On April 26, 2018 members of Harvest Years Senior Center visited the 9/11 Museum in New York City. The Museum bears solemn witness to the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001 and February 26, 1993. The Museum honors the nearly 3,000 victims of these attacks and all those who risked their lives to save others. We experienced an inspiring day of remembrance. A tour guide walked us through the Museum. There is so much to see and a guide was an exceptional way to understand what we were viewing. A wall, built of multiple shades of blue tiles depicting the clear, blue skies on that horrific day, is the frontage of the Memorial Wall which entombs the remains of many victims. It is closed to the public, only opened to the family members. It was an emotional experience for all of us.

The Importance of Being Involved

Some readers of the Harvest Years Monthly may know that I am not a candidate for re-election to the State Senate in the upcoming November elections. Now that my time is winding down, I’ve been trying to take a step back from the major issues of the day and think a little more about the people, ideas, concepts and events that have had a significant impact on me as Senator for the 17th District as well as on the entire State of Delaware during my tenure in the General Assembly.

One of the first things I think about in this regard is the importance of advocacy in our state government. In order for our democratic process to work as it was intended, it is necessary for the people to be involved. If the General Assembly is to make the right decisions for the people, the people must undertake to let Senators and Representatives know how they feel about issues.

The past two years have demonstrated the importance of being involved.

Readers will recall that in June, 2017, the General Assembly cut support for the “Grant-In-Aid” Bill by 20%. This was done very close to the end of the legislative session and there was little that affected organizations could do at that point. Non-profit organizations that provide vital services to our State saw their budgets slashed. This included veteran’s organizations, fire companies and senior centers. These across the board cuts were serious. They threatened the very survival of many of the organizations.

Over the remainder of 2017, however, and going into 2018, the people affected by these cuts got involved. They wrote letters, called legislators, prepared fact sheets, gave specific examples of the effect of the cuts. They also testified at hearings and worked with the news media. They “pulled out all the stops”. In the end, this past June, the General Assembly reversed the prior year cuts and fully restored the 20%. The people won a victory … for the people. The system worked.

One reason for the success was that some of those organizations produced leaders who provided the guidance, initiative, vision and determination to be sure the people’s involvement had the intended affect. In that regard, over my ten years in the Senate, there have been many Harvest Years members who have played a leadership role in advocating for senior centers in particular and older Delawareans, in general.

One of many for whom I developed great respect was Richard Maly, who served on the Harvest Years Board for several years until he passed in 2014. (I recall it was Richard who initially “signed me up” to write this column.) Over the years, Richard was involved. He served our community in many ways but always had a focus on senior citizens. In earlier political battles, he was the kind of leader I mentioned above: active and energetic but dignified and professional, as well, the kind of leader people like to follow.

We saw several people provide Richard’s kind of leadership in the Grant-In-Aid 20% battle last June. Like Richard, they maximized the positive impact of many, many other people and helped achieve an important legislative goal. Together, they demonstrated the best of Delaware. And, they made our system work the way it was intended to. They demonstrated the importance of being involved.
