WHO'S WHO: Beautiful princess Odette is picking flowers with her best friends when Baron Von Rothbart captures and transforms her into a White Swan. At the palace, the Royal Jester is entertaining for Prince Siegfried's birthday celebration, when the Queen gifts her son a crossbow. Thrilled by the gift, Siegfried and his best friend, Benno von Sommerstern, go hunting by the lake. At night, the Bird King/Queen oversees white Swans turning back to their human form. Siegfried learns from Odette of the spell and promises to marry her and break her free. There is a ball at the palace and dancers from the far lands of Spain, Poland, Hungary, Russia and Italy delight the Queen, the princesses and the ladies in waiting along other guests. Siegfried is looking forward to propose to Odette but Rothbart disguises his niece Odile (the Black Swan) and tricks Siegfried into marrying her. Siegfried runs to the lake but Odette will be forever trapped into the body of a swan.

Demi Soloist and Soloist roles are defined by the level of difficulty and not by the number of dancers on stage. Role, choreography and number of dancers are at the sole discretion of the Artistic Director Dr. Chiara Ajkun.

A LITTLE EXPLANATION ABOUT THE FEE

You may know that ballet is an expensive Art form: daily training & rehearsals, ballet shoes, costumes, props and stage décor all concur to it. When casting a child in a role requiring interactions with a professional of the Company, Ajkun Ballet Theatre hires the dancer for additional time to provide your child with this exceptional experience. Because Ajkun Ballet Theatre is primarily supported by public donations, we are asking for your contribution to offset what we estimate to be 7% of the additional cost. Thank You!

PLEASE NOTE:

The Ajkun Ballet Theatre will make every effort to supply costumes for featured roles; however, children featured in Demi Soloist or Soloist roles may be required to purchase accessories, props or inexpensive costumes, if size or number is unavailable in our wardrobe. You may be receiving some information from artisticstaff@ajkunbt.org

We are excited to share the Stage with You!
