

Dollars vs. Sense

Which would you
rather have:
dollars or sense?

Dollars tend to
dominate;
sense wants to
liberate.

Dollars, you say,
ensure;
but only sense will
endure.

Dollars won't be
worth a dime;
if, without sense, you're
wasting time.

People grab for dollars,
but search
for sense.

Some make many dollars,
but do not make
any sense.

With dollars you watch
the interest grow;
with sense your interest
is to grow.

So, when dollars
accumulate,
seek sense before
it's too late.

The profligate spends
dollars without sense.
The steward, however,
is careful about
both dollars and sense.

For, only the one
who spends dollars wisely
is managing money sensibly.

Your life, therefore,
is before you:
will you sell yourself
for dollars
or devote yourself
to sense.

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski
April 29, 1987
Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com
www.fatherwaltersparish.org