Less than Half the Picture By Richard Bercuson

When endings become beginnings

Ernest Hemingway rewrote the ending to A Farewell to Arms at least 39 times. In 1958, 29 years after the novel's publication, "Paris Review" editor George Plimpton asked him why so many. Hemingway replied, "To get the words right."

Which is to say recent Brooklin High School grad Emilie Surette is in rather good company. Her fledgling career as a writer includes dabbling with short stories whose endings remain, well, unfinished.

"A lot of them don't reach completion," she said with a smile after the grad ceremony on June 28, "because I don't like endings. I can't write them well. I have to figure where I want to end those."

Surette won the Brooklin Town Crier award that afternoon, which carries with it a $400 bursary. It'll be put to good use when she attends Queen's University in the fall to study English. The award is given annually (beginning last year) to the graduating student planning to pursue English, media or communications technology studies in post-secondary. Surette also won the school's English Department award.

Creative writing really blossomed for her in high school when she entered the grade 9 drama program at

Donald A. Wilson the year before Brooklin High opened its doors. She wrote the school play The Flipside last year and was part of the writing team for this year's production about mental health, To Alex with love.

A highlight that, she says, has really helped her writing was the grade 12 Writer's Craft course, which exposes students to various forms of the craft, from fiction and poetry to non-fiction. For those like her with a writing bent, it's the crown jewel of high school English courses.

"It was absolutely fantastic," she recalls. "I loved it. We wrote all this poetry. I was never a big poet but now I have a whole new appreciation for it. It's quite transformative."

Listening to her talk about her passion for writing would be inspiring to any young person even remotely interested in putting words on a page. Surette is open minded enough to know that, while at Queen's, a new world for writers opens up. She wants to lap up as much as she can, "taking something of everything" in order to best determine where to go forward.

"There are lots of opportunities there," she says. "Like the school newspaper. I'm interested in non-fiction as well. In school, we do a lot of essays but you don't write a lot of article type pieces. It's something I really want to try out in the future."

She's spent a lifetime in Brooklin and is looking forward to meeting new people in Kingston. As for writing, she'll discover soon enough if Hemingway was correct. "There is nothing to writing," he once said. "All you do is sit down at a typewriter and bleed."

Our Brooklin Kids By Leanne Brown

Parenting Then and Now

As I listen to Blake Shelton's song "I Lived it" about how he grew up, I think about parenting today compared with when we were kids. He reminisces about his grandpa smoking in the car with the windows up, so it appears parenting techniques may have improved. Today's fast-paced, tech-driven world means we're raising kids quite differently.

Playing outside: We played outside for hours, exploring on our bikes (without helmets), meeting new friends at the park by ourselves. We'd run home from school, drop off our bags, run back out, and wouldn't return till the street lights came on. Now: It seems it's not safe to let them out unless you're hovering nearby or know exactly where they are. Most kids don't walk to school anymore. Playing road hockey or basketball on the street is illegal in some places and you may need a license to have a lemonade stand.

More dads are at home: Men were once "the breadwinners," working long hours and not seeing their children as often. Now: Both parents typically work with more flexible hours and even from home. Consequently, dads attend more school events and activities than when we were growing up.

We communicate differently: Families communicated face-to-face. My mom would yell up the stairs to let me know dinner was ready. We wrote handwritten letters to relatives and friends and had pen pals. Our parents weren't distracted by cellphones. There was no surfing Instagram, checking email, or returning texts while their kids attended activities. Now: Parents text their kids to come downstairs. We have to learn to speak their language using texts and emojis. Like it or not, there is less direct communication.

Travel with devices: We had to actually talk during dinner. With no

TVs in cars, we looked out the windows. On airplanes, there were no screens. Now: While devices make travel easier for parents, I miss those car games of I Spy, magnetic travel Battleship, and the family sing-alongs.

Shopping at the mall: As far as fashion went, our parents didn't have many options for kids' clothes. Hand-me-downs were common and well-used. Now: You can shop at the mall, at the grocery store, or online, and the options are endless. Kids' clothes used to be made to last whereas now they're trendy and disposable. Hand-me-downs become donations.

Birthdays are productions: Kids used to play games like Pin the Tail on the Donkey and Musical Chairs with only a handful of kids invited. Now: You rent a venue, invite classmates, teammates, neighbours and family members, and have a cake with a theme. Everything needs to be nut-free, gluten-free and dairy-free. Kids show up with an EpiPen. Loot bags rival the actual birthday gifts.

Discipline: Some of us were spanked, grounded, and sent to our rooms without dinner. Kids were belittled when they didn't live up to parental expectations. They called it tough love. Now: We tell our kids we love them and praise them when they've done something good or tried their best. Our parents did that but it was different. Raising confident, caring, compassionate, self-aware kids is a huge responsibility. The most that might happen is privileges are removed, like a favourite video game for a week. We also focus more on positive discipline with our kids.

Our parents asked for advice. Mom read books on parenting or asked Grandma. Today we seek answers from parenting sites and blogs. While I don't think this is a bad thing, it's yet another parenting method that's changed over the years.

Blooming in Brooklin By Ken Brown

Veggies, front gardens and Mosaiculture

We recently had six vegetables from the garden for dinner and they were delicious. There really is a difference in vegetables that make a 15-minute trip from the garden to the kitchen, a short trip that allows the growth of varieties bred for flavour rather than durability. It doesn't take much space to feed a family during the growing season. With more space, we could stock the freezer to feed us all year.

Consider the front lawn, the least used part of most properties. Give up fertilizing, watering and cutting and you can have a front garden that feeds you. It's also not too late to think about it for this year. While the main season crops are out of reach, there are cool season crops to be planted in August that will grace your table past October.

The secret is...
Even my garden isn't all about vegetables. There are always flowers to brighten up spots and provide cut flowers for indoors. We grow a range of annual flowers and they're nicely filling out. The secret is water and fertilizer. The fuller the container and hotter the weather, the greater the demand for water. Providing the water they need will not guarantee healthy plants if we don't keep them well fertilized. Combining the two makes that easy.

There are many soluble fertilizers available and they all do the job. Keep the fertilizer container as close to the tap as possible. That way you'll find it second nature to throw a scoop into every watering can. The soil in most containers has little or no actual garden soil in it so it has minimal nutrient content. That's why we need to provide a constant supply. I use the fertilizers at just over half the recommended dosage, but I add it to water every time.

Visit Mosaiculture
Want a great summer gardening road trip? Ottawa is a wonderful city to visit. But for the garden lover, this year it's actually just across the river in Gatineau's Jacques-Cartier Park: Mosaiculture. Last year was stunning and this year's is even better. There are some 5.5 million plants used to build 45 impressive sculptures.

This horticultural wonder features life-like renderings of places and events, all many times the actual size. If you're like me, you study each piece to try to figure out just how they managed to create these structures. Last year's Mosaiculture feature was Mother Earth. But she's been surpassed this year by the Tree of Birds. The 16 m tall sculpture features 56 endangered bird species that are apparently so well done that each is quite recognizable.

I'm already planning my trip to this spectacular garden. It's open until Oct. 15 so there's plenty of time to plan a gardening adventure. The only possible downside is its ability to make us feel a touch inadequate when we contemplate our own gardens. The trick instead to be inspired, to up our game and think of new and interesting things we can accomplish even in our limited spaces.

Plant-Based Eating by Sheree Nicholson

The wonder of avocados

A favourite fruit of mine is the avocado. It's not sweet like other fruits but could be considered a super food because of its many health benefits. It's higher in protein than most fruits and lower in sugar and carbs, having only about two net carbs in a small avocado.

It's also linked to heart health as the avocado is full of heart-healthy monounsaturated fatty acids and is high in fiber.

In the old days of low-fat diets, they were a big no-no. But newer research has demonstrated there are healthy fats. In fact, according to an article in Harvard Health Publishing, good fats from the avocado's, seeds and nuts are a major source of energy and help you absorb some vitamins and minerals. Fat is needed to build cell membranes, the vital exterior of each cell, and the sheaths surrounding nerves. It is also essential for blood clotting, muscle movement, and inflammation.

And grilled, too

The most common usage for avocados is in guacamole, but I also use them in sandwiches, in place of mayo on a vegetable burger and in smoothies. Last week, while in a trendy little restaurant in Tofino, BC, one of the toppings I could order for my veggie bowl was grilled avocado. The day after I returned, I looked up "grilled avocado" recipes on Google and found the one below. You can use the grilled avocados in guacamole, on toast, tossed in a salad or on a grilled vegetable platter. Grilling enhances their flavour and leaves attractive grill marks on the sections.

A ripe avocado is neither too hard nor too soft. If you're buying them in bulk, store some in the refrigerator to slow down the ripening process. They tend to go from ripe to over-ripe quite quickly. If you need them to ripen sooner, store them with your bananas since bananas release a gaseous plant hormone known as ethylene, which ripens other fruit.

For grilled avocados:

1. Heat up your BBQ or grill-pan to medium-high heat and spray with a non-stick spray.
2. Cut avocados in half and remove pits.
3. Brush inside half of each avocado lightly with olive oil.
4. Place face down on BBQ or grill-pan for about 5 minutes (BBQ temps vary). Press down occasionally to ensure grill marks are created and heat penetrates.

5. Using tongs remove from grill and set aside until ready to eat.
(<https://www.thehealthymaven.com/2015/07/how-to-grill-avocados.html>)

Sheree's hack: Never waste over-ripe avocados again. Peel, de-seed and press your overripe avocados into ice cube trays. Once frozen, transfer them to a plastic freezer bag or dish. Add the avocado cubes to smoothies and protein shakes for a creamy texture.

Rossland Road Closed Until November

The Town of Whitby would like to remind residents and local businesses that Rossland Road West, between Lake Ridge Road and McQuay Boulevard, is fully closed. The road closure is expected to end in November 2018.

Local traffic will be permitted east of Cochrane Street to McQuay Boulevard to access the Whitby Iroquois Soccer Club, Donald A. Wilson Secondary School, All Saints Catholic Secondary School and local neighbourhoods.

Drivers will be directed to use Brock Street or Lake Ridge Road and Taunton Road as the detour route.

The detour route is clearly marked and a map of the route is attached. Construction signs have also been placed in the nearby community to provide up to date information.

The closure aligns work being done by the Town, Region of Durham and Ministry of Transportation. A large portion of the work is being done over the summer months to help minimize the impact on drivers, due to lower summer traffic volumes, and bus access to surrounding schools.

For more information, visit whitby.ca/construction, email internetpwcons@whitby.ca or call 905.430.4327.

Brock Street Bridge Replacement Underway

The Town of Whitby would like to advise residents that the Ontario Ministry of Transportation (MTO) will be replacing the Brock Street bridge over Highway 401. The project is expected to be completed by late 2020.

The bridge replacement is a key component of the Highway 401 improvements being made by the MTO, from west of Harwood Avenue to west of Stevenson Road, which include:

- Replacement of the Brock Street bridge and reconfiguration of the Brock Street Interchange ramps;

- Widening Highway 401 to include an auxiliary lane in each direction between Highway 412 and Brock Street;

- Adjustments to the local road network and extension of the local multi-use path system to and on the Brock Street bridge; and,

- Safety and operational improvements including Highway 401 pavement rehabilitation, improvements to shoulder and lane widths, replacement and extension of the noise wall west of Brock Street, extension of Highway 401 High Mast illumination.

The existing number of lanes on Brock Street will be maintained during peak periods. Peak periods for Brock Street are defined as:

- Weekday: 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. (morning) and 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. (evening)
- Weekend: 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Two full closures (Saturday night to Sunday morning) of Highway 401 will be required to demolish the old Brock Street bridge in stages. The MTO will publish Notice of Demolition and Detour Routes in advance of the Highway 401 closures.

The MTO Commuter Parking Lot, northeast of the Whitby GO Station, will remain closed throughout the project. This will result in approximately 250 fewer parking spaces. The GO Transit commuter parking lots will remain open. At least one sidewalk will be maintained on the Brock Street bridge for the majority of the project. Access to the Whitby GO Station will be maintained.

Brooklin Village Dental

The power to change the world begins with a simple smile. Brooklin Village Dental Care is committed to helping patients achieve their best smiles through state of the art technology and onsite comprehensive care for specialized dental treatments, all under one roof.

First Impressions

Meet Dr. Peter Yao, who opened Brooklin Village Dental Care in 2004. Originally from Calgary, Dr. Yao received his BS in Microbiology, before moving to Manitoba where he completed his Medical Dentistry Degree.

Patients are drawn to Dr. Yao's genuine manner and positive outlook. Dr. Yao served as a Captain with the Canadian Armed Forces for nine years, and practiced dentistry at the military base in Toronto. "It was a great experience serving my country," says Dr. Yao, who is dedicated to serving all of his patients with compassion and offering the very best in quality care.

"I like being in health care, ultimately because you are there to help people." Dr. Yao has lived in the Brooklin area with his family since 2003, and actively participates in local community events such as the Brooklin Harvest Festival.
