

The silent generation speaks out

Although the debates in parliament continue, here at Wadham we have made up our minds.

Annie Ashdown and Leyla Tunc

Since the 2016 Brexit referendum, leaving the EU has been on a lot of people's minds.

Whether they want to remain or leave or have no particular opinion on the matter, every UK citizen has heard the word 'Brexit' and with this year drawing to a close, there seems to be no end to the Brexit panic.

Without a vote, under 18s are a silent generation, although it is our future that is at stake. So we thought that the students of Wadham should get to express their opinion and here are the results of the Wadham Brexit referendum...

If you would like to be part of the BBC Young Reporters project, see Dr Davies.

