

News Release

Do you have students need to improve their reading and literacy skills?

New Literacy Reading Web Sites

Arrow Educational Products in Pembroke, NC has just launched two new interactive literacy reading web sites to help students improve reading, writing, spelling and comprehension. The company has been developing and distributing computer literacy reading programs for the past 12 years.

Arrow's web sites have lots of free materials for parents and educators to use to improve reading, writing, spelling and comprehension of your students.

Your students will sail into reading with Captain Bob and his cartoon charters. They will have fun as they become super readers. This web site will help your students become proficient readers in a short time. It has lots of phonics instruction, literacy decoding skills and other literacy activities to improve reading, writing, spelling and comprehension.

LiteracyReadingVoyages.com is a comprehensive phonics reading program. It will help teach your students letter recognition, short vowel sounds, long vowel sounds, beginning sounds, ending sounds, beginning clusters, ending clusters, consonant digraphs, blends, vowel digraphs, basic sight words, word attack skills and much more.

LiteracyReadingVoyages.com will also help teach your students the types of sentences, punctuation, synonyms, antonyms, homonyms, prefixes, suffixes, root words, syllabication, parts of speech, comprehension and other essential reading skills. It also has on-line writing activities for your students to complete creative writing activities and print their materials.

Our literacy reading programs are web based and use the latest technological innovations to educate and teach students reading skills in a natural and enjoyable manner. This online literacy site has more than 400 hours of instructional activities beginning with basic reading and advances to more complex levels for the advanced. It has both English and Spanish instructions.

These reading instructional materials were designed to help students in Grades PK-6. They are excellent self-directed remedial tools for elementary, middle and high school students.

These online edutainment programs educate as well as entertain your students. They are very effective because students remain involved and focused in the learning process.

Leading educators across the nation endorse and use this website to assist their students with the task of learning to read in a more efficient manner.

NationalAcademyReading.com site is an excellent course to teach teachers, teacher assistants, parents and others to become reading professionals who can teach all children and adults to become super readers. The objectives are to teach you to become a competent reading and literacy instructor who can help all students improve in reading, writing, spelling and comprehension.
