

Hitting the Notes
vs.
Singing the Song

If you just
hit the notes,
people will
hear you;
but if you want them
to listen,
sing!

Hitting the notes
requires practice;
singing
demands passion.

Hitting the notes
makes for accuracy;
singing
results in efficacy.

Hitting the notes,
you follow the rules;
singing
expresses your feeling.

Hitting the notes,
you comply with
the composer;
singing, you invest
yourself.

Hitting the notes,
you perform
a task;
singing, you manifest
your joy.

Hitting the notes
is painting by numbers;
singing is
creating art.

Life is not
a mere matter
of hitting the notes;
it should be
a song.

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski

May 6, 2001

Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com

www.fatherwaltersparish.org

Hitting the Notes
vs.
Singing the Song