

Trenton Public Education Foundation President Selected for Two Honors

Pamela Pruitt, president of the Trenton Public Education Foundation and vice president of business development at WIMG/Morris Broadcasting, has been selected to receive prestigious honors from both a statewide health organization and a local education group this spring.

Pruitt will be presented with the New Jersey Primary Care Association Second Annual Women as Health Advocates Award at ceremonies in Trenton on May 18, 2006. Coinciding with National Woman's Health Week, the award will honor Pruitt for her work at WIMG hosting and producing radio programs on a wide range of general health topics with a particular emphasis on women's health issues. In addition, the award will celebrate Pruitt's work with the TPEF, where, with support from the Children's Futures initiative in Trenton, she pioneered the Trenton Youth Communications Partnership, a program that provides opportunities for students to produce health-related stories and projects while working with area media outlets and businesses. On June 9, 2006, Pruitt will be recognized by the Trenton Education Association for her leadership of the Trenton Public Education Foundation. The honor will be bestowed at the organization's First Annual Scholarship Dinner-Dance in Princeton. As TPEF president, Pruitt is entrusted to carry out the organization's mission of brokering, fostering and leveraging corporate and community resources that will enhance and promote educational opportunities for students in the Trenton Public School District.
