs. (A prevailing employer could recover attorneys’ fees upon a court finding that the lawsuit was frivolous.) The bill specifies that the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement shall enforce the section, and an employer, agent of any employer, or other person who violates the law or causes the law to be violated is subject civil penalties of $100 for each employee whose rights are violated and liquidated damages of $500 per employee, per day until the violation is cured. The liquidated damages shall be recovered by the Labor Commissioner and paid to the employee as compensatory damages. Further, the bill would make a controlling private fund and any holder of an active interest of a controlling private fund (a person who directly or indirectly owns, controls, or holds the power to vote 20% or more of the outstanding voting interests of the fund) jointly and severally liable for all liabilities of any affiliate of each grocery establishment.

Status: Passed the Assembly Judiciary Committee on a party-line vote and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

➤ Grocery Workers (SB 725)

First, like AB 747, this bill would also revise the definitions in Labor Code Section 2502. It would add purchase, acquisition, or disposition of all or substantially all of the cash on hand to the definition of “change in control,” which would trigger the protection of the statute. In addition, the bill would specify that consolidation, merger or reorganization by the incumbent grocery employer would also be a “change in control.” Like AB 747, this bill would also add distribution centers to the definition of “grocery establishment.” SB 725 would also change the definition of “successor grocery employer” to specify that the successor may be the same entity as an incumbent employer when a change in control occurs but the covered employer remains the same.

Next, SB 725 would add Labor Code section 2507 to provide that if a successor grocery employer does not hire an eligible grocery worker following a change in control and does not retain such worker for at least 90 days following the change in control or the worker’s employment commencement date, the successor employer shall pay severance of one week of pay for each full year of employment with the incumbent employer, payable at a defined rate of compensation (unless a collective bargaining agreement provides for a greater amount of severance). Severance would not need to be paid if the worker quit or was discharged for cause. This rule could be superseded by a collective bargaining agreement if the waiver is explicitly set forth in the agreement in clear and unambiguous terms.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Notice of Acquisition of Retail Grocery Stores and Retail Drug Stores (AB 853)

As mentioned above regarding AB 647 and SB 725, California already has “grocery establishment” specific rules regarding worker retention and preferential rehire eligibility following a change in control. (Labor Code section 2500, et seq.) This bill is motivated by concern that increasing consolidation retail chain grocery stores and pharmacies potentially affects the supply and affordability of food and medicine and the supply of experienced retail workers and pharmacy workers in California.

Based on these public health and safety concerns, this bill would add several sections to the California Corporations Code and require any person planning to acquire any voting securities or assets of a retail grocery firm or retail drug firm, as defined, to provide written notice (under penalty of perjury) to the California Attorney General at least 180 days before the acquisition becomes effective. The notice would be required to include information including (1) any plans or proposals to liquidate the retail grocery or retail drug firm, to sell its assets or merge or consolidate it, or to make any other material changes in its businesses or corporate structure or management; (2) information required to assess the competitive effects of the proposed acquisition, including factors affecting the supply of experienced grocery workers, including wages, benefits, and unemployment; and (3) information required to assess economic and community impact of any planned divestiture or store closures, including but not limited to possible impacts on unemployment. The bill would authorize the Attorney General to seek an order temporarily staying or preliminarily enjoining the acquisition if they need additional time to analyze the competitive effects of the acquisition.

Public Sector/Labor Relations

Legislative Employees Allowed to Organize (AB 1)

This bill would authorize employees of the California Legislature to unionize. Similar bills have been introduced multiple times but stalled.

Extending Overtime Requirements to Legislative Employees (SB 276)

This bill would extend California daily overtime requirement (codified in Labor Code section 510) to employees (but not “Members”) of the California Legislature.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Paid Parental Leave for California State University Employees (AB 1123)

This bill would add section 89519.3 to the Education Code and would grant leaves of absence to “employees” of California State University (as defined in Government Code section 3562). Employees would be entitled to a leave of absence with pay for one semester of an academic year, or an equivalent duration, in a one-year period commencing on the date leave is first taken, following the birth of a child or placement of a child with an employee for adoption or foster care. The leave would be required to be taken without interruption unless otherwise agreed to by mutual consent between the employee and an appropriate administrator, and only working days will be charged against the leave of absence. (This bill is similar to AB 2464, which was vetoed in 2022).

Status: Pending in the Assembly Higher Education Committee.

Public Sector Employee Support for Labor Disputes (AB 504)

Citing the right of public employees to show solidarity with other striking employees, this bill would provide that it would not be unlawful or a cause for discipline against a state or local public employee that refuses to enter property that is the site of a primary labor dispute, perform work for an employer involved in a primary labor dispute, or go through or work behind a primary picket line. It would also prohibit an employer from directing an employee to take such actions, and would authorize recognized employee organizations to inform employees of these rights and encourage them to exercise those rights. Any provision in a public employer policy or a collective bargaining agreement that limits or waives these rights would also be void as against public policy.

These new provisions, however, would not apply to certain employees of public employees (i.e., those subject to Labor Code section 1962 [i.e., firefighters prohibited from refusing to cross picket lines].)

Status: Pending in the Assembly Public Employment and Retirement Committee.

Communications with Exclusive Representatives (AB 1530)

This bill would state the Legislature’s intent to ensure that recognized exclusive representatives of public employees be provided meaningful email access to their representative members. It would also public employers ensure recognized exclusive representatives have safe or trusted email sender access and would prohibit public employers from using technology (i.e., digital or electronic blocks, filters or other automated systems) to interfere with communications between exclusive representatives and their members.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Public Employment and Retirement Committee.

State Provided Benefits

Expansion of Paid Family Leave to Care for Additional Family Members and “Chosen Family” (AB 518)

Existing law (Unemployment Insurance Code sections 3301, et seq.) provides up to 8 weeks of paid leave under the state disability insurance program for prescribed purposes, including to care for a seriously ill family member. Existing law defines “family member” as child, spouse, parent, grandparent, grandchild, sibling or domestic partner. This bill would expand definition of “family member” to include any individual related by blood or whose association with the employee is the equivalent of a family relationship.

This change would be similar to the 2022 amendment to California Family Rights Act (AB 1041), which expanded the definition of family to include a single designated person related by blood or whose association with the employee is the equivalent of a family relationship.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Insurance Committee.

Expansion of Paid Family Leave to Add Responsibilities for a Child In Loco Parentis and Remove Restrictions (AB 575)

Existing law (Unemployment Insurance Code sections 3301, et seq.) provides up to 8 weeks of paid leave under the state disability insurance program for prescribed purposes, including to bond with a minor child within one year of the birth or placement of the child in connection with foster care or adoption. This bill would expand the program to provide benefits to workers who take time off work to bond with a minor child within one year of assuming responsibilities of a child in loco parentis.

Existing law provides that a worker is not eligible for these benefits if another family member is ready, willing, and able and available for the same period of time in a day that the individual is providing care. This bill would delete the restriction.

Finally, existing law authorizes an employer to require a worker to take up to 2 weeks of earned but unused vacation leave before receiving benefits under the disability insurance program. The new bill would delete this provision.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Insurance Committee.

COVID-19 Regulatory Compliance Credit (SB 375)

This bill would allow an employer to claim a COVID-19 regulatory compliance credit for the 2023 and 2024 calendar years. For employers with 100 or more employees, the credit would not exceed $50 per employee; and for employers with fewer than 100 employees, the credit will not exceed $100 per employee. This amount would be credited against employee personal income tax withholding amounts required to be remitted to the Employment Development Department but does not alter the employee's tax liability.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Public Posting of Information Regarding Timeframes for Handling Unemployment Claims (AB 337)

This bill would require the Employment Development Department to post on the department's internet website information about timeframes for processing unemployment insurance claims, issuing a first payment when the department does not request additional or clarifying information, and making final determinations of eligibility benefits. (This bill is similar to AB 1821, which stalled in the assembly in 2022.)

Status: Unanimously passed the Assembly Insurance Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

Extension of Authorization to Deposit Workers' Compensation Disability Indemnity Payments in Prepaid Cards (AB 489)

Existing law allows an employer to deposit disability indemnity payments in a prepaid card account for employees who have workers' compensation injuries (with the employee's written consent). That law is set to expire January 1, 2024. This bill would extend the authorization for this program to January 1, 2025.

Status: Unanimously passed the Assembly Insurance Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

Unemployment Assistance for Undocumented Workers (SB 227)

Existing law prohibits payment of unemployment compensation benefits to a person who is not a citizen or national of the United States, unless that person is lawfully admitted for permanent residence, was lawfully present for the purposes of performing work, or was permanently residing in the United States under color of law.

This bill would establish, until January 1, 2027, the "Excluded Workers Program" to provide income assistance to excluded workers who are not eligible for state or federal unemployment benefits. The bill would apply to individuals who reside in California and who performed at least 93 hours of work or earned at least $1,300 in gross wages over the course of three calendar months (which do not need to be consecutive) for work performed in California within the 12 months preceding their application for benefits or the calendar year preceding their application for benefits. Eligibility would be based on self-attestation and submission of specified documentation to establish proof of work history or a credibility interview. Eligible individuals would be able to receive $300 per week for each week of unemployment between January 1, 2025, and December 31, 2025, up to a maximum of 20 weeks. The bill would require a separate appropriation by the Legislature of sufficient funds to carry out the program. (A similar law [AB 2847] passed the Legislature in 2022 but was vetoed by Governor Newsom.)

Status: Passed the Senate Labor Committee and is pending in the Senate Government and Finance Committee.

Workers' Compensation Coverage for Hospital Employees (AB 1156)

This bill would define "injury" for workers' compensation purposes regarding hospital employees providing direct patient care in acute care hospitals to include infectious diseases, cancer, musculoskeletal injuries, post-traumatic stress disorder, and respiratory diseases, including COVID-19. It would create a rebuttable presumption these injuries arose out of the course and scope of employment, with the presumption extending for specified periods after the employee's termination of employment.

This bill is similar to several bills that have failed in recent years, including 2022's SB 213.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Insurance Committee.

Miscellaneous

Increased Liability and Responsibility for Fast Food Franchisors (AB 1228)

This bill would impose upon fast food restaurant franchisors increased liability and responsibility for compliance with employment laws by their franchisees. A similar provision was originally included in the 2022 bill creating the Fast Food Industry Council (AB 257) but was removed through the amendment process before the bill became law. (Implementation of AB 257 is now suspended pursuant to a referendum petition.)

The new bill would apply to fast food restaurant franchisors and franchisees. "Fast food restaurant" is defined to mean any establishment in California that is part of a chain of 100 or more establishments nationally that share a common brand or standardized operations, and that regularly provide food or beverages for immediate consumption to consumers who pay before eating with limited or no table service. (This is the same definition applicable to the Fast Food Industry Council law.) The bill would:

- Declare that a fast food restaurant franchisor shares with its franchisee all civil legal responsibility and civil liability for the franchisee's violations of specified laws, including California's Unfair Business Practices Act, the Fair Employment and Housing Act, and many sections of the Labor Code.
- Specify that all the listed laws may be enforced directly against the franchisor to the same extent they may be enforced against the franchisee (including by a civil lawsuit), after the franchisor has been given 30 days written notice of the alleged violation of the law and an opportunity to cure the alleged violation. A franchisor would not be subject to an enforcement action or lawsuit if it cured the alleged violation by ensuring that its franchisee is in compliance with the law and any workers against whom a violation was committed are made whole.

- Forbid a franchisee from waiving these protections or agreeing to indemnify its franchisor.
- Allow franchisees to sue franchisors for monetary or injunctive relief if the terms of a fast food restaurant franchise prevent or create a substantial barrier to the franchisee's compliance with the specified laws, including because the franchise does not provide for funds sufficient to allow the franchisee to comply with the law. The bill specifies that any changes in the terms of a franchise that increase the costs of the franchise would create a rebuttable presumption of a substantial barrier to compliance with the specified laws.

Labor Trafficking Unit within the DLSE and/or Civil Rights Department (AB 235 and AB 380)

These two similar bills would each establish a Labor Trafficking Unit to coordinate with other state enforcement agencies. AB 235 would situate the unit within the Civil Rights Department (CRD), while AB 380 would place it in the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (DLSE). Both bills would give the unit(s) authority to receive and investigate complaints alleging labor trafficking and to take steps to prevent labor trafficking. The unit(s) would also receive evidence from the Division of Occupational Safety and Health regarding possible labor trafficking and would coordinate with other agencies and refer cases for potential civil and criminal actions relating to labor trafficking violations. The unit(s) would also annually submit a report to the Legislature regarding their activities, including the number of complaints received and the number of complaints referred.

It is unclear whether the bills' authors intend to establish only a single Labor Trafficking Unit in the CRD or the DLSE or whether they intend to establish two such units to coordinate with each other. However, it is notable that AB 380 is similar to AB 1820 (2022), which was vetoed by Governor Newsom. His veto message stated that the CRD – not the DLSE – would be the appropriate location for a Labor Trafficking Unit.

Status: Both AB 235 and AB 380 unanimously passed the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee and are pending in the Assembly Public Safety Committee.

Public Availability of Labor Statistics (SB 335)

Existing law requires the Department of Industrial Relations to publish an annual report containing statistics on state work injuries and occupational diseases and fatalities and requires the report to be made available to the public. This bill specifies that the report shall be submitted to the Legislature and the Governor.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Workplace Rights Curricula to be Developed (SB 864)

This bill would require the California Workforce Development board to assist the Governor with partnering with the Labor Commissioner to develop workplace rights curricula to be provided to all individuals receiving individualized career services, supportive services, or training services through the California workforce system. The training would cover topics including wage theft, sexual harassment, discrimination, right to organize, and health and safety. Each local workforce development board would then need to ensure that the training is provided, and state-provided career services would be required to include this workplace rights training.

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

Change in Court Rules regarding Arbitration (SB 365)

Existing law allows a party to appeal an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration. Existing law generally stays the proceedings in the trial court while an order is being appealed, subject to specified exceptions. This bill would prohibit a California trial court from staying proceedings during the pendency of an appeal of an order dismissing or denying a petition to compel arbitration. (The U.S. Supreme Court is currently considering the same issue under the Federal Arbitration Act in the case Bielski v. Coinbase.)

Status: Pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Requirements for Call Centers Contracting with State Agencies (AB 1381)

This bill would require, beginning January 1, 2025, state agencies that contract with a private entity specifically for call center services to provide public or customer service for that or another state agency shall ensure that by January 1, 2026, 90% of the call center work is conducted in California. However, this change would not apply to contracts entered into before January 1, 2025 and does not apply to contracts for programs or other services that are not call centers. For state agencies contracting with private entities for programs or other services, including no-fee contacts, in which call center customer support services are included but the contract is not specifically for call center support services, the agency shall prioritize the work being conducted in California and require that at least 50% of call center jobs are in California (increasing to 75% for contracts entered into, renewed or extended after January 1, 2027).

These new requirements would authorize temporary exceptions allowing non-California call center usage in the event of a disaster, or for overflow periods not to exceed 48 hours, or for previously approved periods approved by the state agency to accommodate reasonable needs and avoid unreasonable, short-term costs for the state.

Status: Passed the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee and is pending in the Assembly Appropriations Committee.

California Workforce Pay for Success Program (SB 382)

This bill would establish the California Workforce Pay for Success Program. Upon appropriation of funds, this bill would provide for contracts with non-profit organizations that provide job training and workforce services to individuals with employment barriers. The bill would also establish the Workforce Pay for Success Program Board within the Labor and Workforce Development agency, which shall administer the program.

Status: Pending in the Senate Labor Committee.

Workplace Readiness/Work Permits (AB 800)

This bill is intended to inform and educate young people about their rights as workers, including their explicit rights as employed minors.

Pursuant to that goal, this bill would require the week of each year that includes April 28th to be known as “Workplace Readiness Week” and would require secondary schools to educate pupils on their rights as workers on specified topics during that week (including the right to organize a union, the history of the labor movement, and the labor movement’s role in winning various specified employee protections). This would be mandatory for students in grades 11 and 12 and optional for other grades.

The bill would also require that any minor seeking a signature on a work permit, must receive a document clearly explaining basic labor rights extended to workers. The bill would encourage the University of California Labor Center to produce, with input from bona fide labor organizations, a draft template of the document to be provided to minors.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Education Committee.

OSHA Protections for Cannabis Delivery Employees (AB 1424)

This bill would require a “cannabis delivery employer” (as defined) to develop, implement and maintain specified driver safety protocols allowing a cannabis delivery employee to not complete a delivery if the delivery would create a real and apparent hazard to the employee or fellow employees, providing for notification and documentation procedures relating to incomplete deliveries, and providing information relation to worker retaliation protections. It would also impose requirements on the cannabis delivery employer relating to these driver safety protocols, including making them available to the Department of Cannabis Control upon request. It would also create a rebuttable presumption of retaliation if the employer lays off, discharges or takes an adverse employment action against an employee within 90 days of the employee reporting or documenting an incomplete delivery or refusing to complete a delivery that would create a real and apparent hazard.

Status: Pending in the Assembly Labor and Employment Committee.

Employer Tax Credits for Childcare or Qualified Plan Payments (SB 533)

In recent sessions, the California Legislature has briefly considered bills that would require certain employers to provide or finance childcare for their employees. Rather than require employers to provide childcare, this bill would allow an employer tax credit between 2024 and 2034 for 30% of the costs of startup expenses for childcare programs or constructing a childcare facility to be used primarily by the children of the taxpayer's employees or by the children of employees of tenants leasing commercial or office space in a building owned by the taxpayer. It would also allow a similar tax credit for these same tax years for costs paid or incurred by the taxpayer for contributions to a qualified care plan made on behalf of any qualified dependent of the taxpayer's qualified employees (up to $360 for each qualified dependent).

Status: Pending in the Senate Rules Committee.

NOVEMBER 2024 BALLOT

Initiative to Raise the Minimum Wage

This ballot measure seeks to increase the minimum wage by $1.00 per year until it reaches $18.00 per hour and then to increase the minimum wage annually to adjust for inflation. This initiative has received the requisite number of signatures and is set to be qualified for the November 2024 election unless withdrawn by the proponent.

Initiative to Repeal PAGA

This ballot measure seeks to repeal the Private Attorneys General Act, which allows employees to file lawsuits on behalf of themselves and other employees to recover monetary penalties for certain state employment law violations. The Labor Commissioner would retain the authority to enforce these laws and impose penalties. The initiative would require the legislature to provide funding for Labor Commissioner enforcement. This initiative has received the requisite number of signatures and is set to be qualified for the November 2024 election unless withdrawn by the proponent.

Initiative Challenging the 2022 Law Authorizing Creation of a Fast Food Industry Council

This ballot measure seeks to repeal 2022 Assembly Bill 257, which created a fast food industry council to establish sector-wide minimum standards on wages, working hours, and other working conditions for fast food restaurant workers.
