Orange County Child Care Association

President's Message

Happy New Year!!!!

Here is hoping you all had an amazing Holiday Season!!! We are coming up on our Orange County Child Care Association Elections and are in need of many positions, the most important are President and Newsletter Editor. In order for OCCCA to perform at full speed we need a full Board, if you have any questions please give me a call or send me an email.

Please take a moment to check out our website. All members are listed on the "free referral" portion of the website. I have gotten quite a bit of feedback from parents calling in for referrals stating that they called those providers with websites attached to their contact information first. It is super important in this "Internet age" that you get yourself a website of some kind. Even if you make a Facebook page and attach it, it is better than no advertising at all. Back when I started my business almost 30 years ago, it was pretty much word of mouth marketing. We are blessed beyond measure with all that we have available to us now. Take advantage of it and advertise your amazing facilities the best you can!!!!

Training tip: You have until 3/30/18 to complete the online Mandated Reporter Training and print out your certificate for your LPA to review after 3/30/18. Please go to our website at: www.cclld.ca.gov then click on CHILD CARE, then click on Resources For Providers and in the middle of the page, there is the link for the Mandated Reporter Training. Once you go into that site, toward the middle of the page, there will be the Child Care Training (3 hrs.) in English for you to take the training. Please only take the one that states Child Care and not the General training. The training is live now so you can take it anytime.

Hello ladies and thank you for referring parents back to OCCCA when finding your daycare is at capacity. The better communication we have with parents the better we all benefit as a goal. I do get feedback from parents who are unable to reach you during the daytime when they are actively trying to search for a provider with an opening. Please try to answer your phone during business hours and if you can't please check your messages as soon as possible and return that call. I feel this is a very professional concern and can make a parent feel more at ease when locating possible care for their child. Other than that, the calls have been coming in and I think it's awesome! Have a wonderful holiday season and see you at the General Meeting in January!

Now that we are past the holidays and into a new year hopefully calls for child care will pick up, I know many of you out there are in need. If anything has changed for you please let me know so I can keep that in mind when I get a call.

I wanted to let you know in advance that The City of Irvine has a workshop planned for us on Thursday February 22nd at The Irvine Child Resource Center, 143411 Yale Ave from 6:30-8pm. The workshop is entitled: "Talking to Parents when you have Concerns"

Those of you who have come out to the workshops know how fun and informative they are, with great speakers, tasty treats to eat and lots of giveaways to take home.

For those who haven't been, come join us!

Check your calendars and then call Marcy Backhus at 949-724-6632 to reserve your place. I will be there and hope to see you too.

Hello everyone:

I hope that you enjoyed the holidays and found some time to enjoy and relax. As usual, the calls have slowed down since Thanksgiving and I am hopeful that they will pick up again in January.

REMINDER: All providers and their assistants need to complete the online mandated reporter training for Child Abuse by March 1st. I have taken it and although it is lengthy, it is very informative and it did not take me too long to complete and pass the test.

I will keep you notified about our first 2018 area meeting which will probably be in March. We had such a fun time at our October meeting at Stone Fire Grill. I hope you will join us for our next meeting. We will be having our regular General meeting in January.

It is my pleasure to have you as members of the OCCCA. As your area chair, I am committed to helping you in any way that I can.

Happy New Year!

The Importance of Music in Toddler Development

(Published in playgroupnsw.org.au)

Very early in life, children will start to identify rhythm and even move to the beat of music. Besides that, music provides cognitive benefits that support children's early development.

Here are five reasons why music can be beneficial to the development of a child:

1. Music increases toddlers' sensory development. Just as taste, textures and colors aid a child's sensory development, so does music. Exposing children to different types of music can help create more pathways between the cells in their brains. This effect increases even more when you link music to different activities such as dancing.
2. Music can improve literacy and numeracy. From an early age, babies can hear the difference between different types of sounds. After just a few weeks, a baby is able to identify their mother's voice from other people's. Exposure to music enhances a child's natural ability to decode sounds and words. By singing nursery rhymes to children, you can help them to identify sound patterns and learn through repetition. In addition to that, music also helps children anticipate what is coming next in a poem or a song and they know how to put these patterns in sequence. By mastering these skills, children build the base of literacy and numeracy.
3. Music is a mood lifter. A lot of parents tuck their children in with a lullaby or calm them down with a song. Just as music can soothe a child, it can also lift their spirits. You can use music to indicate play time, sleep time or different moments in a child's daily schedule.
4. Music helps toddlers build coordination. Even if a child doesn't understand the lyrics of a song yet, they can definitely move to the rhythm of the music. You may have already noticed a child dancing to certain songs or liking certain types of music more than others. Music encourages children's inclination to move, developing their fine and gross motor skills. Plus, rhythm is very entertaining. You may even notice toddlers starting to jump up and down, which helps with their muscle development, strength and balance. When you see children dancing, give them a toy drum or other musical instrument and dance with them. They will try to mimic your moves, which can help them with their hand-eye coordination and exercise their clutch grip.
5. Music can help toddlers develop their vocabulary. Even though at first a child may not understand the words in a song or nursery rhyme, they do develop their understanding by identifying the storytelling in a song. For example the ABC song, where many children think that the sequence "l-m-n-o-p" is a word, "elemenopee." As they grow, they will start to realize that it's not a word, but a sequence of sounds, each sound being a separate entity. To help children learn more words and identify the story in a song, try singing their favorite nursery rhymes and inserting their name into the song. You can also encourage children to change words in a song to keep them engaged and learning.

The Wonder of Kindness

By Sandy McDaniel

I was thrilled when I heard that North Star school in Meridian, ID had purchased tickets for their entire 5th grade class and their parents to the movie "Wonder." My family took turns reading the book aloud before Chelsea (fifth grader) saw the movie. Then as I sat and watched "Wonder" myself, I had inevitable tears of empathy and tears of joy that all those children had seen that movie and were talking about it. All kindness requires is empathy and the courage to stand up for something that is important to you.

I think it's essential to model kindness, to enforce a zero unkindness policy at home, and to talk about what it would be like to be so different that people said unkind things to you. It is also important to discuss what you can do or say if someone around you is being verbally bullied. In terms of someone saying something unkind to you, "So!" is short and sweet then walk away. Don't feed a dragon with your fear.

If we all stuck together and stuck up for each other, the verbal abuse would stop. Abusers only have power where fear is involved. If it is unpopular to be unkind, the abusers will be quiet. I like the motto: BE KIND OR BE QUIET!

Teach your children that we do not know anyone else's story---what their lives are really like---so we do not have the right to judge anyone, ever! When someone is unkind or abrasive with me I ask myself, "I wonder what is going on in his/her life?" Then I send that person a blessing that their life will have more love in it. I'm not a Saint; I've lived a long life and I know that every single person has a story.

A wonderful conversation initiator would be to go see the movie WONDER and then talk about it. How did the mother and dad feel sending Augie off to school the first day? How did he feel? What was the most hurtful thing that happened to him the first day? Why was the daughter so upset? Would you have the courage to go sit with Augie at lunch? How would it feel if you were Augie and one person came and sat with you at lunch? What touched your heart during this movie? What made you feel sad? What was funny? What did you decide for yourself after seeing this movie?

When we talk to our children and listen we are truly teaching life lessons. We are doing more than programming them to do successful things; we are programming them to BE successful human beings.

Resolutions for Child Care Providers

The new year is as good a time as any to resolve to make changes and to plot a course for the future. Making New Year's Resolutions can be a great way to set goals and assess your progress.

Improve Yourself

The most common resolutions are those we choose for personal growth and improvement. To be able to care for others, you first need to be able to care for yourself. If you smoke cigarettes, this may be the time to quit smoking. Probably the most popular New Year's Resolution is to lose weight and to exercise more. Child care providers can be vulnerable to stress and burnout. Learn simple ways to keep your stress level under control. There are also techniques for keeping calm when you are at the breaking point. Of course the best strategy is to learn to avoid stress by managing the many demands you face in both your personal and professional life.

Improve Your Environment

Whether this is a time you opt to do a seasonal cleaning or simply an excuse to get control over clutter, you may resolve to get organized and restructure your home, child care space, or both. Learn how to organize your childcare space so it is a fun and inviting place for children to learn and grow. Take this time to ensure your home is safe for young children. There are some great ways to set up a household organization system and find new ideas to solve storage problems.

Improve Your Business

This may be a logical time for you to make desired changes within your child care program. As we start the new year you may find it helpful to start a more efficient means of record-keeping. Setting up a new system may help you remain organized throughout the year. Many service oriented businesses choose the new year as an appropriate time to raise fees or tuition. Learn from other providers on how to change rates and inform parents. You may even wish to go as far as to redo your policies or even rewrite your parent handbook.

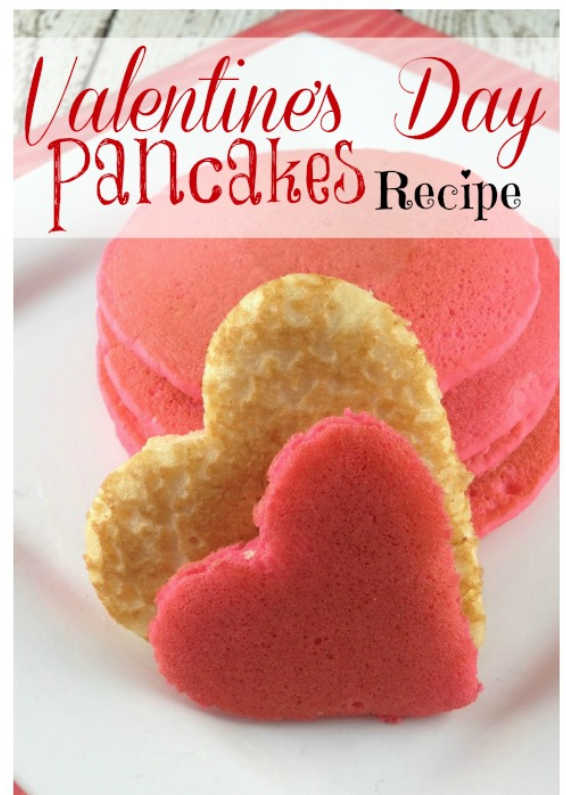

Of course, making resolutions for improvement is only the first step, but it is an important step. Good luck in meeting all the goals you set for yourself in the new year

Get a Heart Shaped small cookie cutter and some white sucker sticks and cut the watermelon into heart shapes and stack alternately on sucker stick! What a fun snack!!!!

Get any of your favorite box of Pancake mix and some red food coloring and mix in half of the batter. Alternate regular pancakes and pink ones on the plates then add a healthy topping of whipped cream and fresh strawberries!
