

Solving the terrorist problem by lcl

Since most anything can become a weapon in the hands of a mentally sick person, it would be good to know how most of these people are created. They are the real source of the problem. The common traits of these unhappy people are: They feel isolated, angry, unwanted, unloved, unable to talk problems out with a friend. They hurt because they feel rejected and unimportant, thus they reason that they should also hurt others and that life is unimportant. Murder becomes acceptable as a means of trying to gain importance and release their anger.

The best solution to resolving and reversing all of the above is to encourage students to become Christian followers of Christ. The bible clearly shows how God loves mankind and all individuals. His love is unconditional and available to all who recognize their inherited bad human nature. If, they desire to follow a better path outlined by God, God promises them peace during disturbing circumstances, forgiveness and wisdom when requested. God is also available to listen and respond to all problems in prayer and to help overcome worries and heartaches. He desires a continuing relationship with every person. Jesus teaches that life is a special gift as an opportunity to learn and be blessed by God. God is clear that He does not approve of murder. Scripture also shows how God is aware of all things that a person does and will accordingly give reward or punishment to come. Followers are also called to pass on the love that they receive from God to others by giving grace and acts of kindness to them. Especially, to other fellow believers. Churches are to be open to all willing to learn, worship and fellowship together.

Government can also help by not blocking any person's criminal records from law enforcement or the courts. They should also allow law enforcement to search any church that speaks hate crime messages calling for any murder. If 20 or more guns are found stored in the church, it should be leveled.
