1	plans are required to be shared, but there is no set page number
2	Weekly lesson plans put together with PLC is productive, helpful and does not exceed time given to complete.
3	admin has had issues with making IEP, TSS meetings at 8:00 or 8:15 am and we have to keep telling teachers to just respond that they will show up at 8:30 after planning time has ended. Some do not like self-advocating but need to in order to preserve their uninterrupted planning time.

Q31 Do you have any final comments, thoughts, or concerns about PBIS, Discipline, and/or Site Atmosphere?

Answered: 6 Skipped: 13

#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	I don't t think there are enough consequences for disruptive/disrespectful behavior. I feel like students get away with things that they should be suspended or expelled for,. However, I believe that this follows the district guidelines. With that being said, the district is not doing enough to make sure that students are truly demonstrating the traits of A Portrait of a Graduate. We need to have detention again or something of the sort that will actually give consequences.
2	PBIS has been complicated to fill in orders. I would suggest designating the one day (we already implement) a week for grade levels. If students want to purchase they can have designated time to do so. Provide a store-like purchase with menu options. So, students are not walking through store and need supervision rather they order at a "window" and prizes are brought to them. This way we are not having to fill orders that often are late or items sold out. This way, they would automatically know things are not available.
3	Discipline needs to be enforced more. The students are getting away with elopements with no consequences. Students shouldn't be given snacks when sent to the office but have conversations with parents/guardians about behaviors. We don't feel supported when we can't have clear discipline/consequence routines
4	Discipline is dictated by the state and our input is only taken so far. The superintendent seems to be able to do whatever he wants.
5	As a team, I don't feel we've developed an effective solution for managing discipline. With the new laws in place, we're no longer allowed to take away recess, which leaves us questioning what other consequences are available. Unfortunately, some parents are either not involved or don't discipline their children at home, making it difficult to understand how we can expect students to grasp the idea of consequences if they aren't experiencing them outside of school. We've also been told that suspending students is not an option (at least in the lower grades), which seems unreasonable. Students who are physically fighting, intentionally disturbing their peers, screaming constantly, or disrupting lessons aren't going to miss out on any learning by being sent home, as they're not engaged in learning while they're at school anyway. While I understand that home life might not be ideal for some students, we aren't providing the support they need to understand their actions or improve. We're told to "document it," but these behaviors happen all day long. When are we supposed to document everything? I reach out for help, and the first thing I'm asked is, "Did you document it?" or "Did you put in a referral?" This happens every day. I have a full class to manage, and some students create a hostile environment that leaves me struggling to maintain order. Then, when parents start reaching out, blaming the teacher, my hands feel tied. Honestly, I don't know what to tell them except to contact the principal.
6	I have not been involved with any ODRs so I can't comment.
