

CWACC receives spay/neuter grant

Citizens for the Welfare of Animals in Clay County (CWACC) has received a grant from The Rachel Ray Foundation, through Best Friends Animal Society, to assist qualifying individuals with some of the cost of spaying/neutering their pets. This assistance may come as an offer to pay for the pet's rabies vaccine, pay part of the cost of the surgical procedure, all of the cost of the procedure, or any combination thereof.

As many residents of Clay,

Randolph and Talladega counties know, CWACC has offered free transport to the low cost spay neuter clinic in Irondale. Since the organization's beginning in 2011, they have helped spay/neuter more than 3,000 cats and dogs from these rural counties. Members are thankful for all of the support the non-profit organization has received from local businesses and individuals.

Spaying or neutering your pet is one of the best things you can do, not only for that pet's health and happiness, but to help control the many litters of puppies and kittens that are unable to find homes or that are ultimately used as bait animals in violent dog fighting rings because they are offered as "free" on social networks and other advertising methods.
