

Mark Collins is the global Director of the Logistics Civil Augmentation Program V (LOGCAP V) Planning and Contingency Operations line of business for Vectrus. He joined the company in June 2018.

Prior to joining Vectrus, Mark, a career multi-functional logistician and strategic planner, served in uniform for nearly 35 years in the U.S. Army holding varying positions of successively greater responsibility. In his final assignment, he served as Deputy Chief of Staff for the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD) and U.S. Northern Command (NORTHCOM).

Mark possesses extensive experience in Army and joint supply chain management in deployed environments having served numerous tours in Southwest Asia, Afghanistan, Hawaii, Alaska, and the Republic of Korea.

Previous senior military positions include: Commander, 82nd Airborne Division Sustainment Brigade & CENTCOM Material Recovery Element - Fort Bragg NC/Kandahar Afghanistan; Support Operations Officer and Chief of Plans, 1st Theater Sustainment Command (Forward) - Kabul Afghanistan; Seminar Leader, U.S. Army School of Advanced Military Studies (SAMS) - FT Leavenworth KS; Senior Logistics Trainer, U.S. Army National Training Center - FT Irwin CA; Commander, 225th Brigade Support Battalion 2nd Stryker BCT 25th ID - Hawaii/Iraq; 4th Infantry Division Logistics Planner-FT Hood, TX. He commanded three times at the company level with assignments in Korea, Ft Bragg, NC, deploying to both Afghanistan, and Iraq.

Mark holds a bachelor's degree in Supply Chain Management from Arizona State University - Tempe, a master's degree in Logistics Management from Florida Institute of Technology - Melbourne, and a master's degree in Strategic Operations and Planning from the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College - FT Leavenworth, Kansas. In 2004 he was designated Army's Distinguished Master Logistician.