Salvation by Grace Through Faith

A Study about the Simplicity of the Salvation Message as Seen in Both Testaments

Arlen L. Chitwood

The Spirit breathes life into lifeless man solely on the basis of that which Christ has done on man's behalf. And unsaved man can do no more than receive that which has already been done for him.

NOTHING ELSE enters into the matter.

When Christ referred to His finished work on the Cross immediately before His death, He cried out one word in "a loud voice" — Tetelestai — which has been translated in the English text, "It is finished" (John 19:30; cf. Matthew 27:50; Mark 15:37; Luke 23:46). Tetelestai is the perfect tense form of the Greek verb, teleo, which means "to bring something to an end or completion." This word in the perfect tense could be more accurately expressed and translated, "It has been finished," or "It has been completed."

That to which Christ referred in John 19:30 was His work of redemption. The perfect tense that He used refers to a work completed in past time with the results of that work extending into and existing during present time in a finished state. At the moment Christ cried out, announcing that His work had been completed, there was then no reason for His death to be prolonged.

The blood of the Passover Lamb had been shed, and God had "laid on Him the iniquity of us all" (Isaiah 53:5, 6, 12; cf. II Corinthians 5:21). Thus, at this point, "He bowed His head, and gave up the spirit [lit., comparing the other gospel accounts, 'He breathed out,' i.e., He expired, willingly giving up His life]" (John 10:17, 18; 19:30).

Redeemed man has been saved by grace through faith SOLELY on the basis of that which Christ referred to when He cried out from the Cross, "Tetelestai." The words "are you saved [lit. 'you have been saved']" in Ephesians 2:8 are also the translation of a perfect tense in the Greek text. The reference, as tetelestai, is to a work completed in past time with the results of this work extending into the present and existing in a finished state.

At the moment a person believes on the Lord Jesus Christ (places his trust, reliance in Christ, i.e., receives, by faith, that which Christ has done on his behalf), the Spirit not only breathes life into that person but the Spirit also takes up His abode in the individual (cf. Genesis 1:2b; 2:7; Ezekiel 37:1; I Corinthians 6:19). Through this means, the man passing "from death to life" becomes "a new creation" "in Christ," a part of the "one new man" (II Corinthians 5:17; Ephesians 2:1, 15).

FOREWORD

The message pertaining to the gospel of the grace of God is given in very simple terms in Scripture. In fact, it is so simple that individuals often miss it.

And any person, missing the one true message, given by the infinite God, attempting to deal with the salvation issue through his own finite wisdom and knowledge, can't help but end up with a corrupted salvation message.

The salvation message, that which makes salvation possible for fallen man, is clearly stated in I Cor. 15:3:

“...Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures.”

The ONE key thought in the salvation message is “DEATH and SHED BLOOD” (e.g., Gen. 3:21; 22:8, 13), which is not only what God requires but what He Himself has provided (Ex. 12:13; Heb. 9:22).

And the ONE key word in the salvation message is “BELIEVE” (e.g., John 1:12; 3:15, 16), which is not only the ONE thing that God requires but also the ONLY thing that man can do (John 3:18).

The Lamb has died, His blood has been shed, and ALL that is left — ALL that can possibly be left — for man to do is simply receive that which has already been done on his behalf.

Eternal salvation is by grace (that which God is able to do completely apart from human merit) through faith (through believing on God's Son [Eph. 2:8, 9]), and it is based entirely on the finished work of Another (John 19:30). NOTHING which man has done, is presently doing, or will ever do can have anything to do with his eternal destiny. Man can do NO MORE than receive by faith that which has already been done on his behalf. This is why Scripture states:

“Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved...”
(Acts 16:31).

This statement is in response to a question in the preceding verse, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?” (v. 30).

And, within another frame of reference, the response to this question could only be, “NOTHING!” This would have to be the response simply because there is NOT one single thing left for unsaved man to do. NOR could he do anything if something were left, for, he is spiritually dead and incapable of acting in the spiritual realm (Eph. 2:1, 5).

It is of interest to note that the question, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?,” and the answer, “Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved,” ONLY appear together ONE place in the entire Bible. Scripture is filled with information concerning redemption, but Acts 16:30, 31 is the ONLY place, from Genesis to Revelation, where the question concerning eternal salvation is asked and answered in so many words.

Thus, within a completely Biblical framework, if the question in Acts 16:30 is asked, there can be ONLY ONE answer: “BELIEVE...” Man’s ideas, thoughts, comments are of no moment. God has spoken, and that’s the end of the matter.

John 3:16 is often called “the gospel in a nutshell” by individuals seeking to draw attention to the overall salvation message stated in its simplest form in Scripture. God, because of His love for fallen man — who had been created in His image, after His likeness, for a purpose (Gen. 1:26-28) — “gave his only begotten Son [I Cor. 15:3], that whosoever believeth in him [Acts 16:31] should not perish, but have everlasting life.”

Everything, in its entirety, to procure man’s salvation was done by Another. It had to be accomplished by Another, for, as previously stated, the one being redeemed was “dead in trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1), totally incapable of acting on his own behalf.

Christ is the One Who died, Christ is the One Who performed the work to procure man’s salvation, and God is satisfied with His Son’s finished work.

When Christ cried out from the Cross in “a loud voice” near the ninth hour, “It is finished” (Luke 23:46; John 19:30), He used one word in the Greek text — Tetelestai — which could be better translated, “It has been finished.” Tetelestai is a perfect tense usage of teleo, which means “to bring to an end,” “to complete.” And the perfect tense refers to action completed in past time, with the results of that action extending into and existing during present time in a finished state.

ALL of the work surrounding man’s redemption which Christ had come to perform had, at that point in time, been completed. This was the announcement which Christ made, in “a loud voice”; and, because of that involved in the announcement, there was then NO longer any need for Him to continue His sufferings on the Cross. Thus, immediately after He cried out, “It has been finished,” He “gave up the spirit [lit., ‘He breathed out’ (He expired, willingly relinquishing His life)]” (Luke 23:46).

The work of Christ at Calvary, from the point He cried out, “It has been finished,” has existed in exactly the same finished state in which He proclaimed it to exist at that time. It has existed as a work completed in past time which extends into present time (in a finished state) and which will extend into all the ages comprising eternity ahead (in the same finished state).

NOTHING can ever be added, and nothing can ever be taken away. That is to say, NOTHING can ever change relative to Christ’s finished work at Calvary.

That’s the way God’s procurement of man’s salvation had to occur. Once Christ’s work had been finished, that’s the way His work had to ALWAYS continue to exist — in a finished state — throughout both time and eternity.

Because of Christ’s finished work, salvation is extended to man “without money and without price” (Isa. 55:1); and apart from Christ’s finished work, there is NO salvation.

“He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already [lit., ‘has already been condemned’ (a perfect tense — condemned in past time because of unbelief and presently living in that condemned state)], because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God” (John 3:18).

It is utterly impossible — and foolish to even consider — that finite man, “dead in trespasses and sins,” could add one thing to or take one thing from the finished work of the infinite God through His Son.

ALL man can possibly do is simply receive, through believing on the Son, that which has already been done on his behalf.

What Must I Do?

As Seen in the Unchangeable Foundation

“...Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house” (Acts 16:30b, 31).

Eternal salvation is by grace through faith (Eph. 2:8, 9), and it is based ENTIRELY upon the finished work of Another (John 19:30). NOTHING which man has done, is presently doing, or will ever do can have anything to do with his eternal destiny. Man can do NO MORE than receive, by faith, that which has already been done on his behalf.

This is why Scripture states, “Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved” (Acts 16:31).

In this respect, the answer to the question, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?,” is actually, NOTHING!

This would have to be the answer simply because there is NOT one single thing left for man to do. NOR could he do anything if something were left (he is “dead in trespasses and sins”).

This is the implication in Paul and Silas’ response to the jailor in Philippi. He was told simply to “believe [put his trust, reliance in]” the One Who had already done everything on his behalf.

Coming into possession of eternal salvation was that simple and easy for the jailor at Philippi, and it remains that simple and easy for man today. The instant an unsaved person believes on the Lord Jesus Christ, he is eternally saved.

He becomes a “new creation” in Christ, a part of the “one new man” (John 3:16; II Cor. 5:17; Eph. 2:13-15). Anything in addition to unsaved man’s act of faith can occupy NO place in the Biblical answer to the question, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?” Such can occupy NO place in salvation by grace through faith.

Only One Place in Scripture

It is of interest to note that the question, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?," and the answer, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved," only appear together ONE place in the entire Bible. Scripture is filled with information concerning salvation, but Acts 16:30, 31 is the ONLY place from Genesis to Revelation where the question concerning eternal salvation is asked and answered in so many words.

Thus, within a completely Biblical framework, if the question in Acts 16:30 is asked, there can only be ONE answer: "Believe..." Man's ideas, thoughts, comments are of NO moment. God has spoken, and that's the end of the matter.

(Note that the jailor at Philippi could not have been asking what he must do to be saved from death or saved from losing his position.

The prisoners had not escaped; and, thus, death because of the loss of prisoners during his watch could not be forthcoming [v. 28]. Then, it would have been completely out of place for him to be asking Paul and Silas how he could be saved from losing his position, for they could not have had anything to do with the matter of his either retaining or losing his position [aside from remaining, as his prisoners (cf. vv. 28, 30)].

Paul and Silas would be the ones to approach with a question concerning eternal salvation, which the jailor knew, and which the jailor did. And it is evident that Paul and Silas understood his question within this framework, for this is the manner in which his question was answered [vv. 30, 31].)

Some individuals have understood Acts 2:37, 38 to also ask and answer the question relating to eternal salvation. However, as seen in the text and context, this cannot be the case at all. Such a question is neither asked in verse thirty-seven nor is it answered in verse thirty-eight.

The question, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?," in verse thirty-seven can only be understood contextually, for the question is not the same as the jailor asked in Acts 16:30. And, contextually, it is not possible to understand that these Jews were asking the same thing which the jailor at Philippi later asked Paul and Silas.

Peter's sermon on the day of Pentecost concerned the fact that the Jewish people had crucified their Messiah, He had been raised from the dead, He had returned to heaven, and He was going to remain there until His enemies had been made His footstool (Acts 2:22-36).

His stay in heaven would also extend to that time when those who offended Him (the Jewish people) had been brought to the place where they would acknowledge their offense (Hosea 5:15-6:2). Then, in that coming day after these things have come to pass, Joel's prophecy, to which Peter first called attention, can be fulfilled (Acts 2:14-21).

Joel's prophecy began to be fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, 33 A.D. Concerning events which had transpired on this day, Peter plainly stated, "But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel..." (v. 16). Note that he didn't say, "This is something like that..." or "This is a foreview of that..." The simple fact of the matter is that what occurred on the day of Pentecost was the beginning of the fulfillment of Joel's prophecy.

And, had Israel done what Peter told these Jews to do in Acts 2:38 — "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ [national repentance and baptism on the part of Israel]" — Christ would have returned, restored the kingdom to Israel, and Joel's prophecy (which had begun to be fulfilled) would have been brought to completion.

Joel's prophecy is Messianic in its scope of fulfillment and necessitates the presence of Israel's Messiah in the nation's midst (Joel 2:27), and the Israelites whom Peter addressed on the day of Pentecost undoubtedly knew these things. Their question, viewed not only within the framework of the context but also within the framework of the whole of Christ and the Apostles' previous ministry, can only be understood as a reference to what the people of Israel had to do in order to effect the return of their Messiah, the restoration of the kingdom to Israel, and all kindred events. And Peter told them EXACTLY what they had to do.

Israel though did not repent, not on this day nor at succeeding times throughout the Book of Acts. And with the non-repentance of the nation there was also a non-fulfillment of events concerning Joel's prophecy. The fulfillment of this prophecy awaits that future day when Israel will repent, be restored, and Israel's Messiah, the Lord Jesus Christ, will be on earth in the nation's midst.

Dispensational considerations must be involved in order to properly understand Acts 2:37, 38. These verses, as Joel's prophecy, are intimately connected with Israel. They have to do with the house of Israel at a time both past and future, NOT with unsaved man today — either Jew or Gentile.

Using these verses relative to eternal salvation is completely out of line with both the text and the context. And using these verses in this manner not only results in numerous false teachings and concepts about salvation by grace (placing both repentance and baptism in a completely wrong perspective relative to eternal salvation) but such a usage also does away with the correct understanding and interpretation of these verses.

(For more specific information on Acts 2, particularly vv. 37, 38, refer to Chapter V, "Panoramic View of the Book of Acts," in the author's book, Message in the Gospels, Acts, Epistles.)

The Clear, Simple Salvation Message

God's message of eternal salvation in Scripture is so clear and simple that a child can understand all one needs to know in order to be saved. Christ has accomplished the work of salvation on man's behalf, and His finished work has been extended to man as a "gift." Unredeemed man can do no more than simply receive (or reject) God's gift of redemption through His Son.

"Jesus paid it all," and God is satisfied with the price which His Son has paid. As in the words of Jonah immediately before being delivered from the place of death, "Salvation is of the Lord" (Jonah 2:9).

"Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures" (I Cor. 15:3b).

This is the gospel of the grace of God, the good news, which unsaved man is to hear.

The completeness of the work of salvation through Divine action and the total inability of unredeemed man to act in this realm is seen time after time in Scripture. And the beginning point, allowing a person to come into a correct and proper understanding of salvation by grace, has been placed by God at the very beginning of His Word, in the opening verses of Genesis. To understand the matter as God Himself has revealed it in His Word, one must begin at this point in Scripture and move progressively forward in the Word, viewing different facets of the subject in the order and after the manner in which God revealed them.

1) As Seen in the Earth's Restoration

The Bible is a book of redemption; and basic, unchangeable teachings surrounding redemption are set forth at the very beginning of Scripture.

In the opening verses of Genesis God sets forth the unchangeable manner in which He, in His infinite wisdom and knowledge, restores a ruined creation. There is a restorative work which follows a specific pattern, and the matter is accomplished entirely through Divine intervention.

And within this pattern set forth and established in a perfect God-ordained fashion at the very beginning, God reveals how any subsequent ruined creation would, of necessity, have to be restored. It would have to be restored in complete accord with the established pattern. In this respect, it would have to be restored after a certain order, and it would have to be restored entirely through Divine intervention.

Thus, to establish correct thinking relative to the fundamentals of salvation (restoration), as previously stated, one MUST begin where God began — in the opening verses of Genesis chapter one.

In these opening verses, God begins by revealing His creation of the heavens and the earth (v. 1). Then, immediately following this, in the first part of the second verse, God reveals that the earth became a ruin (which, as subsequent Scripture reveals, could only have resulted from God's actions following Satan seeking a higher regal position than the one which he held [the God-appointed ruler over the earth (Isa. 14:12-17; Ezek. 28:14-16)] and be "like the most High" [be like the Ruler over the entire universe, like God Himself (Ps. 103:19)]).

Then, immediately following the statement in Gen. 1:2a concerning the ruin of the material creation, God reveals the MEANS which He used to restore this ruined creation (vv. 1:2b ff) — a restoration accomplished ENTIRELY through Divine intervention.

The importance of understanding that which is revealed in these opening verses CANNOT be overemphasized, for man, a subsequent creation of God, ALSO fell into a ruined state because of Satan's actions (Gen. 1:26-28; 3:1ff).

And IF ruined man was to be restored (as the ruined material creation had previously been restored), it would have to be accomplished EXACTLY in accord with the previously established pattern. It would have to be accomplished EXACTLY in accord with the method which God revealed at the beginning of His Word concerning HOW He restores a ruined creation.

This is the first of numerous unchangeable ways in which God has revealed Himself, His plans, and His purposes to man in His Word.

Once God establishes a pattern, NO change can ever occur. And He has FOREVER established, once for all, at the very beginning of His Word, EXACTLY how He goes about restoring a ruined creation.

Genesis 1:2b, 3 records the initial act of the triune Godhead in bringing about the restoration of the ruined material creation — an act in which the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit each participated.

In this foundational pattern, forming a type, the Spirit of God moved, God spoke, and light came into existence (note that NOTHING can come into existence apart from the Son, Who is “the light of the world” [John 1:3, 9; 9:5]).

And in the antitype, within the framework of man's salvation experience, the matter is identical. Salvation can occur ONLY through a work of the triune Godhead, and this Divine work follows an established pattern.

Thus, there is an initial past work of the triune Godhead which foreshadows an initial present work of the triune Godhead:

In God's initial past work of restoring the ruined material creation in Genesis chapter one, the Spirit of God moved, God spoke, and light came into existence.

In God's initial present work of restoring ruined man, the Spirit of God moves, God speaks, and light comes into existence.

This is the manner in which God began/begins His unchangeable, restorative work.

And, relative to God's present restorative work, foreshadowed by the foundational pattern surrounding His restorative work on day one in the type, everything within the outworking of that revealed in this pattern is based on ONE thing — the Son's finished work at Calvary almost 2,000 years ago (progressively opened up and brought to light in subsequent types).

(Note that God's initial restorative work, seen on day one in the Genesis account, is the only part of His six-day restorative work which has to do with salvation by grace. There had to be an initial work, producing light shining out of darkness, before God could continue His restorative work.

And exactly the same thing is true concerning ruined man today. Ruined man has to initially be made alive spiritually — pass "from death unto life," light has "to shine out of darkness" [John 1:5; II Cor. 4:6] — before God can continue a restorative work.

Man today [saved man] has a redeemed spirit dwelling alongside an unredeemed soul, with both housed in an unredeemed body. That foreshadowed by God's work on day one in the Genesis account had to do with man's spirit, and that foreshadowed by His work on days two through six had to do with man's soul, with the body to be redeemed at the end of that foreshadowed by God's work throughout the entire six days.

Refer to the Appendix in this book or to the author's book, Salvation of the Soul, for additional information on the preceding.

Also refer to the author's book, End of the Days, Appendix I, for a proper interpretation of the opening verses of Genesis.)

When the Son cried out from the Cross, "It is finished" (John 19:30; cf. Luke 23:46), He (the living Word) meant EXACTLY that; and when God's Word reveals that we have a salvation of Divine origin, based entirely on the Son's finished work, this Word also means EXACTLY what it states.

When man sinned in the garden, he died spiritually; and when unregenerate man, "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1), is made alive today, he is made alive spiritually.

The movement of the Spirit (Gen. 1:2b) and God speaking (Gen. 1:3) in order to restore the ruined creation are simultaneous events. It is the Spirit using the Word — the written Word and the Word which became flesh (cf. John 1:1-3, 14) — to effectually perform a supernatural work in unredeemed man.

It is at this point — through the in-breathing of God — that life is imparted to that which previously had no life. It is at this point that God breathes into lifeless man (the Spirit imparting life, in accordance with the God-breathed Word, based on Christ's finished work), and man is "quicken[ed] ['made alive']" (Eph. 2:1; cf. Gen. 2:7; II Tim. 3:16).

At this point, light shines "out of darkness" (II Cor. 4:6), a division is made between the light and the darkness (Gen. 1:4), and the darkness has no apprehension or comprehension of that which is light (John 1:5; cf. I Cor. 2:14).

The "spirit" of unsaved man, associated with "darkness," is dead. It is a part of the totally depraved man, with his "body of... death," in which there dwells "no good thing" (Rom. 7:18, 24).

But, with the movement of the Spirit — breathing life into unsaved, lifeless man — man's spirit is made alive and, at the same time, separated from his soul (Heb. 4:12).

The "soul" remains within the sphere of darkness, which is why "the natural [Gk., psuchikos, 'soulical'] man" cannot understand "the things of the Spirit of God" (I Cor. 2:14). That which remains in the sphere of darkness can have no apprehension or comprehension of that which has shined out of darkness. There is a God-established division between the two which cannot be crossed over (cf. Luke 16:26).

Thus, the unchangeable method which God uses and the pattern which He follows to restore a ruined creation have forever been set forth at the beginning of His Word, through the account of God's restoration of the ruined material creation.

Then, in Genesis chapter three, God's new creation, man, finds himself in a ruined state. But he is not to be left in this state, for man, at this point, becomes the object of a NEW DIVINE, restorative work. And this work, as seen in the latter part of chapter three and subsequent types, follows that which had already been set forth in an unchangeable fashion in the first chapter.

2) As Seen in Eden

Man, in the garden in Eden, following his eating of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, found himself in a ruined state. And man's fall not only brought about his own ruin but that of the entire restored creation as well (Gen. 3:6-19).

As the federal head, the one created to hold the sceptre which Satan held (Gen. 1:26-28), Adam's fall "subjected" the whole of the restored creation to "the bondage of corruption" — the same thing which had resulted from Satan's previous fall, following creation (Gen. 1:2a; Rom. 8:20-22; cf. Isa. 14:12-17; Jer. 4:23-28; Ezek. 28:14-16).

Following Satan's fall, there had been no redemption, leaving the material creation in a ruined state, with a restoration of the creation ultimately occurring ONLY because of and for man.

But things were different following man's fall, which, of necessity, also resulted in things being different for the material creation as well.

Following man's fall, God provided a means for his redemption, which, correspondingly, necessitated that the material creation would ultimately be removed from "the bondage of corruption."

The material creation had previously been restored FOR man, NOT Satan. It had been restored with a view TO man rather than Satan holding the sceptre and was, from that point forward, connected with man's destiny.

And as the ruin of the material creation at this time was inseparably linked to man's fall, so is the future restoration of the material creation inseparably linked to man's redemption.

Satan brought about man's fall through a means very similar to that which had resulted in his own fall. Satan had sought to be "like the most High," and he deceived Eve into believing that she could be "as God" (literal translation) through partaking of the forbidden fruit on "the tree of the knowledge of good and evil" (cf. Gen. 3:5; Isa. 14:14). However, in each instance, rather than individuals becoming "like the most High," "as God," a ruined creation resulted.

Eve's act of partaking of the fruit of the tree was not really climaxed until Adam had also partaken. Satan had to bring about Adam's fall (as the federal head), not simply Eve's fall alone. But, once Eve had partaken of the fruit of the tree, Adam had no choice but to also partake as well.

A part of Adam's very being had become in a fallen state (Eve, formed from a rib removed from his side, was bone of his bones, and flesh of his flesh [Gen. 2:21-23]). Thus, Adam, as an incomplete being, was no longer in a position to eat of "the tree of life" (the tree which would have provided [for man, past] and will yet provide [for man, future] the necessary wisdom and knowledge to rule the earth).

(For information concerning the tree of life in the preceding respect, refer to the author's book, The Bride in Genesis, Appendix II.)

Adam, apart from Eve, COULD NOT realize the purpose for his existence, something which Satan evidently knew. Thus, Adam followed what was really the ONLY course of action available — cleaving unto his wife (Gen. 2:24) — knowing that this was the ONLY way he could bring about Eve's redemption and ultimately find himself in the position of being able to partake of the tree of life as a complete being.

Adam was NOT deceived. And it is evident from the statement to this effect in I Tim. 2:14, along with comparing the type with the antitype, that Adam sinned with a full knowledge of that which he was doing.

Adam was a type of Christ (Rom. 5:14; cf. Luke 24:27, 44); and, as a type of Christ, that which Adam did in Eden foreshadowed that which Christ did at Calvary.

There is NO other way to understand man's fall, with Adam's actions at the time typifying Christ's actions in this same realm 4,000 years later.

Adam found his bride (a part of his very being, removed from his body) in a fallen state; and he then partook of that associated with sin and death.

Christ, in like manner, found His bride (a part of His very being, to be removed from His body) in a fallen state; and allowed Himself to be made sin, which was followed by death (I Cor. 12:12-27; II Cor. 5:21).

And the purpose behind the actions of both individuals centered around three things:

- a) Redemption.
- b) Ultimately being able to partake of the tree of life as complete beings (ref. Appendix II in the author's book, The Bride in Genesis).
- c) Ultimately bringing to pass the reason for man's creation in the beginning.

Following Adam's sin, Divine intervention in man's salvation is further seen through God slaying innocent animals to clothe Adam's and Eve's naked bodies (Gen. 3:21). Death occurred, blood was shed, and a covering was provided, pointing 4,000 years ahead to Calvary where death would again occur, blood would again be shed, and a covering would again be provided.

(Actually, the blood of Christ does more than cover sin. The blood of Christ does away with sin, which is the thought behind the Greek words translated "reconcile" and "reconciliation" in II Cor. 5:18-20.

These two Greek words are katallage and katallasso [noun and verb forms of the same word, meaning the same thing]. These words are derived from allasso, which means "to change," "to transform." And allasso is derived from allos, which means "other," "another." Thus, the root derivation of katallage and katallasso is allos.

In the preceding respect, the thought behind katallage and katallasso, as the words are used in II Cor. 5:18-20, would be to change sin into something other than that which exists, not cover sin as seen in "atonement" in the Old Testament. And a change of the nature seen in the text could only be accomplished through one means — doing away with sin.)

Man has been redeemed through Christ's shed blood at Calvary (I Peter 1:18, 19); and, in the light of the type, Christ's finished work at Calvary allows God to clothe His creation, not with animal skins as in Eden, but with the very righteousness of Christ, in which sin does not, cannot, exist (cf. Zech. 3:3-5).

God has imputed this righteousness to every believer (Rom. 4:24, 25; 5:12-18), and within the scope of justification, God views redeemed man, positionally, as being just as righteous as His Son. That would be to say, God views every believer, positionally, as being just as righteous as He Himself is righteous, for the Son is God manifested in the flesh.

Thus, redemption, as seen in Eden, is accomplished entirely through Divine intervention. The Son's finished work at Calvary is foreshadowed by Adam partaking of the forbidden fruit; and the Son's finished work allows God to clothe His creation in righteousness, as foreshadowed by Adam and Eve being clothed in animal skins.

3) As Seen in Cain Slaying Abel

In Genesis chapter four, Abel and his sacrifice(s) typifies Christ and His sacrifice. In this chapter, one finds death (the slaying of lambs, and the subsequent slaying of an individual) and shed blood.

Abel presented lambs for a blood sacrifice at a set time in a particular place. Then, he himself became the sacrifice when his brother, Cain, rose up against him and slew him.

Christ presented Himself — the Lamb of God — for a blood sacrifice at a set time in a particular place. In this respect, He, by the sacrifice of Himself, fulfilled both parts of the type surrounding Abel's experiences. The sacrifice of lambs and the death of Abel foreshadow the death of Christ, the sacrificed Lamb.

God requires shed blood to atone for (cover) man's sin (or, in N.T. terminology, do away with man's sin). This is a truth established in Eden immediately following Adam's sin. God slew innocent animals — which necessitated shed blood — and clothed Adam and Eve with the animal skins (Gen. 3:21).

And God's work after this fashion, because of man's sin, sets forth a dual truth relative to salvation which remains unchanged throughout Scripture:

- a) "Salvation is of the Lord" — man, as Adam, can only remain completely passive (Jonah 2:9).
- b) "...without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22) — death and shed blood are that which God requires.

Abel is a type of Christ, and Cain slaying Abel foreshadows Israel slaying Christ. The recorded account in Genesis chapter four is that of one brother slaying another brother; and the recorded account in the four gospels 4,000 years later is EXACTLY the same — one brother slaying another brother.

(Israel is God's firstborn son [Ex. 4:22], and Jesus is God's firstborn Son [Heb. 1:6]. Israel is God's only adopted, firstborn son; and Jesus is God's only begotten, firstborn Son.

Consequently, Israel and Cain are both guilty of the same sin — that of fratricide, that of slaying one's own brother.)

Cain, because of Abel's acceptance and his own rejection, rose up against his brother and slew him in the field, a type of "the world" (Matt. 13:38).

It was during the time God's Son was in the world that Israel rose up against Him, as Cain rose up against Abel, and committed the same violent act. Israel slew Christ, as Cain had slain Abel 4,000 years earlier, fulfilling the type which God had established.

In the type, the blood of Abel cried out to the Lord "from the ground" (Gen. 4:10); but in the antitype, the blood of Christ "spea-keth better things than that of Abel" (Heb. 12:24).

The account of Cain slaying Abel is the third major part of a multifaceted Old Testament word picture depicting all the different things surrounding God's provision of salvation for fallen man.

The first three parts of this word picture are presented in the first four chapters of Genesis.

The first part of the picture (ch. 1) presents basic foundational truths, which, apart from the remaining facets of the word picture, cannot be properly understood.

The second and the third parts of the picture (Gen. 3, 4) then begin to add to and build upon the foundation previously set forth in chapter one, progressively bringing the complete picture more into focus.

And subsequent parts of the picture (e.g., Gen. 22; Ex. 12; Num. 21) continue to add details, ultimately bringing the whole matter into perfect focus in the ONLY composite word picture of salvation which God has provided.

Note how much has been provided in the first four chapters of Genesis thus far, though still only beginning to form that which can later, through additional revelation, eventually be seen as a complete picture:

The first chapter centers around God's revealed means for restoring a ruined creation. Relative to salvation by grace, revealed through God's work on day one, the Spirit moves, God speaks, and light comes into existence.

The Spirit breathes life into the one having no life (cf. Gen. 2:7), and the one who was "dead in trespasses and sins" passes "from death unto life" (John 5:24; Eph. 2:1). "Light" then shines out of the place where only darkness had previously existed, and a division is made between the light and the darkness.

But, in order to provide understanding concerning exactly what is occurring in this opening part of the word picture which God has provided, there is more, far more, which must be added to complete the picture. And these additional parts of the picture begin to be opened up and revealed in Genesis chapters three and four. Then they continue to be further opened up and revealed different places in subsequent Scriptures.

Chapter three, adding to the picture, reveals that God requires death and shed blood, and this chapter also introduces a truth more fully developed and opened up in later revelation:

A Man, Who knew no sin, would be made sin for the one who had sinned.

Then the fourth chapter adds more details, bringing the two main things seen in chapter three together. Not only does God require death and shed blood, but this chapter introduces another truth more fully developed and opened up in later revelation:

The Man Who would be made sin is also the One Who would die and shed His blood. And, beyond that, this would be a vicarious death.

And subsequent types continue with more details surrounding that which has already been revealed. God, in the Old Testament Scriptures, within the numerous types, has set forth ALL the different aspects of the work of His Son at Calvary.

There is uniformity throughout; and EACH type presents different facets of the matter, with each subsequent type adding to the details already given in previous types.

Then, ALL of the types together form one complete word picture, which allows man, through the means which God Himself has provided, to come into a FULL knowledge and understanding of salvation by grace.

4) As Seen in Abraham Offering Isaac

Genesis chapter twenty-two presents the account of Abraham offering his son for a burnt-offering upon a particular mountain in the land of Moriah, in accordance with God's command.

Following God's command to offer his son after this fashion, the record presents Abraham acting in unquestioned obedience. Apart from any remonstrance or delay whatsoever, Abraham took his son, two servants, the necessary provisions for the sacrifice, and began the journey toward the mount (vv. 2, 3).

God was very particular about the place where Isaac was to be offered. The land of Moriah was the region where Jerusalem was later built (II Chron. 3:1). And the designated place of sacrifice in this region, located three days' journey from Abraham and Isaac's home in the land of Gerar (v. 4), was a mount later described by Abraham after two fashions:

- a) The place where "God will provide himself [lit., 'provide for Himself'] a lamb."
- b) By the name, "Jehovah-jireh," meaning "the Lord will provide" (vv. 8, 14).

The designated place was thus a mount in the land of Moriah where the Lord Himself would provide the sacrifice, a lamb.

The reason that God was very particular about the place of sacrifice during Abraham's day is apparent. There are only two occurrences of human sacrifices under God's direction in all Scripture. One occurs in Genesis chapter twenty-two where Abraham offered his son, and the other occurs in the gospel accounts where God offered His Son, the greater Son of Abraham.

It appears evident that Abraham offered his son at the same place where God would, 2,000 years later, offer His Son. This was the mount where the Lord would provide the sacrifice, which is exactly what He did during both Abraham's day and 2,000 years later when He offered His Own Son.

As Abraham was about to slay his son upon the mount, God stayed his hand; and a ram (a male sheep) caught in the thicket was provided as a substitute. The ram died in the stead of Isaac

(a vicarious death), providing a substitutionary atonement. The ram died in order that Isaac might live (vv. 9-13).

When God offered the greater Son of Abraham upon this mount, the Son Himself, God's provided Lamb (John 1:29, 36), was the One Who died (as in the type, a vicarious death), providing substitutionary atonement ("reconciliation" — a doing away with sin — in N.T. terminology). He shed His blood and experienced death Himself in order that others, through Him, might live.

Abraham and Isaac were alone on the mount. The two men accompanying them remained a distance from the mount and neither partook of nor saw the events which transpired. Abraham and Isaac alone entered into these events (vv. 5ff).

The same thing occurred at Calvary. Though there were people a distance from the scene (Matt. 27:36, 54, 55), as in Abraham's day, the events were closed to their view or participation.

From the sixth to the ninth hour (noon to 3 P.M.) darkness enveloped the entire land (Matt. 27:45), and it was during this time that the Son bore "our sins in his own body on the tree" (I Peter 2:24). He drank the "cup" previously set before Him in Gethsemane (Matt. 26:39, 42, 44), allowing Himself to be made "sin for us" (II Cor. 5:21); and God had to turn away from His Own Son during this time, causing the Son to cry out, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" (Matt. 27:46).

Abraham and his son ALONE participated in events set forth in the type, and God and His Son ALONE participated in events set forth in the antitype.

Divine intervention on man's behalf is seen throughout.

Isaac, in the type, insofar as the record is concerned, offered no resistance as he was bound and placed on the altar upon the wood. He willingly allowed himself to be the sacrifice.

God's Son, likewise, in the antitype, offered no resistance as He moved toward Calvary. He willingly endured the Cross, allowing Himself to be the Sacrifice, a Sacrifice which would do away with sin (Heb. 9:26; 12:2).

As Abraham "stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son," he was stopped from doing so by the angel of the Lord; and a "ram caught in a thicket by his horns" was provided as an offering “in the stead of his son.” The ram died in Isaac’s place. The wages of sin (death) were satisfied via a substitute (vv. 10-13).

The wages of sin today, likewise, have been satisfied in the person of a Substitute. God has provided “for Himself a Lamb.” The Lord Jesus Christ has paid the price which God requires.

And God is satisfied with the price which His Son has paid:

“For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord” (Rom. 6:23).

Man can either receive Jesus Christ, Who has paid the wages of sin on his behalf, or man can reject Christ and pay the penalty himself. The Lamb has died, but the death of the Lamb is insufficient without the application of the blood (Ex. 12:6, 7, 12, 13).

Man MUST, personally, himself, appropriate that which God has provided through the death of His Son at Calvary. Man MUST, personally, himself, receive that which has been made possible through the finished work of God’s Son at Calvary.

And this salvation is offered as a gift — absolutely free — to anyone who will, by faith, receive the gift (Eph. 2:8, 9).

5) As Seen in the Death of the Firstborn

Exodus chapters eleven and twelve record the death of the firstborn in Egypt during Moses’ day, four hundred years beyond the birth of Isaac. God had decreed that the firstborn of both man and beast throughout all the land of Egypt MUST die. This included those in the household of every Israelite and Egyptian family alike — from the most obscure Israelite family to the household of Pharaoh itself. No firstborn throughout Egypt (even in the animal kingdom) was excluded from this decree (Ex. 11:4-6).

However, the Lord made a distinction between the Israelites and the Egyptians by providing Israel with a substitute which could die in the place of, in the stead of, the firstborn in the family (Ex. 11:7; 12:3ff).

Each Israelite family was to take a lamb from the flock on the tenth day of the month, keep the lamb penned in a separate place until the fourteenth day, and then slay the lamb “in the evening.”

Following the death of the lamb, blood from the lamb, which had been caught in a basin, was to be taken and applied to “the two side posts” and “the upper door post” of the house in which the Israelite family dwelled (Ex. 12:3-7, 22).

A few hours later, “at midnight,” the Lord was to pass through the land of Egypt and execute the previously decreed sentence. Death would befall all the firstborn throughout the entire the land of Egypt at this time. No distinction would be made between those in the households of the Egyptians or the Israelites in this respect, for the firstborn in every household was under EXACTLY the same sentence.

(“Midnight” is used in Scripture referring to judgment. The first use of this word occurs in Ex. 11:4, relative to judgment befalling the firstborn, establishing an unchangeable pattern [cf. Ruth 3:2, 8; Matt. 3:11, 12; 25:6-12].)

The distinction which God established between the Israelites and the Egyptians lay, NOT in excluding the Israelites from the sentence decreed upon the firstborn, BUT in providing the Israelites with a means of substitutionary death. The paschal lamb in Exodus chapters eleven and twelve was given to Israel, and ONLY those in Israel could slay this lamb. And for an Egyptian family to have had a part in the provided substitutionary atonement the night of the Passover, that family would have had to go to Israel (cf. John 4:22).

When the Lord passed through the land of Egypt at midnight, He looked for ONE thing. He looked for the BLOOD of a slain lamb on the door posts and lintel of each house.

If the blood was there, the Lord passed over that house simply because He knew that death had already occurred.

The firstborn had already died in that household. A lamb from the flock had died in his place, and the Lord looked upon the matter just as if the firstborn in the family had himself died.

However, if there was no blood on the door posts and lintel — with no respect given as to whether it was an Egyptian or an Israelite household — the firstborn himself died. The absence of blood showed that death had NOT occurred in that house, and the firstborn from every household had to die, himself, personally, though the Lord had provided for and recognized a vicarious death.

It cannot be over emphasized that the Lord looked for ONE thing and ONE thing ONLY when He passed through the land of Egypt at midnight. He looked for BLOOD on the door posts and lintel of each house — NOTHING MORE, NOTHING LESS!

The blood not only had to be shed but it also had to be properly applied. ONCE the Lord saw the blood, He looked NO further. Insofar as the death of the firstborn was concerned, NOTHING else was of any moment. God was satisfied.

And it is the same today. The firstborn is under the sentence of death, and God has provided a Substitute — “Christ our pass-over is sacrificed for us” (I Cor. 5:7). He has shed His blood; but the blood, as in the type, MUST be properly applied, which is accomplished through a simple act of FAITH, through BELIEF:

“For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life” (John 3:16).

As in Egypt the night of the Passover, insofar as the death of the firstborn is concerned, NOTHING else is of any moment. Apart from believing, unredeemed man today can do NOTHING.

The Israelites during Moses’ day could do NOTHING but apply the blood of lambs, slain on their behalf; and man today can do NOTHING but apply the blood of the Lamb, which has been slain on his behalf.

And, as during Moses’ day, once this has been done, God recognizes a substitutionary death as having occurred, resulting in His satisfaction.

“It is appointed unto men once to die...” (Heb. 9:27).

A man can either keep this appointment in Christ or apart from Christ. That is, he can elect to either receive the One Who has kept the appointment on his behalf, or he can elect to keep the appointment himself.

For those who have believed, the blood has been properly applied to show that the firstborn has died; and that’s the end of the matter.

For those though who have not believed, there is no proper application of the blood; and the end of the matter awaits.

(Note that Exodus chapters eleven and twelve address, in no uncertain terms, an issue often brought up today: “Who was responsible for Christ’s death?”)

In these two chapters, God gave the paschal lamb to Israel, and ONLY Israel was in possession of and could slay this lamb.

In that foreshadowed by the type, Christ was the Paschal Lamb; and, exactly as in the type, ONLY Israel was in possession of and could slay the Lamb [Christ came to Israel and presented Himself to the nation (Matt. 15:24; John 1:11)]. And, beyond that, beginning with the type in Genesis chapter four, Scripture clearly attributes this act to Israel [cf. Matt. 23:37-39; 27:25; Luke 13:33; Acts 2:23, 36; 3:17; 4:10; 5:28-30; 7:52].

Seeking to absolve Israel of this act — something very evident within and without Christendom today — is man’s way, within his finite thinking, of seeking to distance himself from that which he sees as anti-Semitism [seeing the Jewish people as the ones responsible for Christ’s death].

But, in reality, exactly the opposite is true. Seeking to absolve and remove Israel from any connection with Christ’s death is one of the most heinous, anti-Semitic acts ever perpetrated against the Jewish people. If Israel could be absolved of and removed from the position which Scripture plainly attributes to the nation, that of Christ’s death, note what would have to be the result. Such thinking, if carried to its logical conclusion, would do away with God’s provided means of salvation for anyone, Jew or Gentile. And, in that respect, such thinking would not only be anti-Semitic but anti-God and anti-human-race, for God’s entire redemptive plan would be voided and mankind [Jew and Gentile alike] would have no Saviour.

And the Biblical reasoning for that is very simple. Apart from Israel slaying the Paschal Lamb in 33 A.D., there can be no salvation for unsaved humanity [John 4:24], for, again, ONLY Israel could slay the Lamb. And, to slay this particular Lamb, God’s Son [after God, through Israel, had provided the Lamb (cf. Gen. 22:8)], is the central reason God called the nation into existence. All other reasons for Israel’s existence rest upon and are dependent on this fact.

And, instead of being anti-Semitic, seeing Israel as the slayer is one of the most pro-Semitic acts in existence. And the reasoning for that is very simple as well. Through this act, Israel has provided man with a Saviour; apart from this act, man would not have a Saviour [cf. Numbers chapter thirty-five (ref. the author’s book, The Time of the End, Appendix II, “The Death of the High Priest,”)].

And, while thinking along the preceding lines, a person might also want to consider which group of people God used to give mankind a Jewish Book to tell them about this Jewish Saviour.

And, to carry the matter one step further, a person might also want to consider which group of people God has used, continues to use, and will always use as the channel through which all spiritual blessings for mankind flow, with the provision of a Saviour being the ultimate of all possible blessings.)

6) As Seen in Moses Lifting Up the Brazen Serpent

During His earthly ministry Jesus drew from Jewish history on numerous occasions in order to teach great spiritual lessons.

While speaking to Nicodemus, with the events of Calvary in view, He called attention to the account of Moses lifting up the brazen serpent in the wilderness and likened this event to His being lifted up on the Cross at a future time (John 3:14; cf. John 12:32, 33; Num. 21:5-9).

The account of the brazen serpent being placed on a pole was thus singled out by Christ as a type of His being placed on the Cross. God had brought certain events to pass under His sovereign direction and control of all things during Moses' day in order that He, at a later time, might have these events to draw upon in teaching His people great spiritual truths concerning the events surrounding Calvary.

In the camp of Israel during Moses' day, the people had sinned in a twofold manner:

a) By speaking against both God and His appointed leader, Moses.

b) By loathing the manna which God had provided for food to sustain them during their wilderness journey.

They spoke against both God and Moses because of their being in the wilderness, facing death (due to their previous refusal to believe God and enter the land at Kadesh-Barnea); and they had grown tired of the food which God had provided, resulting in their provoking and tempting God by asking for "meat" in place of the manna (cf. Num. 20:5; Ps. 78:17, 18; I Cor. 10:9).

The Israelites tempted God by trying Him to the limit. This is the manner in which the compound Greek word translated “tempted” in I Cor. 10:9 should literally be understood (this is also the same word used in the Septuagint Version of the Old Testament in Ps. 78:18, referring to the same incident).

After God had been tried to the limit, judgment fell. He sent poisonous “fiery serpents among the people [‘fiery’ — referring to a burning, inflammatory bite],” and many Israelites died as a result.

The people of Israel, experiencing God’s judgment after this fashion, then went to Moses and acknowledged their sin. Moses interceded on behalf of the people, and the Lord provided the antidote. Moses was instructed to make a serpent of brass and place it on a pole; and any Israelite who had been bitten by a serpent could look upon the brazen serpent and be healed.

The type brought over into the antitype, as Christ referred to both aspects of the matter, has to do with truths surrounding God’s judgment upon sin, the finished work of Another, and the fact that man can do no more than simply receive that which has already been done.

(Note that the primary interpretation of the account of Moses lifting up the brazen serpent in Numbers chapter twenty-one would, of necessity, because of the context, have to do with the sins of a people who had already appropriated the blood of the paschal lambs in Egypt [Ex. 12].

But Christ used this event in another respect — as a type of that previously seen through the death of these paschal lambs [one type reflecting back on a previous type, both pointing to the antitype].)

Moses was a type of Christ; and the brazen serpent was used in a metaphorical respect, pointing to Christ. Moses performed the work; he was the one who made the serpent and placed it on a pole. The Israelites who had been bitten by the serpents which God had sent into the camp had NO part in any of this work.

After the work had been completed and the serpent affixed to a pole, the antidote for that resulting from sin was then available.

Those who had been bitten by the serpents sent into the camp were told simply to look and live. That’s ALL they were instructed to do.

And it is recorded:

“...that if a serpent had bitten any man, WHEN he beheld the serpent of brass, HE LIVED” (Num. 21:7-9).

Carrying these same truths over into Christ’s finished work at Calvary, man, under the sentence of death, is just as helpless as the Israelites who had been bitten by the serpents, necessitating Another to act on his behalf.

In the type, serpents were responsible for the condition of the Israelites, and a serpent was brought forth as the remedy.

In the antitype it is the same. A man was responsible for the condition, and a Man was brought forth as the remedy. The first man, the first Adam, was responsible for the condition; and the second Man, the last Adam, provided the cure (cf. I Cor. 15:45-47).

And just as Moses performed ALL of the work on the Israelites’ behalf in the type, with the people under the sentence of death being told simply to look and live, so it is in the antitype. Christ has performed ALL of the work on man’s behalf, and the only thing which man can do, as in the type, is look and live.

The serpent being formed from brass, in accordance with God’s instructions, is in perfect keeping with that seen throughout the type. “Brass” in Scripture speaks of judgment (cf. Ex. 27:1-8; 30:18-21; Rev. 1:15).

God judged sin in the camp of Israel during the wilderness journey, and He also judged sin at Calvary; and sin was judged after such a fashion, in both instances, that God was satisfied.

The Israelites looked; and, by so doing, they, at the same time, through looking, exercised faith.

They believed what God had said, and their acting on this belief (looking, as God had commanded) was the act of faith which God required (Acts 16:30, 31; cf. Heb. 11:6).

NOTHING more was required then, and NOTHING more is required today. It was look and live then, and it is look and live today.

It was look toward the place sin had been judged in that day, believing that God meant EXACTLY what He had said, resulting in God’s satisfaction; and it is look toward the place sin has been judged today, believing that God means EXACTLY what He has said, resulting in God’s satisfaction.

Concluding Remarks:

The six Old Testament types referenced — beginning with the foundational type in Genesis chapter one and ending with a sixth type in Numbers chapter twenty-one — by no means present the complete Old Testament word picture.

But these six types, viewed together and in the light of one another, present a picture which is sufficiently complete for the purpose at hand — a correct, overall understanding of salvation by grace.

- a) As Seen in the Earth's Restoration.
- b) As Seen in Eden.
- c) As Seen in Cain Slaying Abel.
- d) As Seen in Abraham Offering Isaac.
- e) As Seen in the Death of the Firstborn.
- f) As Seen in Moses Lifting Up the Brazen Serpent.

Salvation by grace in the New Testament MUST be viewed in the light of the way God began His revelation on the subject in the Old Testament, NOT in the way that this subject is continued in the New Testament.

Understand the foundational basics in the Old and you WON'T go wrong in the New. The whole of the matter is really that simple.

ONLY through this means, through beginning where God began, can an individual properly grasp and understand, from a completely Biblical perspective, Paul and Silas' statement in Acts 16:31 (or any other statement on the subject in the N.T.), as they responded to the question in the previous verse:

"What must I do to be saved?" (Acts 16:30).

Again, the answer is simple. You CAN'T do anything. It has ALL been done on your behalf. Simply "believe [put your trust in, your reliance in]" the One Who paid it all at Calvary.

Then, and only then, will God look upon sin as having been judged in your life, personally, based on the finished work of His Son.

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

Confusion About Salvation

When the Foundation Is Ignored, Destroyed

“For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God:

Not of works, lest any man should boast.

For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them” (Eph. 2:8-10).

The Church has entered a rather strange era during the past several decades. The clear, simple message of salvation by grace through faith has come under attack, not from without, but from within the ranks of what is looked upon as fundamental Christianity itself; and the distorted message being promulgated, rather than being rejected, is finding ready acceptance.

In essence, individuals are being told that more is required than simple belief. They are being told that a person must go beyond this and make Christ Lord of his life; he must possess saving faith, which will result in works; he must live after a certain fashion, bring forth fruit, showing that he has been saved, etc.

And the converse of the preceding is often brought into the picture. Christians are being told that if works do not follow a person’s profession of faith, if that person doesn’t live a certain way, if he doesn’t bring forth fruit, then, he has demonstrated by his actions (or non-actions) that he has never possessed saving faith. That is to say, through this means, the person has shown that he has never been saved.

Then, usually in connection with the preceding and to further complicate the matter, the expression “easy believism” is being thrown around. Believing on the Lord Jesus Christ is made to be something completely alien to that which Scripture teaches. That is, “believing” is made to be difficult, or the word “believe” is being redefined to make it mean something which it doesn’t mean at all.

Why do these problems exist within the ranks of that segment of Christianity where there should be a clear understanding and proclamation of the message surrounding salvation by grace through faith? The answer is really very simple, though it is an answer involving matters not understood at all by numerous Christians, allowing the problems to exist.

By Grace through Faith

At the outset, before looking at the central problem, note that which Scripture teaches about salvation by grace through faith. The clear gospel message, the good news, is:

“Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures” (I Cor. 15:3).

And that which Christ has done on our behalf allows God, through His Spirit, to impart life to unredeemed man, who is “dead in trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1). It allows God, through His Spirit to breathe life into the one having no life, with the person then passing “from death unto life” (John 5:24).

The Spirit breathes life into lifeless man solely on the basis of that which Christ has done on man’s behalf. And unsaved man can do NO MORE than receive that which has already been done for him. NOTHING ELSE enters into the matter.

When Christ referred to His finished work immediately before His death on the Cross, He cried out in “a loud voice” — Tetelestai — one word, which has been translated in the English text, “It is finished” (John 19:30; cf. Matt. 27:50; Mark 15:37; Luke 23:46).

Tetelestai is the perfect tense form of the Greek verb, teleo, which means “to bring something to an end or completion.” This word in the perfect tense could be more accurately expressed and translated, “It has been finished,” or “It has been completed.”

That to which Christ referred in John 19:30 was His work of redemption. The perfect tense which He used refers to a work completed in past time, with the results of that work extending into and existing during present time in a finished state.

At the moment Christ cried out, announcing that His work had been completed, there was then no reason for His death to be prolonged. The blood of the Passover Lamb had been shed, and God had “laid on him the iniquity of us all” (Isa. 53:5, 6, 12; cf. II Cor. 5:21). Thus, at this time, “he bowed his head, and gave up the spirit [lit., comparing the other gospel accounts, ‘He breathed out,’ i.e., He expired, willingly giving up His life]” (John 10:17, 18; 19:30).

Redeemed man has been saved by grace through faith SOLELY on the basis of that which Christ referred to when He cried out from the Cross, “Tetelestai.” The words “are ye saved [lit. ‘you have been saved’]” in Eph. 2:8 — “For by grace you have been saved...” — are also the translation of a perfect tense in the Greek text. The reference, as tetelestai, is to a work completed in past time, with the results of this work extending into the present and existing in a finished state.

At the moment a person believes on the Lord Jesus Christ (places his trust, reliance in Christ, i.e., receives, by faith, that which Christ has done on his behalf), the Spirit not only breathes life into that person but the Spirit also takes up His abode in the individual (cf. Gen. 1:2b; 2:7; Ezek. 37:1; I Cor. 6:19). And through this means, the man passing “from death unto life” becomes a new creation “in Christ,” a part of the one new man (II Cor. 5:17; Eph. 2:1, 15).

Redeemed man thus possesses a salvation wherein everything pertaining to works/actions is past. The work necessary to effect one’s salvation (Christ’s work) is past and complete, and the work effecting one’s salvation itself (the Spirit’s work) is past and complete.

The latter (the Spirit’s work) is based on the former (Christ’s work). Thus, Divine intervention on man’s behalf is the ONLY work seen throughout.

Relative to one’s presently possessed eternal salvation, redeemed man did NOTHING in the past, NOR can he do anything present or future. Salvation was and remains “of the Lord” (Jonah 2:9).

Redeemed man possesses a present, completed salvation based on the past, completed work of Another. Both man’s present salvation and Christ's past work exist in a finished state, and neither CAN EVER be altered, changed, added to, taken from, etc. One's salvation is just as complete and secure as the work upon which it rests.

(For Divine intervention throughout the work surrounding man's presently possessed eternal salvation, along with the corresponding complete absence of any action on man's part, refer to the original type in Chapter I of this book ["As Seen in the Earth's Restoration," pp. 5-8], which ALL subsequent types on the subject, along with the antitype, MUST follow.)

Easy Believism

"Easy Believism" is a rather strange expression, especially when one considers the manner in which it is used today. Scripture presents salvation after ONE fashion alone — by grace through faith (i.e., through believing) — and NO place in Scripture is believing on the Lord Jesus Christ ever presented as something difficult.

Man, in his perversion of the clear teaching of salvation by grace through faith, has sought to make believing difficult; and he has coined the expression, "easy believism," which, in reality, reflects, in a negative way, on that which Scripture teaches in this realm.

Such is also part and parcel with what has come to be called, "Lordship Salvation." This expression is actually a misnomer, for, in relation to eternal salvation (the manner in which the expression is used), there can be no such thing as "Lordship Salvation."

Salvation is one thing, and Lordship is another. Christ exercising control over one's life, as the word "Lordship" portends, can NEVER be used in conjunction with eternal salvation. Such must ALWAYS be subsequent to one's salvation experience.

An unsaved person is "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1). He is incapable of making Christ Lord of something which he doesn't even possess. He must first pass "from death unto life" (John 5:24). Then, and ONLY then, can the matter of "Lordship" enter.

NOR would it be correct to say that unsaved man, in order to be saved, has to believe to the extent that Christ becomes, after some fashion, at the moment of belief or at some subsequent time, Lord of his life. That is, as it is sometimes expressed, "True belief will result in a salvation which cannot be separated from obedience."

Such a thought would be absurd. Life being brought into existence on the one hand and obedience on the other (the one having been made alive following the leadership of the Lord as He exercises control over that life) are two different things entirely. Both could NOT possibly be brought to pass at the same time.

Scripturally, spiritual control of one's life ALWAYS appears in connection with maturity in the faith, NOT in connection with initially exercising faith, resulting in salvation.

And a Christian may or may not experience spiritual growth in this respect, which can have NOTHING to do with a prior belief, which allowed him to pass "from death unto life."

A servant within a household in the world today may or may not submit to his master's wishes, but such submission has NOTHING whatsoever to do with his being or not being a servant. It has to do with his being a faithful or an unfaithful servant.

And this is EXACTLY the way Scripture presents the matter. Becoming a servant in the Lord's house is one thing, but submission as a servant in the house is something entirely different. The latter is ALWAYS subsequent to — NEVER in connection with — the former.

There is NOTHING difficult about believing on the Lord Jesus Christ, becoming a Christian, entering into servitude.

Grace on God's part and difficulty on man's part are incompatibles in the message pertaining to eternal salvation. Difficulty on man's part arises only AFTER he becomes a Christian, only AFTER he possesses a life in which such difficulty can manifest itself.

How easy is it for an unsaved man to exercise faith, resulting in salvation? It's just as easy as it was for the Israelites in Egypt during Moses' day to apply the blood of slain lambs to the door posts and lintel of the houses in which they dwelled (Ex. 12:3-7); or it's just as easy as it was for these same Israelites, later in the wilderness, to look upon the brazen serpent which had been raised up on a pole (Num. 21:5-9).

"Christ our Passover" has been "sacrificed for us" (I Cor. 5:7), and the blood can be applied through a simple act of faith; or Christ, as the serpent in the wilderness, has been lifted up, "That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:14, 15).

How simple and easy is salvation? It was during Moses' day and remains today, Look and live. It's THAT simple and easy.

Why Then the Problem?

Becoming a Christian and growing spiritually in the Christian life is likened in Scripture to a child being born in the world and growing in the physical realm. There is a specific bringing forth as a newborn baby, which is to be followed by growth from immaturity to maturity in both instances (John 3:16; Heb. 5:12-14; I Peter 2:1, 2; I John 2:12-14).

In the physical realm, a child grows from a newborn baby to a mature adult in order to fulfill a purpose in life. He grows physically through a proper diet and mentally through years of training — both within and without the home. He exercises his body and his mind as he receives a proper diet and training, growing after this fashion. Ideally, the better he is prepared both physically and mentally, the better he will be able to function in life.

In the spiritual realm, matters are identical. A newborn babe in Christ is to grow from immaturity to maturity for a purpose. His food for proper growth is spiritual, for it is a spiritual growth. It is the Manna from heaven, the Living Word of God. He is to begin with “milk” and progressively move to “meat” and “strong meat” (cf. I Peter 2:1, 2; Heb. 5:12-14).

Inseparably connected with the reception of the Word is training at the hands of the Father (Heb. 12:5-11). The words “chastening,” “chasteneth,” and “chastisement” in these verses have to do with a training process, not with the Christian being disciplined per se, though the training process may involve discipline (cf. v. 7).

(The words “chastening,” “chasteneth,” and “chastisement,” in Heb. 12:5-8 are translations of noun and verb forms of a word referring to young children [paideia and paideuo], and these words refer to the instruction or training of children. And, contextually, this is a training of those whom God views as “sons,” looking out ahead to these sons one day being elevated into positions of power and authority with God's Son in His kingdom.)

For additional information on Heb. 12:5-8 and child-training, with a view to sonship in the preceding respect, refer to the author's book, God's Firstborn Sons, Chapter III.)

The entire process allows the indwelling Holy Spirit to progressively work the transformation (Gk., metamorphoo, a metamorphosis) of Rom. 12:2 in one's life — a transforming work, beginning from within. And the more one progresses spiritually within the scope of the metamorphosis, the better prepared he will become, the better equipped he will be, to realize and fulfill his calling in life.

Every Christian is a servant in the Lord's house, and every Christian has been called to exercise some particular sphere of responsibility therein (Matt. 25:14ff; Luke 19:13ff). Household servants have been placed in charge of their Lord's goods, which are of a spiritual nature, not material. And the proper use of that which is spiritual within the house requires training in spiritual matters.

This is why there MUST be a progressive work of the Holy Spirit in one's life, effecting the metamorphosis. This is why there MUST be a progression from immaturity to maturity in the faith.

To achieve this end, God has placed pastor-teachers in His Church. They are the ones who have been commissioned to lead the household servants from immaturity to maturity in spiritual matters in order that the servants might properly function within the scope of their individual, particular callings.

“And he gave some...pastors and teachers [lit., ‘pastor-teachers’];

For the perfecting [‘equipping,’ ‘training’] of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ:

Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge [Gk., epignosis, ‘mature knowledge’] of the Son of God, unto a perfect [‘a complete’] man...” (Eph. 4:11-13a).

(The words “pastors and teachers” in Eph. 4:11 are structured in the Greek text in a manner which requires that the two nouns refer to the same individual — pastors, who are teachers, i.e., pastor-teachers.)

There though has been a breakdown within God's order in Christendom; and this breakdown is of such a nature that, resultingly, gross error has supplanted Biblical truth to the point that the whole panorama of the salvation message has been negatively affected.

Pastor-teachers, over the years, have failed to fulfill their calling. The saints have not been led from immaturity to maturity. Household servants are in no position to handle that which is spiritual, for they lack the necessary spiritual training; and as a result, the house is in disarray.

Churches today are filled with immature Christians who can be “tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine” (Eph. 4:14). It is that period of Church history depicted by the Church in Laodicea (Rev. 3:14-21), the terminal period of the present dispensation.

This is not something which has occurred overnight, or even in the past few years or decades. It has been occurring ever since the woman in the parable in Matt 13:33 placed leaven in the three measures of meal, depicting an act of Satan, which could only have occurred very early in the dispensation; and the leaven has been doing its corrupting, damaging work since that time.

Leaven works best in a place where the temperature is not too hot or too cold. Note the “lukewarm” condition of the Laodicean Church in this respect (Rev. 3:16).

The leaven, after numerous centuries of deteriorating work, is being brought into the advanced stages of its action and is doing its most damaging work within the lukewarm confines of the Laodicean Church near the end of the present dispensation, during the very time in which we presently live.

The working of this leaven is going to be so complete by the end of the dispensation that the Lord, while upon earth, looking centuries ahead, asked a question concerning conditions on the earth at the time of His return:

“...when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith [‘the faith’] on the earth?” (Luke 18:8).

The response to the question, designated by the wording of the Greek text, is negative. The Son of man will NOT find “the faith” (an expression peculiarly related to the Word of the Kingdom) on the earth when He returns. Rather, He will find conditions as depicted in Rev. 3:14ff.

1) The Faith

The Master of the house has gone back to heaven in order to receive a kingdom from His Father (Luke 19:12). God rules over all. He is the One Who places and removes rulers within the kingdom (Dan. 4:17, 25), and He will one day remove Satan from the position which he occupies (Rev. 12:4, 9; 20:1-3) and place His Son in this position (Dan. 7:14; Rev. 19:11-16; 20:4-6).

During the time between the Son's departure to receive the kingdom and His return in possession of the kingdom, Christ has left His business in charge of His household servants, for a particular purpose.

And this purpose involves the kingdom He has gone away to receive.

The coming kingdom of Christ will require numerous regents and vice-regents to ascend the throne and hold positions of power and authority with Christ as He reigns over the earth. And God has set aside an entire dispensation, lasting approximately 2,000 years, in order to acquire these rulers.

God is presently dealing with household servants in relation to the kingdom which the Son has gone away to receive, with a view to their one day filling positions of power and authority with Christ in the kingdom.

From a Scriptural standpoint, this SHOULD BE the central purpose behind all activity in the Lord's house today. BUT the working of the leaven has changed matters in this respect completely.

(Note that the central purpose for the present dispensation, seen from God's standpoint in the antitype of that foreshadowed through events in Genesis chapter twenty-four, would be the Spirit's search for and procurement of a bride for God's Son.

And this search for and procurement of a bride for God's Son is part and parcel with a search for and procurement of individuals to fill the numerous positions of power and authority with Christ in His kingdom, for Christ's bride will be made up of individuals who will fill these positions, when the bride reigns as co-regent alongside the Son.

For additional information on Genesis chapter twenty-four, refer to the author's book, Search for the Bride.)

The Lord's household servants have been promised remuneration commensurate with their faithfulness, and this remuneration has to do with their being elevated from positions of servitude in the house to positions as co-rulers in the kingdom. After Christ has returned, having received the kingdom, He will call His servants forth to reckon with them. A servant having been judged and shown faithful to previously delegated responsibility will hear his Lord say:

“Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord” (Matt. 25:21; cf. Matt. 25:19-23; Luke 19:15-19).

(Note one of the laws of the harvest seen in the preceding — always reaping more than was sown — which can be seen in the following concerning the unfaithful servant as well.)

Servants in the house though have also been warned that unfaithfulness in the discharge of their assigned household duties will result in loss. Not only will they be denied positions in their Master’s kingdom, but they will also suffer rebuke and chastisement. Such a servant, having been judged and shown unfaithful to previously delegated responsibility, will hear his Lord say, “Thou wicked and slothful servant...” (Matt. 25:26a; cf. Matt. 25:24-30; Luke 19:20-26).

Within the scope of carrying out one’s responsibilities as a servant in the house, a spiritual warfare rages (Eph. 6:10ff). Satan and his angels have allied themselves together against the Lord and His household servants.

Though the battle is the Lord’s (I Sam. 17:47), He is physically absent today; and with the Lord absent in this respect, the attack centers on the Lord’s servants, those of His household.

The present spiritual battle is one involving kingly power from the heavens over the earth. Satan and his angels presently rule in the kingdom, and Christ, along with His co-heirs, will one day take the kingdom.

This warfare is very real. “Christ” is the One Who is destined to one day replace Satan in the kingdom; and “Christians” are the ones destined to, at the same time, replace angels ruling with Satan.

During the coming age, Christ will wear the crown presently worn by Satan, and Christians will wear crowns presently worn by other angels in Satan's kingdom (cf. II Sam. 1:10; Heb. 2:5; Rev. 4:10; 19:12).

Satan knows these things. He, accordingly, knows that the primary mission of the Holy Spirit in the world today is to call out a bride from among the household servants to reign as consort queen with the Son after He receives the kingdom (cf. Gen. 24:3, 4).

And, knowing all of this, he is presently doing everything within his power to thwart God's plans and purposes through bringing about disruption within the house among household servants.

Christians engaged in the present warfare have been called upon to:

"Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called..." (I Tim. 6:12).

Both textually and contextually, this verse could be better translated,

"Strive in the good contest of the faith; lay hold on life for the age, whereunto thou art also called..."

The word "strive" in the latter rendering is a translation of the Greek word agonizomai, from which we derive our English word, "agonize"; and the word "contest" is from the Greek word agon, the noun form of the verb agonizomai.

(Also, the change from "eternal life" to "life for the age" in the latter translation results from a contextual translation of the Greek word aionios, the word translated "eternal" in the verse.

The Greek language does not contain a word for "eternal." The word aionios has to do with a long period of time, with the length of that time determined from the contextual usage of the word.

The long period of time, to which aionios refers, can be understood as "eternal" if the context permits. However, the context of I Tim. 6:12 has to do with an age, the coming Messianic Era [aionios is often used referring to "an age"]. Thus, the preferred translation would be, "life for the age.")

The same thought pertaining to “strive,” as seen in I Tim. 6:12, is also set forth in Jude 3. Because of apostasy among servants in the Lord’s house, Christians are exhorted to:

“...earnestly contend for the faith...”

The words “earnestly contend” are a translation of the Greek word epagonizomai, an intensified form of the word agonizomai. The passage could be better translated:

“...earnestly strive for the faith...”

And understanding this passage in the light of I Tim. 6:12, this is a striving, not to defend “the faith” as some expositors suggest, but a striving with respect to the faith. Such a striving has to do with remaining faithful to one’s calling within the house during a day of apostasy (see the author’s book, Jude, Chapter II).

“The faith” is an expression used in the New Testament referring to Biblical teachings surrounding the Word of the Kingdom, the saving of the soul, not salvation by grace.

This is the message which the Lord will not find being proclaimed in Christendom when He returns, as revealed in Luke 18:8. Rather, He will find Christendom in a state of apostasy, which has to do with Christians occupying positions diametrically opposed to the exhortation, “Strive in the good contest of the faith...”

(The English word “apostasy” is simply a transliterated form of the compound Greek word, apostasia, which means “to stand away from” [apo means “from”; stasis means “to stand”]. True apostasy is a standing away from something previously held — a previously held truth, etc.

Note that apostasy in Scripture has to do with the saved, not with the unsaved. Only the saved can stand away from previously held truth, i.e., apostatize [cf. I Cor. 2:14].)

According to Luke 18:8, along with related Scripture, when Christ returns, He will find Christians, standing away from “the faith” (or, estranged from “the faith” after another fashion), NOT earnestly striving with respect to “the faith.”

(Standing away from “the faith,” in the true sense of apostasy, would really NOT be possible for the vast majority of Christians today. Most Christians today know little to nothing about “the faith,” and they could NOT stand away from something with which they possessed no previous association.

Thus, for most Christians today, the matter would have to be as stated in the parenthetical section of the preceding paragraph — an estrangement from “the faith” after another fashion.)

2) The Result

The result of Satan’s disruptive work in the Lord’s house during the present dispensation is evident on every hand. Striving with respect to the faith in relation to a kingdom is something which Christians don’t seem to know anything about; and the whole of Christendom is in such a state — described in Rev. 3:15-17 — that very few Christians even manifest the slightest interest when the subject is raised.

Christians, by large, see only one issue today — the issue dealing with eternal verities in relation to salvation or damnation. All Scripture is somehow pressed into this mold, and, resultingly, verses which have nothing whatsoever to do with eternal salvation or damnation are made to teach something other than what they deal with. They are made to teach issues concerning one’s eternal destiny.

Take, for example, the parable of the Sower (Matt. 13:3-9, 18-23; Luke 8:4-8, 11-15), the parables of the talents and pounds (Matt. 25:14-30; Luke 19:11-27), the Lord’s teaching about the vine and its branches in John 15:1-8, the warning passages in Hebrews (Heb. 2:1-5, et al.), that being taught about faith and works in James 2:14-26, being born of God in I John (chs. 2-5), or the overcomer’s promises in Rev. 2, 3.

These sections of Scripture — along with numerous other similar sections — are not dealing with one’s eternal destiny at all. Rather, they are dealing with issues pertaining to those who are already saved; and these issues have to do with the coming kingdom.

It is sections of Scripture such as these that are being taken out of the realm of teaching in which they belong by certain Christians today and brought over into a realm of teaching in which they do not belong.

Once this has been done — once passages pertaining to Christian faithfulness, with a view to the coming kingdom, have been removed from their contexts and made to apply to salvation by grace — the things which these passages deal with (Lordship, fruit-bearing, etc.) are ignored, teachings surrounding eternal salvation are dealt with, and the end result is twofold:

- a) The clear, simple message of salvation by grace through faith becomes corrupted.
- b) The door is then closed to the truth of that which these misapplied passages actually do teach.

In this respect, more is involved than just corrupting one message; in the process, another message is done away with.

Thus, the “why” of a corrupted salvation message within the ranks of what is looked upon as fundamental Christianity today, and its wide acceptance, is no mystery. Scripture is being misinterpreted and misapplied. Individuals not understanding the message having to do with the salvation of the soul, the Word of the Kingdom, etc., are taking portions of Scripture dealing with these issues and bringing them over into the realm dealing with the salvation of the spirit, eternal life.

And the reason this is happening can be traced back to the failure of the shepherds to properly care for the sheep. Such a failure was not only caused by the leaven but it has allowed the leaven to do its deteriorating work, unchecked, resulting in the present chaos in the Lord’s house.

“A corrupted message” concerning salvation by grace through faith on the one hand and “the absence of a message” concerning the Word of the Kingdom on the other hand mark that which can be readily seen in numerous quarters today under the guise of fundamental Christianity. This is how complete the leaven has done its deteriorating and damaging work.

(Carrying this back even farther though, the underlying problem behind the whole of the matter, resulting in current conditions in Christendom among those called to be pastor-teachers, is given in Chapter I of this book. It is man's failure to begin where God began [with Moses and the Prophets] and view Scripture after the manner in which God progressively revealed Himself, His plans, and His purposes [beginning with Old Testament history, which is highly typical in nature].

And man's failure to do this has been occurring for decades extending into centuries of time, resulting in the current state of Christendom.)

The Only Answer to the Problem

The only possible means to effect correction where existing problems wrought by the working of the leaven manifest themselves is given in the message to the Church in Laodicea; and the means, revealed through this message, would be the same no matter what doctrinal errors or heresies surfaced in the Church.

This is as it should be, for the Laodicean Church depicts Christendom as a whole near the end of the dispensation after the leaven has done its damaging work, without regard to any particular group of individuals, erroneous doctrines, or heresies. Thus, those mishandling Scripture to the point of teaching a corrupted gospel — and, in the process, closing the door to the Word of the Kingdom — would have to be included, regardless of their purported association with fundamental Christianity.

After all, the Scribes and Pharisees (the fundamental legalists in Israel 2,000 years ago) sat "in Moses' seat"; but they suffered a far greater condemnatory rebuke at the hands of Christ than any other religious group in Israel, even the Sadducees (the more liberal group of that day).

And the reason for this lay in the position which the Scribes and Pharisees held and the attitude which they took toward both Christ and the message being proclaimed. The Scribes and Pharisees formed the largest of the religious sects in Israel; and, because of their numbers, they exerted control over the religious life of the people.

The Scribes and Pharisees (along with the Sadducees at times) followed Christ about the country, seeking, at every turn, to both cast reproach upon the Messenger and counter the message being proclaimed. And through doing this, along with exerting control over the religious life of the people, they “shut up the kingdom of the heavens against men [‘before men,’ ‘in front of men’].” They had no interest in entering this kingdom themselves, and they did everything within their power to see that others didn’t enter the kingdom either (Matt. 23:1ff).

The Lord described the Church in Laodicea as being “wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked” (Rev. 3:17). The thought behind this description, in the light of the Greek text and the next verse (v. 18), is that those in this Church, in a spiritual respect, were miserable individuals who were to be pitied because of their poor, blind, and naked condition. They had no understanding at all of that which Scripture taught on the matter at hand, which centered around the Word of the Kingdom.

Then in verse eighteen, the Lord took the three characteristics (“poor,” “blind,” and “naked”) marking those whom He had described as miserable, pitiful individuals and issued an exhortation:

Concerning their being poor, the Lord stated, “I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich.”

Concerning their being naked, the Lord stated, “...and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear.”

Concerning their being blind, the Lord stated, “...and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.”

The Lord then went on to state, “As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent” (v. 19).

The word “rebuke” from the Greek text contextually has to do with exposing, showing one his fault; and the word “chasten” is the translation of the same Greek word used in Heb. 12:5-11 (translated “chastening,” “chasteneth,” and “chastisement”), referring to child-training, child-instruction.

The teaching from this verse reveals that the Lord, in a situation of this nature, exposes that which is wrong and provides training in that which is right (cf. II Tim. 3:16, 17); and, in view of the fact that He would act after this fashion among the Laodicean Christians, He exhorted those in this Church to “repent” (i.e., in the light of the context, they were exhorted to realize their condition, change their minds, and submit to the truth which the Lord would provide).

Then the Lord pictured Himself as standing at the door of the Laodicean Church, knocking. If anyone in the Church would hear His voice and open the door (hear and heed that which He had said in vv. 18, 19), He would come in and fellowship with that person (v. 20), for a Christian opening the door after this fashion would allow child-training, child-instruction, which would progressively deliver him from the described position of poor, blind, and naked.

(Note that Rev. 3:20 has NOTHING whatsoever to do with the message of salvation by grace through faith, as often taught. This verse has to do, NOT with Christ coming into the heart of an unsaved person, BUT with Christ coming inside the Church in Laodicea to a saved individual.

This verse has to do with a Christian in the condition described in verse seventeen, who heeds the Lord's exhortation in verses eighteen and nineteen, allowing fellowship to exist between himself and his Lord; and the entire matter is with a view to overcoming and one day being allowed to ascend the throne with Christ in His kingdom [v. 21].

Using Rev. 3:20 as a salvation text is a good example of why there is mass confusion in Christendom today concerning salvation by grace through faith on the one hand and mass ignorance concerning the Word of the Kingdom on the other hand. Such a misuse of this verse not only results in an erroneous view of salvation by grace through faith but it also closes the door to that which is actually taught in this passage, which concerns Christians and Christ's coming kingdom.

The subject at hand throughout the seven epistles to the seven Churches in Rev. 2, 3, has to do with faithfulness, works, and overcoming or being overcome, with the coming kingdom in view. There is NOTHING about salvation by grace through faith in these seven epistles, ONLY the saved are in view throughout, and the message in EACH has to do with the Word of the Kingdom.

And the criterion for how the Lord would view ANY Church in the world today, in the light of that seen in these epistles, can be easily determined and understood.

The criterion, as outlined in these epistles, is singular. It has to do with the proclamation or the non-proclamation of ONE CENTRAL MESSAGE, NOTHING more, NOTHING less, NOTHING else.

Thus, how the Lord would look upon and deal with any Church today, relative to that seen in Rev. 3:17-19, could be easily ascertained:

What is that Church doing with and about the message seen in these seven epistles? NOTHING else enters into the matter.)

The critical issue is thus one's reception of correct instruction from the Word of God. And such instruction in Rev. 3:19, contextually, would have to center on a forward look to things of the kingdom, NOT a backward look to things surrounding salvation by grace through faith. The issue at hand is NOT eternal life BUT overcoming with a view to ascending the throne with Christ (v. 21).

In this respect, the heart of the matter actually centers around one coming into an understanding of that which Scripture teaches about the purpose for our salvation, the coming kingdom, etc. And it is apparent that those in Laodicea had little to no concept of these things.

Once a Christian can look ahead and clearly understand that which Scripture teaches about the coming kingdom, he is in a much better position to also look back and clearly understand that which Scripture teaches about salvation by grace through faith.

NOTHING will clarify issues surrounding salvation by grace through faith more than having a clear understanding of that which Scripture teaches concerning the purpose for one's salvation, to be realized in the coming kingdom.

ONLY through such an understanding can works, discipleship, fruit-bearing, etc. be seen in their correct perspective, occupying NO place at all in the simple salvation message having to do with unsaved man passing "from death unto life."

Eternally Saved, But ...

*Eternally Saved, with All Judgment Past
Yet, Awaiting a Future Judgment*

Eternal life is the free “gift of God,” obtained completely apart from works. NOTHING which man does — not one single act, either before or after he becomes a recipient of this life — can have anything at all to do with his salvation, for he has been saved solely by grace through faith; and his salvation is based entirely on the work of Another.

Christ’s finished work at Calvary provides a means of salvation which fallen man can avail himself of through ONE revealed means alone: through receiving that which has already been accomplished on his behalf.

Works are involved in man’s presently possessed eternal salvation, but NOT man’s works. Rather, they are the works of the One Who procured this salvation.

Ruined man himself is totally incapable of works. He CAN’T operate in the spiritual realm, for he is “dead [spiritually] in trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1).

Thus, since redeemed man had nothing to do with bringing to pass his presently possessed eternal salvation, he CAN NEVER be brought into any type judgment where the issue surrounds that which he acquired through Christ’s finished work at Calvary.

A judgment of this nature would not only be judging that which man had nothing to do with but it would also be judging once again that which God has already judged.

God judged sin at Calvary in the person of His Son, and God is satisfied.

Accordingly, the judgment seat of Christ CANNOT function in the realm of one's eternal salvation. Decisions and determinations made at this judgment MUST be based solely upon the actions of the justified — actions following their coming into possession of eternal salvation.

By Grace through Faith

“For by grace are ye saved [‘you have been saved’] through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God:

Not of works, lest any man should boast” (Eph. 2:8, 9).

“Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us...” (Titus 3:5a).

To properly understand issues surrounding the judgment seat of Christ one must begin with a due appreciation for the salvation which Christians presently possess — a salvation which is non-merited and nonforfeitable.

Salvation for fallen man is both free and apart from works, but the procurement of this salvation by God's Son was by no means free and apart from works. God's Son provided this salvation through a vicarious sacrifice — the sacrifice of Himself; and fallen man can do no more than simply receive that which has been provided.

1) It Has Been Finished

Note the words “not of yourselves” and “which we have done” in Eph. 2:8 and Titus 3:5. Both refer to the necessity of the total absence of works on man's part in relation to eternal salvation.

The work has already been accomplished; the price has already been paid. When Christ cried out on the cross, “It is finished” (John 19:30), He announced the completion of a redemptive work which HE ALONE could bring to pass.

The words, “It is finished,” in John 19:30 are the translation of one word in the Greek text (Tetelestai). This word is in the perfect tense and could be better translated, “It has been finished.”

That is, at this point, everything relating to the work of redemption had been accomplished. NOTHING more remained to be done; and, consequently, there was no need for Christ to delay His death.

Accordingly, immediately after Christ cried out, “Tetelestai,” “he bowed his head and gave up the spirit [Gk., pneuma, ‘spirit,’ ‘breath’; i.e., He breathed out, expired].”

The perfect tense in the Greek text calls attention to a work completed in past time, with the results of this work extending into the present and existing in a finished state.

This is the same verb tense used in Eph. 2:8 relative to the present state of redeemed man (“are ye saved”; lit., “you have been saved”). Redeemed man is in possession of a salvation (present) wherein everything has already been accomplished (past) on his behalf.

The Holy Spirit has performed a work (breathing life into the one having no life [cf. Gen. 2:7; Ezek. 37:1-10]) based on Christ’s finished work (at Calvary). Both are past works, and one can no more be nullified than the other.

Redeemed man is as totally helpless to “undo” anything which has been accomplished in bringing about his redemption as he was to “do” something to accomplish his redemption in the first place. Work completed in past time through Divine intervention is not something which man can change, add to, take from, etc.

Consequently, contrary to that which is often taught in certain quarters, redeemed man CANNOT nullify the past work of the Holy Spirit in effecting his present redeemed state, wrought on the basis of Christ’s finished work.

Redeemed man can no more nullify the Spirit’s work in salvation than he can nullify Christ’s finished work at Calvary. Both constitute past, completed works wrought through Divine intervention, and man is COMPLETELY POWERLESS to act in this realm.

2) God’s Established, Unchangeable Pattern

Almost 6,000 years ago, God created man. Then, resulting from Satanic intervention, man fell. Man became a ruined creation. And this was followed by God setting about to restore His ruined creation.

God’s work surrounding man’s restoration was preceded by His work surrounding a restoration of the material creation upon which man was to reside.

Satanic activity had brought about the ruin of the material creation, and then subsequently man's ruin (Gen. 3:1ff; Isa. 14:12-17; Ezek. 28:14-19); and Divine activity alone could bring about the restoration of both (Gen. 1:2b ff).

Ruined man finds himself in exactly the same condition as the ruined earth, seen in Gen. 1:2a. Satanic activity brought about man's ruin, and Divine activity alone can bring about his restoration.

Man is no more capable of bringing himself out of his ruined state than was the ruined earth. And, apart from Divine intervention — as occurred in the restoration of the ruined earth — man would have remained in his ruined condition forever (as the ruined earth, apart from Divine intervention, would have remained in its ruined condition forever, as well).

The former restoration sets the pattern for the latter restoration. The former is God's unchangeable pattern concerning how He restores a ruined creation, forever established in the openings verses of Genesis. And man, a subsequent ruined creation of God, MUST be restored in complete accordance with the established pattern.

In the Genesis account, the Spirit of God moved, God spoke, and light came into existence.

And matters are EXACTLY the same relative to ruined man today — i.e., relative to a subsequent ruined creation.

EXACTLY as in the Genesis account, the first thing which MUST occur is the movement of the Spirit of God. And insofar as ruined man is concerned, this initial act of the Spirit is that of breathing life into the one who is "dead in trespasses and sins."

And the Spirit is able to do this work on the basis of death and shed blood, for, apart from death and shed blood, there can be no salvation (cf. Gen. 3:21; 4:10 [Heb. 12:24]; 22:7-13; Ex. 12:3-13; Heb. 10:22).

In this respect, the Spirit today breathes life into the one having no life on the basis of the finished work of God's Son at Calvary.

The living Word has performed the work, and God has spoken concerning the matter (Ex. 12:6, 7, 12, 13). The Spirit moves, God speaks, and light comes into existence (man is born from above).

And God then divides between the light and the darkness (God divides between the spirit and the soul, between that associated with the man of spirit and that associated with the man of flesh).

Thus, the pattern concerning how God restores a ruined creation was set forth at the very beginning of His Word (Gen. 1:2b ff). And this God-established pattern, set perfect at the outset, CAN NEVER change.

(Note also that a time element was involved in God's complete restoration of the material creation — six days, followed by a Sabbath, a seventh day of rest.

This points to the six days [6,000 years] comprising Man's Day, to be followed by a Sabbath, a seventh day of rest [a seventh 1,000-year period], the Messianic Era [cf. Heb. 4:4, 9].

It will only be at the end of the six days [6,000 years] comprising Man's Day that man will be completely restored — body, soul, and spirit — as the material creation was completely restored at the end of six days in the Genesis account.

ONLY THEN will the Sabbath within this complete sequence ensue; only then can there be a day [a 1000-year period] of rest.

As in the established pattern in Genesis, so will it be in that which events in this pattern foreshadow [Ex. 31:13-17; II Peter 1:16-18; 3:3-8].)

Blood and Leaven

“For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the Lord.

And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where you are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance forever.

Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread; even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that soul shall be cut off from Israel” (Ex. 12:12-15).

There is a dual truth taught in Exodus chapters twelve and thirteen concerning the application of blood and the expelling of leaven. These chapters introduce the first two “feasts of the Lord” in the prophetic calendar of Israel — the “Passover” and the “Feast of Unleavened Bread” (cf. Lev. 23:1ff).

“Blood” from the paschal lambs was to be applied first. Then, those who had applied the blood were to put “leaven out of their houses.”

This is THE UNCHANGEABLE ORDER established by God in the Book of Exodus.

In these two chapters, the sentence of death had fallen upon the firstborn throughout all the land of Egypt (Ex. 12:4, 5). The firstborn in every household, Israelite and Egyptian alike, MUST die.

However, provision was made for all the firstborn in Israel to experience death vicariously. Every household was to take a lamb from the flock, the lamb was to be slain, and blood from the lamb was to be applied “on the two side posts and on the upper door post” of every house throughout the camp of Israel.

When the Lord passed through the land of Egypt to execute the sentence of death, He looked for ONE THING at each house. He looked for the blood upon the entrance way.

The presence of blood showed that the firstborn in that household had already died. Death had occurred vicariously through a slain lamb from the flock.

The Lord then passed over that house. The absence of blood, on the other hand, showed that the firstborn had not yet died. Death then occurred at the hands of the Lord, for the firstborn in every household MUST die.

It cannot be overemphasized that THE ONLY THING which the Lord looked for on this particular night was THE BLOOD. “... when I see the blood, I will pass over you” (Ex. 12:12, 13). NOTHING ELSE was in view.

And once the death of the firstborn had been executed, that was THE END of the matter. Those who died vicariously held the same position relative to death in the eyes of the Lord as those who died apart from a substitute. The death of the firstborn had occurred in both instances, and God was satisfied.

NOTHING could, at a later time, be reversed.

In the antitype of this aspect of Exodus chapters eleven and twelve, “Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us [was sacrificed on our behalf]" (I Cor. 5:7). His blood was shed; and those who have appropriated His blood, through faith, have died vicariously.

Death has occurred through the slain Lamb, as in Exodus chapter twelve. "Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures" (Ex. 12:1-13, 29, 30; John 1:29; 19:16-30; I Cor. 15:3). And an individual availing himself of this provision has already kept the appointment with death referred to in Heb. 9:27.

The death of the firstborn is past, God is satisfied, and that is the end of the matter. As in Exodus chapter twelve, NOTHING can, at a later time, be reversed.

Following the Passover in Egypt, God dealt with the Israelites on an entirely different plane. The Israelites, from this time forward, were dealt with strictly on the basis of that which had occurred in Egypt, NEVER relative to this matter.

And it is exactly the same with Christians today. Christians are dealt with strictly on the basis of that which Christ has done on their behalf, NEVER relative to this matter.

Immediately following the Passover, the Feast of Unleavened Bread commenced. Beginning with this festival, God dealt with the Israelites relative to "leaven" in their houses, NOT relative to that which had previously occurred (the death of the firstborn) and was now a past, finished matter.

The Israelites were to put leaven out of their houses, and they were to eat unleavened bread for seven days. "Seven" is God's number, as "six" is man's number. "Six" shows incompleteness, and "seven" shows completeness, with "eight" indicating a new beginning. The Israelites were to put leaven out of their homes and eat unleavened bread for one complete period of time, immediately following the Passover.

"Leaven" points to that which is vile or corrupt; it points to sin in the lives of individuals. And the spiritual significance of this festival surrounded the fact that the Israelites, as God's redeemed people, were to put that which was vile, corrupt, associated with sin, out of the camp for one complete period of time, which could only foreshadow the existence of the nation from that point forward.

An individual Israelite refusing to expel the leaven was "cut off from Israel" (cf. Ex. 12:15; Ps. 37:9, 22, 28, 29, 34). He died on the right side of the blood. He was cut off from Israel, not from God.

The same held true for the entire accountable generation subsequently cut off following events at Kadesh-Barnea. They too died on the right side of the blood. Their failure to enter into the land, resulting in their overthrow in the wilderness, had NO BEARING WHATSOEVER on their standing before God on the basis of that which had previously occurred the night of the Passover in Egypt.

And the entire matter is EXACTLY THE SAME in Christendom today.

Christians are commanded to “keep the feast,” which is to be done in a new way, “with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth” (I Cor. 5:8). Christians are to put that which is vile, corrupt, associated with sin, out of their lives for one complete period of time, which can only foreshadow the entire duration of the Christian life.

Christians refusing to expel the leaven will, as the Israelites who refused to expel the leaven, be “cut off.”

The Israelites under Moses were called out of Egypt to go into another land and realize an inheritance awaiting the nation. Those cut off in Israel forfeited the realization of their calling. They fell on the right side of the blood but outside the land to which they had been called.

And so it will be with Christians. Those refusing to expel the leaven will forfeit the realization of their calling. They will fall on the right side of the blood but outside the land to which they had been called.

Such a failure, as in the type, will have NO bearing upon that which previously occurred in their lives through the work of the Son and the Holy Spirit in effecting their standing before God.

Many Christians, because of the sins of the flesh, have their lives cut short during the present time. However, this is not the primary meaning of being “cut off.” Those “cut off” in Israel were separated from a realization of their calling. They were called out of Egypt for a purpose; and most were overthrown, failing to realize the goal of their calling.

Such an overthrow for Christians in the antitype awaits the issues of the judgment seat of Christ, for it is there that decisions and determinations which directly affect Christians relative to their calling will be made.

God WILL NOT countenance sin in the lives of His people; and before the judgment seat, the harbored sins of Christians will be brought out into the open and dealt with.

Those having refused to judge their sins prior to that time, availing themselves of the high priestly ministry of Christ, will then be judged. Their sins in that day though will be dealt with in an entirely different manner; for, at that time, Christ will be their Judge rather than their High Priest (cf. I Cor. 11:31; I John 1:9-2:2).

Basis for Judgment

“For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble;

Every man’s work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by [‘in’] fire; and the fire shall try every man’s work of what sort it is.

If any man’s work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward.

If any man’s work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by [‘through’] fire” (I Cor. 3:11-15).

Something little understood today is the fact that the “basis” for all of God’s judgments is ALWAYS WORKS.

God judged sin at Calvary, based on His Son’s completed work; and when God views redeemed man today, He views this past completed work of His Son and past judgment upon sin. Redeemed man, through the Spirit having breathed into him, possesses spiritual life; and Christ’s righteous, justifying act — His finished work at Calvary — has been reckoned as merit to him (Rom. 5:16-18; Phile. 18).

However, redeemed man in this standing before God is directly responsible to his Creator; and he, in his justified state, will himself be judged on the basis of works — his own works, performed following salvation (Matt. 16:27; I Cor. 3:12-15).

WORKS will be the basis for all of God’s subsequent judgments upon man — Christians, Israel, Gentiles coming out of the Great Tribulation, and those appearing before the Great White Throne.

Man's appearance or nonappearance at a particular judgment, or place in this judgment (e.g., man's appearance at the judgment seat of Christ, or at the great white throne judgment 1,000 years later), is dependent on his acceptance or rejection of the past work of Another; but judgment of the individual will be on the basis of his own works, which will be performed either as a redeemed or as an unredeemed individual (Ezek. 20:34-38; II Cor. 5:9-11; Rev. 20:11-15).

Before the judgment seat of Christ, "Every man's work shall be made manifest...it shall be revealed by [in] fire." There will be works comparable to "gold, silver, precious stones"; and there will be works comparable to "wood, hay, stubble."

One set of material reveals works of intrinsic value, which will endure the fire; but the other set of material reveals valueless works, which will be burned in the fire.

Works performed by Christians during the present time can vary a great deal in worth. Such works can be performed under the leadership of the Holy Spirit and redound to the praise, honor, and glory of the Lord; or such works can be performed under the leadership of man and redound to the praise, honor, and glory of man.

At the judgment seat, all will be revealed; for "the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."

1) "Works...Revealed by Fire"

Works emanate out of faithfulness to one's calling and bring faith to its proper goal, which will result in the salvation of one's soul (cf. James 2:14-26; I Peter 1:5-11).

At the judgment seat, the worth of every man's work in this realm will be revealed; and decisions and determinations emanating out of this judgment will determine every man's position in the coming kingdom (cf. Matt. 16:24-27; 24:45-51; 25:14-30; Luke 19:12-27).

"Judgment" on the basis of works is alien to the thinking of many Christians, for they have been exposed time and again to a proclamation of salvation by grace through faith apart from works, unbalanced by the proclamation of the coming judgment of Christians on the basis of works. The emphasis has been placed almost entirely upon the finished work of Christ at Calvary, with little regard given to Christian living, the coming judgment seat, and the coming kingdom.

Teachings of this nature have centered almost solely around the salvation which we presently possess; and things having to do with the inheritance awaiting Christians, the salvation of the soul, etc., have been removed from their respective contexts and applied to our present salvation. Ministries centering around this type teaching in the Churches have produced both confusion and complacency in Christendom.

Then, there is another type widespread teaching in the Churches which recognizes works but has every Christian performing good works. The reasoning of those who teach along these lines centers around the thought that if a person is really saved he will produce good works; if, on the other hand he doesn't produce good works, this simply shows that he was never really saved in the first place.

Aside from being completely contrary to any Scriptural teaching on the subject, such a teaching produces both an erroneous view of salvation by grace through faith and an erroneous view of issues surrounding the judgment seat of Christ.

If every Christian produces good works to show that he has been saved, then works will have enter into an area where works cannot exist.

“And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwise work is no more work” (Rom. 11:6).

The presence or absence of works on the part of Christians can have no connection whatsoever with their prior reception of the finished work of Christ. Christ's finished work allows an individual to be placed in the position where he can produce good works.

And there is NOTHING in Scripture which teaches that he, of necessity, will produce good works. Such would be completely contrary to the teaching of salvation by grace through faith apart from works.

Man's works simply CANNOT enter into salvation by grace at any time, either preceding or following salvation.

Relative to eternal salvation, man simply CANNOT do anything to:

- 1) Be saved.
- 2) Stay saved.
- 3) Show that he has been saved.

If man could do any one of the three, salvation would cease to be by grace through faith, for man's works would have entered into an area where works of this nature cannot exist.

If it be maintained that every Christian must produce good works to show that he has been saved, then it must follow that every Christian would appear at the judgment seat of Christ with works which would "abide" the fire. Possessing works of this nature, every Christian would "receive a reward."

But such a thought is at once seen to be erroneous by reference to the text in I Corinthians chapter three. There will be Christians appearing at the judgment seat who will "suffer loss" and "be saved; yet so as by ['through'] fire" (v. 15). ALL of their works will be burned, but they themselves will "be saved," i.e., they themselves will be delivered. And this deliverance will occur "through fire."

This deliverance at the judgment seat can have NOTHING to do with eternal salvation, for all issues surrounding one's eternal salvation, whether during the present time or at the future judgment seat, are past issues (e.g., Christ's finished work at Calvary, the Spirit's finished work of breathing life into the one having no life, allowing him to pass "from death unto life").

God judged sin in the person of His Son at Calvary, God is satisfied, and the Spirit can breathe life into the one having no life on the basis of the finished work of God's Son.

And this work of the triune Godhead is a past, finished deliverance which could NEVER be referred to in the future sense seen in I Cor. 3:15.

The deliverance seen in I Cor. 3:15 is, contextually, a deliverance out of the fire at the judgment seat. Though all of the person's works will be burned and he will appear naked in Christ's presence (Rev. 3:17, 18), he himself will not be burned. Rather, he will be delivered — delivered from being burned with his works.

But, though he himself will be delivered in this respect, "so as by [“through”] fire,” he will be unable to escape the dire consequences which will result from his works being consumed by the fire and his consequent naked appearance.

And there can be NO deliverance from these consequences, for there will HAVE TO BE a “just recompense” — exact payment for services rendered in the house during the time of the Lord’s absence.

If anything other than the preceding were to occur at the Judgment seat, God would NOT be perfectly just and righteous in His dealings with His household servants.

One-sided views of the judgment seat which maintain that every Christian will appear with good works are little different than the teaching which ignores works. Confusion and complacency, once again, can only be the ultimate result.

Much of the preceding, erroneous teaching is fostered by a misunderstanding of I Cor. 4:5. This verse in the King James Version reads,

“Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts: and then shall every man have praise of God.”

The problem emanates from both a mistranslation in the text and a non-contextual understanding of the words, “then shall every man have praise of God.” The words “every man” could be better translated “each man”; and the reference is back to the faithful stewards in verse two.

Faithful stewards will, individually, receive praise from God; but there is NOTHING in Scripture which teaches that “every man,” which, apart from the context would also include unfaithful stewards, will receive such praise.

To the contrary. Scripture quite clearly reveals that both faithful and unfaithful stewards will appear at the judgment seat, that the judgment seat will be operable in two realms, and that faithful stewards alone will receive praise of God.

2) “If Any Man’s Work Abide”

“Rewards” are being reserved for the faithful alone. This is one side of the judgment seat. Christians have been “created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:10).

Works of this nature, performed by a Christian exhibiting faithfulness to his calling, will "abide" at the judgment seat. They will be manifested as works comparable to "gold, silver, precious stones" and will endure the fire. Such works will result in the Christian receiving a reward and a position with Christ in the kingdom.

Works which endure the fire will be the type works necessary to bring faith to its proper goal, resulting in the salvation of the Christian's soul. Following the testing of such works, the Christian will receive praise from his Lord. He will hear his Lord say,

"Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things..." (Matt. 25:21a, 23a).

And he will subsequently be positioned, in a regal capacity, among those destined to rule as joint-heirs with Christ (Matt. 24:45-47; 25:19-23; Luke 19:15-19).

3) "If Any Man's Work Shall Be Burned"

"Suffering loss" is in store for the unfaithful. This is the other side of the judgment seat. It is possible for a Christian to appear before the judgment seat of Christ without one single good work to his credit.

He will possess works, but not works done under the direction of the Holy Spirit, for the praise, honor, and glory of the Lord. Such works, comparable to "wood, hay, stubble" will be burned. They will not endure the fire. But the Christian himself "shall be saved ['delivered']; yet so as by ['through'] fire."

The presence of works, the absence of works, or the type works can have NO BEARING on his eternal salvation, wrought completely apart from his own works. He will come out of this judgment, as Lot from Sodom, with nothing to show but escape from the condemnation befalling the unregenerate.

Works consumed by fire will be the type works unable to bring faith to its proper goal, resulting in the loss of the Christian's soul.

Following the testing of such works, the Christian will be rebuked by his Lord. He will hear his Lord say, “Thou wicked and slothful servant...” (Matt. 25:26a).

Then, that which had been entrusted to him during the time of his Lord’s absence will be taken from him. He will be denied a position with Christ in the kingdom, a position which could have been his had he previously exercised faithfulness in his calling; and he will then be appointed “his portion with the hypocrites.” (Matt. 24:48-51; 25:19, 24-30; Luke 19:15, 20-26).

He will then find himself cast “without,” into the place which Scripture calls, “the outer darkness” (ASV). In this place there will be “the weeping and the gnashing of teeth [an Eastern expression denoting deep grief]” (ASV) on the part of Christians who realize too late that they could have occupied one of the proffered positions with Christ in His kingdom. Their rights as firstborn sons — the rights of primogeniture — will have been forfeited; and they, as Esau, will lift up their voices and weep.

(For a detailed discussion of “the outer darkness,” refer to the Appendix in the author’s book, Judgment Seat of Christ.)

Concluding Thoughts:

Receiving rewards or suffering loss at the judgment seat of Christ are grave issues about which most Christians seem to know very little, or, for that matter, appear to even be concerned. But such will have no bearing upon the fact that there is a day coming in the not too-distant future when every Christian MUST render an account to his Lord for the “things done in his body” (II Cor. 5:10).

Events of that day will come to pass at the end of the present dispensation, immediately preceding the Tribulation and the Messianic Era; issues of that day will surround a review of the works performed by Christians in view of their receiving rewards or suffering loss; the purpose of that day, aside from providing a “just recompense,” will be to make decisions and determinations concerning Christians occupying positions with Christ in His 1,000-year rule from the heavens over the earth.

Everything is moving toward that 1,000-year Messianic Era when God's Son will reign supreme. Man's Day, in conjunction with man's rule upon the earth, is about to end; and the Lord's Day, in conjunction with Christ's rule over the earth, is about to commence.

A kingdom, such as the coming kingdom of Christ, requires a King with numerous vice-regents, and Christians are presently being tested, tried, refined, with a view to that coming day.

Events of the entire present dispensation revolve around the thought that God is today calling out the vice-regents who will reign with His Son during the coming dispensation; and the presence of the Church upon the earth will extend, in one sense of the word, to that point in time when God will have acquired the necessary rulers to occupy the proffered positions in the kingdom under Christ. It will extend to that point in time when the Spirit successfully completes His search for a bride for God's Son (Gen. 24).

The removal of the Church and the appearance of Christians before the judgment seat will involve the issues of two dispensations:

The basis for this judgment will have to do with works, emanating out of faithfulness or unfaithfulness of the Lord's servants during a past dispensation (the activity of Christians during the present dispensation, which will be past in that coming day).

The purpose for this judgment will have to do with Christians participating in the reign of God's Son during the coming dispensation (co-heirs ascending the throne with God's Son in the kingdom of Christ).

(For information relative to "dispensations" and "ages," refer to the author's book, The Study of Scripture, Chapter V.)

Preparation occurs today; placement, based upon preparation, will emanate out of issues and determinations made at the judgment seat, immediately preceding the time when the Father delivers the kingdom to His Son (cf. Dan. 4:17, 25, 32; 7:13, 14; Matt. 20:20-23); and positions in the kingdom will be realized during the reign of Christ which follows (cf. Matt. 25:19ff; Luke 19:15ff; Rev. 2:26, 27).

Saved for a Purpose

A Purpose Which Has to Do with regality

Man has been, is being, and will be saved for a revealed PURPOSE. There is a revealed GOAL in view; and, relative to salvation (past [Eph. 2:8, 9], present [I Cor. 1:18], or future [Heb. 1:14]), that GOAL is ALWAYS the SAME in Scripture, regardless of what aspect of man's salvation is in view.

That GOAL is the SAME for the WHOLE of man's salvation — spirit, soul, and body.

That GOAL has to do with man being placed back in the position for which he was created in the beginning, and that position will be realized during the Messianic Era.

(This is the manner in which Scripture presents salvation throughout, with the unchangeable foundational pattern set in the opening thirty-four verses of Genesis [1:1-2:3].

The inhabited world to come will NOT be placed in subjection to angels, as the present world [Heb. 2:5]. THIS is the message seen throughout Scripture.

A new order of Sons is about to be brought on the scene [Rom. 8:18-23] — Christ and His co-heirs. And, from a Scriptural standpoint, man's salvation CENTERS on that coming day when this new order of Sons holds the sceptre and rules the earth.)

Man invariably deals with salvation in relation to eternity and going to heaven.

Scripture though, on the other hand, DOESN'T do this. Scripture deals with salvation in a completely inverse fashion.

Scripture deals with salvation in relation to:

The PURPOSE for man's creation.

The REASON Satan brought about man's fall.

And the REASON God acted in relation to man's restoration following the fall.

In short, Scripture deals with salvation in relation to what can be found in the opening four chapters of Genesis, where the preceding occurred, with the latter continuing throughout Scripture.

In this respect, as will be shown, Scripture deals with salvation centrally in relation to a KINGDOM (the Kingdom of the Heavens, presently ruled by Satan and his angels, to one day be ruled by Christ and His co-heirs) and the Messianic Era (that future time when Christ will have taken the KINGDOM and He and His co-heirs rule the earth in the stead of Satan and his angels).

Heaven (the present dwelling place of God) and the eternal ages beyond the Messianic Era are mentioned at times, but NOT relative to salvation in the same sense that man invariably relates them to salvation today.

In the previous respect, man is NOT going to spend either the Messianic Era or the eternal ages which follow in the place known today as heaven.

And, in relation to the eternal ages which follow the Messianic Era, God is NOT going to dwell in this place either. God is going to dwell on the new earth throughout the ages comprising eternity (Rev. 22:1ff).

And even when Scripture does deal with saved man in heaven (e.g., Christians following death, or Christians following the rapture) matters are always completely consistent with the way Scripture elsewhere deals with saved man. If future time comes into view, Scripture, first and foremost, references things pertaining to the Messianic Era, NOT the ages beyond.

The Messianic Era, Ages Beyond

In several instances, the Messianic Era appears to be connected with and seen as the first of these ages (e.g., Luke 1:33; Eph. 2:7); but other Scripture, adding details, shows that a sharp distinction exists between the Messianic Era and the ages beyond (e.g., cf. Rev. 2:26, 27; 3:21; 22:1, 3).

During the Messianic Era, man will dwell either on a restored earth or in the heavens above this restored earth, with there being a Jerusalem above and a Jerusalem below (capital cities both over and on the earth, with Christians [along with certain Old Testament and Tribulation saints (probably also believing Jews from the Gospel and Acts period)] inhabiting the city above, and Israel inhabiting the city below).

During this era, there will be a rule from the heavens over the earth. And this rule, as today, will originate with God in heaven and progress through rulers placed in the heavens in relation to this earth.

Today, this rule progresses from God through Satan and his angels (though rebel rulers), who reside in the heavens above the earth.

But during that coming day this rule will progress from God through His Son and His Son's co-heirs, who will reside in the new Jerusalem above the earth.

A rule of the preceding nature, from the heavens over the earth, existing today, MUST continue during the Messianic Era, for this is the manner in which God established the government of the earth in the beginning.

Such a rule MUST continue as long as the earth remains, which will be until the end of the Messianic Era — to the full end of the seven days, the 7,000 years, set forth in the beginning (Gen. 1:1-2:3).

A rule from the heavens over the earth (one province in God's kingdom) is not only the way in which God originally established the government of the earth but the way in which He evidently established His government throughout all other parts of the universe as well (all other provinces in His kingdom).

And this can NEVER change in relation to any one province, for "the heavens do rule" (cf. Dan. 4:25, 26).

Thus, God's Son, with His co-heirs, MUST rule throughout the Messianic Era in EXACT ACCORD with the way God established the government of the earth in the beginning. And such a governmental rule will have to continue during this time, for the present earth will not pass out of existence UNTIL the end of the Messianic Era (Rev. 21:1-5).

God's Son, with His co-heirs, will rule over the earth for 1,000 years — the earth's coming Sabbath, foreshadowed by the seventh day in Gen. 2:1-3 (cf. Ex. 31:13-17; Heb. 4:1-9). They will rule for 1,000 years to effect order where disorder has prevailed for millenniums in one province in God's universe.

And once order has been restored, the kingdom will be delivered up to God the Father, that God might be "all in all [i.e., permeate ALL, be 'everything in all things'."]"

THEN, once this has occurred, the present heavens (evidently a reference to our solar system, not the galaxies) and earth will be destroyed, a new heavens and a new earth will be brought into existence, and the new earth will become the place in the new heavens (as the earth today, suspended at a point in the heavens) from whence universal rule will emanate.

God will move His throne to the new earth, the Son will sit with His Father on this throne (called "the throne of God and of the Lamb"), and man will exercise power from this throne as well (II Peter 3:10ff; Rev. 21:1ff; 22:1-5).

Regality, the Earth, the Universe

Thus, therein lies man's destiny, NOT going to heaven per se but realizing the PURPOSE for his creation, fall, and redemption in the beginning, as seen in the opening four chapters of Genesis.

Man's destiny has to do with REGALITY, the EARTH, and the UNIVERSE — FIRST, ruling over this present earth from the new Jerusalem above the earth (during the Messianic Era); THEN, ruling out in the universe from the new Jerusalem on the new earth (during the ages which follow).

Salvation in Scripture is ALWAYS dealt with in relation to the full scope of Scripture, beginning in Genesis.

And Scripture, in this respect, deals CENTRALLY with a kingdom, regality, and everything moving toward a seventh day, a seventh 1,000-year period.

Events during this coming day, the Messianic Era, MUST be brought to pass FIRST. And therein lies the reason why Scripture deals with man centrally in relation to this time, with the ages beyond seldom being in view (regardless of which aspect of salvation is being dealt with — past, present, or future).

ONLY following the Messianic Era can the ages which lie beyond this era be brought into view in ALL their fullness.

During the present time the ages are briefly dealt with in Scripture so that man can have some understanding of God's plan for the ages, where the whole of the matter — 6,000 years, followed by a 1,000-year Messianic Era — will eventually lead.

But, ONLY following the Messianic Era will matters move beyond that dealt with extensively in Scripture.

ONLY then will God begin to open up and fully reveal that which will occur during the period which man thinks of today as eternity.

And the manner in which Scripture presents this whole matter — particularly as it relates to man's salvation — has become very difficult, practically impossible, for most Christians to see and grasp.

These Christians have been taught wrong for years — not necessarily concerning HOW to be saved, but concerning the PURPOSE for salvation and that which lies AHEAD for redeemed man.

And because this erroneous teaching pertaining to salvation has become so ingrained within their way of thinking, attempts to present salvation from the correct Biblical perspective are usually met with askance looks, opposition, or antagonism on almost every hand.

When that depicted by the woman placing the leaven in the three measures of meal in Matt. 13:33 occurred very early in the dispensation — which concerned an attempt on Satan's part to corrupt ALL Biblical doctrine having to do with the Word of the Kingdom — ALL things related to this specific realm of Biblical doctrine began to be adversely affected.

And this working of the leaven, of necessity, would extend even into the Biblical scope of salvation by grace.

This would have to be the case because of the inseparable connection salvation by grace has with the Word of the Kingdom.

It is man passing “from death unto life” which places him in a position where he can realize the salvation of his soul.

And matters become even more negative surrounding the relationship which salvation by grace has with the Word of the Kingdom through the message of those advocating Lordship Salvation.

Those proclaiming this message take things having to do with the Word of the Kingdom and seek to bring these things over into and apply them to the message of salvation by grace (i.e., things having to do with present and future aspects of salvation are removed from their respective contexts and applied to things having to do with past aspects of salvation).

And, through this means, those proclaiming this type message not only corrupt the message of salvation by grace but they also destroy the message surrounding the Word of the Kingdom.

Interestingly enough, those who proclaim the message of salvation by grace correctly but ignore the Word of the kingdom and those who proclaim a lordship salvation message (who, through this means, corrupt one message and destroy the other) form two major groups in Christendom today.

Those from these two groups remain at almost complete odds with one another on the message of salvation by grace; but when it comes to correctly relating this message to the kingdom — particularly seeing the kingdom in any semblance of a correct matter, drawing from the opening four chapter of Genesis in a foundational respect — it can only be said of both groups that they have been similarly, adversely affected by the same leavening process which is rampant in the Laodicean Church of today.

Appendix

Salvation

Without Money, Without Price

Eternal life is the free “gift of God,” obtained completely apart from works. NOTHING which man does — NOT one single act, either before or after he becomes a recipient of this life — can have anything at all to do with the fact that this life becomes the present possession of an individual SOLELY by grace (that which God is able to do entirely apart from human intervention or merit) through faith (through believing on God’s Son [Eph. 2:8, 9]).

Christ’s finished work at Calvary provides a salvation which fallen man can avail himself of ONLY by receiving that which has already been accomplished on his behalf — through believing.

“For by grace are ye saved [lit., ‘you have been saved’] through faith [or, ‘through believing’]; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast” (Eph. 2:8, 9).

“Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us...” (Titus 3:5a).

Unredeemed man is totally incapable of effecting any part of his salvation. He is spiritually dead. He is “dead in trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1).

And being spiritually dead, unredeemed man, before he can act in the spiritual realm, MUST come into possession of spiritual life, which can come ONLY from God (Gen. 2:7). EVERYTHING surrounding his passing from death unto life MUST be accomplished on his behalf.

Thus, unredeemed man can only be completely passive in the matter. The total inability of fallen, ruined man to act in the realm of redemption has forever been foreshadowed in Scripture at the very beginning by a prior ruin — the ruin of the material creation in Gen. 1:2a.

The material creation, as man, was brought into a ruined state through an act of Satan; and the material creation in this ruined state, as man, could undergo NO change in and of itself. This is the reason why the first thing we read in Gen. 1:2b, 3 concerning the restoration of the material creation is:

“...And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.
And God said, Let there be light: and there was light.”

This act of restoration was accomplished, in its entirety, through Divine intervention.

And so it is with unredeemed man. The Spirit of God performs a work in the individual, based upon Christ's past, finished work. The Spirit of God moves, God speaks, and light comes into existence.

Man passes “from death unto life.” A bringing forth from above occurs, and it is ALL based on the finished work of God's Son at Calvary.

Salvation for fallen man is both free and apart from works, but the procurement of this salvation by God's Son was by no means free and apart from works. God's Son provided this salvation through a vicarious sacrifice — the sacrifice of Himself; and fallen man can do NO more than simply receive that which God's Son has provided.

Fallen man is NO more in a position to bring himself out of his ruined state than was the ruined material creation. Divine intervention was/is required in both instances.

The former restoration sets the pattern for the latter restoration. It is God's unchangeable pattern, FOREVER established in the opening verses of Genesis.

Man, a subsequent ruined creation of God, MUST be restored in exact accordance with the established pattern.

Note the words “not of yourselves” and “which we have done” in Eph. 2:8 and Titus 3:5. Both refer to the necessity of the complete absence of works on man's part in relation to eternal salvation.

The work has already been accomplished; the price has already been paid. When Christ cried out on the Cross, “It is finished” (John 19:30), He announced the completion of a redemptive work which He alone could, and did, perform.

The words, “It is finished,” in John 19:30 are the translation of one word in the Greek text — Tetelestai. This word is in the perfect tense and could be better translated, “It has been finished.” That is, at this point, everything relating to the work of redemption had been accomplished. Nothing more remained to be done. Accordingly, immediately after Christ cried out, Tetelestai, “he bowed his head and gave up the spirit” (i.e., He breathed out, expired).

The perfect tense in the Greek text calls attention to a work completed in past time, with the results of this work extending into present time and existing in a finished state.

This is the same verb tense used in Eph. 2:8 relative to the present state of redeemed man — “For by grace are ye saved...”; lit., “For by grace you have been saved...” The person was saved during past time, with the results of God’s work surrounding his salvation extending into and existing during present time in a finished state.

Redeemed man is in possession of a salvation (present) wherein everything has already been accomplished (past) on his behalf. The Holy Spirit has performed a work based on Christ’s past, finished work. The Spirit has breathed life into the one previously having no life, and the Spirit could perform this work only because of Christ’s past, finished work at Calvary.

Thus, redeemed man is presently in possession of a salvation wherein everything was accomplished in past time through Divine intervention, with everything extending into and existing during present time in a finished state.

And this work, completed in past time through Divine intervention — whether Christ’s finished work at Calvary, or the Spirit breathing life into the one having no life — is not only something which unsaved man cannot have a part in but it is also something which saved man cannot change, add to, or take from.

Man is powerless to act in this complete realm. The matter is as Jonah stated immediately prior to his deliverance from the sea: “Salvation is of the Lord” (Jonah 2:9b).

Man can do NO more than simply receive that which has already been done. That's why Scripture states:

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ [put your trust, reliance, in the One Who has accomplished everything on your behalf], and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

Salvation

Spirit, Soul

The Bible is a book of redemption; and basic, unchangeable teachings surrounding redemption are set forth in Scripture, at the very beginning, revealing a purpose in view.

In the first chapter of Genesis, God sets forth the unchangeable manner in which He, in His infinite wisdom and knowledge, restores a ruined creation.

There is a restorative work which follows a specific pattern, and the matter is accomplished entirely through Divine intervention. And within this unchangeable pattern set forth at the very beginning, God reveals how any subsequent ruined creation would, of necessity, have to be restored. It would have to be restored after a certain order, entirely through Divine intervention, over a six-day (a six-thousand-year) period.

Thus, to establish correct thinking relative to the fundamentals of salvation, one MUST begin in Genesis. If all those holding erroneous views had begun in Genesis chapter one and understood and adhered to that which God set forth at the very beginning concerning how a ruined creation is to be restored, NOT a single erroneous view concerning salvation would exist today. Such COULDN'T exist.

And, going to more specific thoughts concerning salvation, the preceding would equally apply to NOT only the salvation of the spirit BUT the salvation of the soul as well.

Within the structure of that foreshadowed by this foundational framework, the salvation which we presently possess could ONLY be realized at the very BEGINNING of the six days, on day one; but the salvation of the soul (a salvation occurring at the end of one's faith, or as the goal of one's faith [I Peter 1:5, 9]) is an on-going process and is to be realized ONLY at the END of the six days, on the seventh day.

In this respect, the unchangeable basics pertaining to redemption in relation to the whole of that which, in reality, is the man himself (both spirit and soul [which, as well, would include the body]), having to do with past, present, and future aspects of salvation) have been set forth at the very beginning of Scripture, in Gen. 1:1-2:3.

And if a person would understand salvation within its correct perspective, avoiding all error, he MUST begin here. HERE — and ONLY HERE — can a person see the unchangeable foundation, setting forth the unchangeable basics, laid down at the very beginning.

Salvation of the Spirit

Hebrews 4:12 reveals a penetration of the Word into the innermost depths of man's being, effecting, though this means, a division between soul and spirit. And this is a teaching drawn from the very opening verses of Genesis (as seen earlier in this same section in Hebrews relative to the "rest" set before "the people of God" [vv. 4, 9]).

The Spirit of God moves in Gen. 1:2b, and God speaks in Gen. 1:3, with light then coming into existence. In relation to man's salvation, it is at this point (in what would be referred to as the foundational type) that a division is made between man's soul and his spirit (in what would be referred to as the antitype).

Genesis 1:2b, 3, in this respect, records the initial act of the Triune Godhead in bringing about the restoration of the ruined material creation, an act in which the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit each participated (note that NOTHING can come into existence apart from the Son [John 1:3]).

In the antitype, within the framework of man's salvation experience, the matter is identical. There MUST be an act of the Triune Godhead, for this is how God worked to restore a ruined creation in the Genesis account, establishing an unchangeable pattern for a later work.

Thus, as in the type, so in the antitype — the Spirit of God moves, God speaks, and light comes into existence.

EVERYTHING is based on the Son's finished work at Calvary.

The Spirit moving and God speaking are both based on that which occurred almost 2,000 years ago. When the Son cried out from the Cross, "It is finished [lit., 'It has been finished']" (John 19:30; cf. Luke 23:46), He meant EXACTLY that; and when the Word of God reveals that we have a salvation of Divine origin, based entirely on the Son's finished work, this Word also means EXACTLY what it states.

When man sinned in the garden, he died spiritually; and when unregenerate man, "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1), is made alive today, he is made alive spiritually.

The movement of the Spirit (Gen. 1:2b) and God speaking (Gen. 1:3) in order to restore the ruined creation are simultaneous events. It is the Spirit using the God-breathed Word to effectually perform a supernatural work in unredeemed man.

It is at this point — through the in-breathing of God — that life is imparted to that which previously had no life. God breathes into dead man (the Spirit using the God-breathed Word, based on the finished work of the Son), and man is "quickened ['made alive']" (Eph. 2:1, 5).

*At this point, light shines "out of darkness" (II Cor. 4:6), a division is made between the light and the darkness (Gen. 1:4), and the darkness has no apprehension or comprehension of that which is light (John 1:5; cf. I Cor. 2:14).*

It is at this point in man's salvation that the spirit is separated from the soul.

The "spirit" in unsaved man is dead. It is a part of the totally depraved man, with his "body of...death," in which there dwells "no good thing" (Rom. 7:18, 24). With the movement of the Spirit, using the God-breathed Word, man's spirit is made alive and, at the same time, separated from his soul.

The "soul" remains within the sphere of darkness, which is why "the natural [Gk., psuchikos, 'soulical'] man" cannot understand "the things of the Spirit of God" (I Cor. 2:14). That which remains in the sphere of darkness can have no apprehension or comprehension of that associated with light. There is a God-established division between the two which cannot be crossed over (cf. Luke 16:26).

(Note that the preceding, as well, forms Scripture's foundational teaching pertaining to the reason why Christ becoming one's Lord [cf. Luke 6:46] CANNOT be an integral part of salvation by grace.)

Salvation of the Soul

The preceding process is the manner which God uses to deliver the spirit from its fallen state, resulting from Adam's sin. And because the spirit has been delivered, there can once again be communion with God.

Man can now comprehend spiritual things, and there can now be a progressive, continued work by the Spirit of God within man so that he can ultimately be delivered to the place which God has decreed that he occupy at the end of six days, at the end of six thousand years.

Within the framework of the type in Genesis chapter one, this is the very first thing which is foreshadowed. This had to be set forth first, for man has to first be made alive — he has to first pass “from death unto life” — before anything else in the restorative process can occur.

Thus, this is foreshadowed at the very beginning of the six days which God, in accordance with the established pattern, would use to bring about man's complete restoration — spirit, soul, and body (cf. I Thess. 5:23).

To briefly illustrate how God's complete restoration of man is patterned after God's complete restoration of the material creation in Genesis chapter one, note three things:

- 1) Where the complete restorative process began (on day one, as previously mentioned).
- 2) That which occurred on each succeeding day (days two through six).
- 3) Where the whole of the restorative process was leading (the seventh day, the Sabbath, a day of rest following six days of work).

Within a type-antitype framework — pertaining to man's salvation in the antitype — that which occurred in the type on day one pertains to the salvation of man's spirit, and that which occurred in the type on days two through six pertains to the salvation of man's soul, with the whole of that revealed leading to the seventh day.

The salvation of the spirit is an instantaneous event where one passes “from death unto life,” but not so with the salvation of the soul. It is a progressive event. It is an event which begins at the point one is made alive spiritually, and it will not be completed and realized until the end of that foreshadowed by the six days of restorative work — 6,000 years of restorative work.

(The issues of the judgment seat of Christ at the end of the present dispensation — which will occur at the end of the six days, at the end of the 6,000 years — will have to do with issues surrounding the salvation [or loss] of the soul/life. It will be at the judgment seat — not before — that man will realize [or fail to realize] the salvation of his soul/life.

Note that issues of the judgment seat can have nothing whatsoever to do with man's presently possessed eternal salvation, which has to do with his spirit. It is only on the basis of man's presently possessed eternal salvation that he can be dealt with in relation to fruit bearing [having to do with his soul/life], both during present time and at the judgment seat.

And the findings and determinations of the judgment seat, in this respect, will have to do with the salvation or loss of his soul/life, which, in turn, will determine his place and position in the coming kingdom of Christ.)

Since the salvation of the spirit CANNOT occur apart from an exact duplication in the antitype of that which occurred in the type during day one of the restoration in Genesis, it should be evident that the salvation of the soul and its relationship to that which occurred on days two through six MUST be looked upon the same way.

The latter MUST follow the pattern to the same degree as the former. There can be NO difference in this respect.

And since this is the case, note what occurred on days two through six in the restoration of the ruined material creation in Genesis. Then, to see the overall picture of that which must be done to bring about the salvation of redeemed man's soul, these same events can be viewed in relation to God's present continuing restoration of man, a subsequent ruined creation.

Events on days two and three (as events on the first day) have to do with divisions. On the second day God established a division between the waters (vv. 6-8), and on the third day He established a division between the dry land (with its vegetation) and the waters (vv. 9-13).

Then events on days four through six belong together as another unit, depicting things beyond the divisions previously established. On the fourth day God placed lights in the heavens to give light upon the earth (vv. 14-19), on the fifth day He created birds that could soar above the earth and marine life that could move throughout the depths of the sea (vv. 20-23), and on the sixth day He created the land animals, which included great creatures capable of roaming the earth (vv. 24, 25).

And, as previously noted, the WHOLE of God's restorative work relative to the material creation in Genesis foreshadows the WHOLE of God's restorative work relative to man today.

After man has "passed from death unto life," wherein the spirit is separated from the soul — wrought entirely through Divine intervention — redeemed man finds himself in a position and condition where a continued Divine work not only CAN occur but MUST occur if he is to realize the salvation of his soul.

And ONLY through this continued Divine work CAN the whole of God's restorative work, as it pertains to man, be realized.

(Man, as the material creation, MUST be completely passive in relation to the salvation of the spirit [he is DEAD, rendering him incapable of acting].

And man, as the material creation ["And the earth brought forth..." (vv. 11, 12)] MUST be active in relation to the salvation of the soul [he now has spiritual life, allowing him to act in the spiritual realm].

But, as in the restoration of the material creation, the entire salvation process [spirit and soul, and ultimately the body] is a Divine work. "Salvation is of the Lord" [Jonah 2:9].

For more information on the preceding, refer to the author's book, Salvation of the Soul, Appendix I, "Faith and Works."

Events occurring during the first three days in Genesis chapter one would point to elementary things, the basics in one's spiritual life and growth.

Events occurring during day one would point to a division between the soul and the spirit, having to do with the impartation of life.

Then events occurring during days two and three would point to divisions and distinctions as one begins to progressively grow within the framework of the new life brought into existence on the first day. One would learn to distinguish between the soulical and spiritual, spiritual and carnal (fleshly), Jew, Gentile, and Christian, the dispensations, etc.

Only when one learns the divisions and distinctions depicted by that which was brought to pass on days two and three is he in a position to move on into the things depicted by that which was brought to pass on days four through six.

On these three days, light was restored to the sun and moon (day four, vv. 14-19); sea life and the birds of the air were created (day five, vv. 20-23); and then God created all the living creatures that roam the earth, followed by His creation of man (day six, vv. 24-27).

That depicted by the work of the Triune Godhead during these three days points to things beyond elementary truths in the antitype.

After one has passed “from death unto life” and has been instructed in the elementary truths (days one through three) — after he has grown to a degree in his Christian life — he can then begin to view with understanding deeper spiritual truths of the Word. He can then begin to view with understanding those things in the Word depicted by events on days four through six of Genesis chapter one.

An individual in this position can begin to sink deep shafts down into the Word and mine its treasures. He can look into the Word and understand that depicted by the lights in the heavens. He can, in the true sense of the Word, “mount up with wings as eagles... run, and not be weary...walk, and not faint” (Isa. 40:31), as he scales the heights; or he can scale the depths of the Word, as the sea creatures plunge to the depths of the sea; or he can roam through the Word, as the land creatures roam the earth.

Christian maturity and spiritual victory — bringing to pass the salvation of the soul — go hand-in-hand. And the entire process of God’s restoration work throughout the six days is with a view to that which lies beyond, on the seventh day. It is with a view to the Sabbath rest awaiting the people of God.

(The complete panorama of and purpose for salvation [the restoration of a ruined creation], introduced in Gen. 1:1-2:3, is dealt with in a very detailed and complete manner beginning in Ex. 12 [ref. Ch. III, pp. 47-51] and extending through the Book of Joshua — forming one complete type, made up of many individual types, providing commentary on the opening thirty-four verses of Genesis, plus subsequent sections such as Gen. 3, 4, 22.

Exodus 12, continuing from the previous chapter, begins with death and shed blood — the death of the firstborn, via a substitute [paschal lambs dying in the stead of the firstborn, foreshadowing Christ, 1,500 years later, dying in the stead of the firstborn].

This part of Ex. 12 would form commentary on the events of day one in Gen. 1 [vv. 2b-5], dealing with salvation by grace.

In Genesis, events on day one effected life, allowing for a continuing restorative process seen through events occurring on the five subsequent days [vv. 6-25], with a view to a seventh day rest [2:1-3] — all seen, as well, in Ex. 12 and beyond.

In the Exodus commentary, matters begin with a vicarious death of the firstborn — via death and shed blood, in EXACT accord with Gen. 3, 4, 22, forming previous commentary on Gen. 1:2b-5 and basic prior information for that dealt with in Ex. 12ff — with a view to leaving Egypt and ultimately realizing an inheritance in another land.

Viewing just these two types together [Gen. 1 and Ex. 12], matters begin with salvation by grace while in “Egypt” [the world], but Scripture immediately moves beyond this point, seen in one respect in Genesis, seen in another respect in Exodus.

In Genesis, there is a continuing work pertaining to restoration [on days 2ff]; and in Exodus, there is a departure from “Egypt” [again, the world], which is a continuing work relative to salvation/restoration.

And the goal is seen after EXACTLY the same manner, though seen in each passage from a different perspective.

The seventh-day rest in Genesis is seen in Exodus as having to do with realizing an inheritance, a rest, in another land, in a land removed from Egypt, from the world.

The preceding, in reality, is what the whole of Scripture is about, presented many different ways, from many different perspectives [Heb. 1:1, 2].

Scripture is about restoring man back into the position for which he had been created in the beginning, a position from which he fell.

And a twofold problem can be seen in the way that the vast majority of Christians look upon the matter today, failing to see, understand, and deal with God’s complete panorama of salvation:

1. Christians seem to want to remain at and continue dealing with that being foreshadowed by the events of day one in Gen. 1, or the death of the firstborn in Ex. 12, rather than moving on to that which, in each passage, lies beyond.

That is, they want to stay with and continue dealing with salvation by grace rather than moving beyond and dealing with continuing aspects of salvation, attempting to move directly from day one to day seven or from Ex. 12 to the land set before them.

2. Then, many of those who do move beyond this point in Gen. 1 or Ex. 12 never seem to really go very far.

They often carry the events of day one in Gen. 1 [vv. 2b-5] into events of day two and beyond [vv. 6ff], and, doing this, they never seem to stop focusing on events back in day one rather than focusing on events of subsequent days.

Or, to see the same thing in Ex. 12, following the death of the firstborn they begin their pilgrim journey, leaving Egypt but never really seeming to leave Egypt, for they keep focusing on the death of the firstborn in Egypt rather than that which lies out ahead.

On either of the preceding, a central problem exists. The “goal” is either destroyed or not dealt with in a proper, Scriptural manner.

On the first of the preceding, dealing only with saved-unsaved issues, the goal is invariably seen as either Heaven or Hell. Thus, the goal seen in the texts, for all practical purposes, has been destroyed.

On the second, continuing to deal with saved-unsaved issues, the goal is often not seen as the primary issue. Rather, that carried over from day one into events of day two and beyond remains the primary issue. Thus, the goal in the texts, through such a means, cannot be dealt with in a proper, Scriptural manner.

BUT, What saith the Scriptures!

HOW do the Scriptures handle this matter?

In Scripture, the starting point is ALWAYS the same — the first day in Gen. 1, or events seen in Ex. 12. And, an individual MUST begin here.

BUT, Scripture NEVER, NEVER stays at or dwells on this beginning point. And, of course, NEITHER should Christians, though many do so.

Scripture’s admonition in this respect is CRYSTAL CLEAR:

“Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection [maturity]; not laying again the foundation...” [Heb. 6:1].)
