Dear Parents,

Happy New Year!! Wow, 2017 sure has gone by quickly. Numerous memories were made this past year here at Beginning Visions for both the families and the staff! Looking forward, we hope to build off 2017' successes and learn from 2017's failures to greater care for your children.

January is a month known for starting anew! This month we will be focusing on the importance of goal setting and how to best accomplish our goals both individually and as a team!

Weather is starting to get cold...remember to bring closed toe shoes, coats, hats, and gloves for the children. State childcare regulations require all children to go outside everyday unless there is an active weather warning for that day.

Dear Parents,

School is back in full swing and except for a Florence-filled week, we've had wonderful weather. We spent many hours outdoors after school and we hope to do more of the same this month. With this being said, you may want to start bringing a light jacket for your child for the coming months.

Just like pumpkin spice, Fall crafts are finally 'in season' and we look forward to experimenting with autumn colors and the foliage from our trees!

Dear Parents,

School is back in full swing and except for a Florence-filled week, we've had wonderful weather. We spent many hours outdoors after school and we hope to do more of the same this month. With this being said, you may want to start bringing a light jacket for your child for the coming months.

Just like pumpkin spice, Fall crafts are finally 'in season' and we look forward to experimenting with autumn colors and the foliage from our trees!

Dear Parents,

The month of November may bring chillier weather, but that doesn't stop our classes from having a blast here at Beginning Visions! Our November days will be focused on the importance of family and friends, open discussions about our homes and neighborhoods, and reflecting on the history of the American Indians and the Pilgrims!

We will continue to play outside when possible so please do not forget to bring appropriate fall attire when dropping off your children.

Dear Parents,

We are so proud of both our students and teachers! Our Schoolagers put on quite the Fall Food Drive this past month and our teachers did a great job instilling compassion in our students throughout the thanksgiving season. We are confident their generosity will carry over into the month of December.

We hope you and your families will enjoy this Christmas holiday and will grow closer to one another during this season of giving!!
