

This Is Not fake News

Your author has hesitated to go down this road. He is dispirited, feeling his last days on Mother Earth will suffer with a plague from which he and she may never recover.

This can hardly qualify as a beginning; even as it might be an ending; a last refrain, a final chapter.

Your author, a friend of Sancho's, vented much vitriol upon the 43rd head of state, feeling there could not be anyone worse.

Until the 45th head of state was thrust upon us. There are no words. This head of state is so abominable that he makes the 43rd seem like a saint (which he aint).

When an enrollee in our educational system (so long ago) your author was inculcated in the three R's: Readin, Riting, and Rithmetic. When he was told that the 45th had received 19.4% of a vote from the entire nation, he was not even moderately reassured that he was in the minority because the next day he received a 40% approval rating. Your author's mathematical skills cannot reconcile the percentages. While still in the minority, your author feared Fox News would conjure a majority, as did his press secretary revealing a huge outpouring at his inauguration.

As you know, it has all been downhill (almost freefall) since then; but there is hope he will be removed from office, despite the assurances of Fox News that he will be with us for another seven years.

Your author knows very little about the entertainment industry, and even less about Reality TV. It is said the 45th claimant is a product of the latter. Obviously a misnomer, 'Reality', per se, has little to do with the entertainment industry and/or Reality TV. The reality with which we are now saddled, i.e. the 45th, could prove to be the last, unless he is stopped in his tracks by those in a position to force him to step down.

He is not good for the country, he is not good for the environment, he is not good for the brokering of peace. He is not good for anything; 'Bad', as he would characterize anything he does not like. An egomaniacal megalomaniac.

Tonight we may hear from Stormy Daniels (Stephanie Clifford) concerning some salient details re: an affair of (heart?!?!); [Cookie Jar] between Donald and Stephanie). Lets hope the Christian Right will take offense (finally). The author does not expect much from the interview, unless Stormy breaks ranks with her attorney, who is probably advising her to keep the big punches (evidence) under wraps until the right time. Stormy wants to tell something about offers for silence and threats to her life emanating from the representatives of the 45th.

So Donny is a philanderer; Geeze, what's new? One of Donny's consorts apologized to Meliana, saying she imagines how she must feel with all those revelations regarding cosseting extracurricular endearments (killing with kindness – a lot like philanthropy) Some people claim Meliana is/was old enough to know better. Aren't we all? After all Meliana has done very little to draw attention to herself (ever since she plagiarized Michelle – an honest mistake). Melaina could perhaps do the country a lotta good by giving the Duck, the heave-ho! If she has the guts, so should the nation.

Anyway, the Stormy affair turned out to be as the author had expected; one is left to imagine the salient details. We learned that Donald got his ass paddled with a rolled up magazine. Kid's stuff!

More Kid's Stuff. The MARCH FOR LIFE. Read what Sancho has to say in GUNS. It is obtuse what the NRA peddles with regard to firearms that have only one purpose – TO KILL - Redcoats. The British have departed some time ago, so we don't need the 2nd Amendment any longer, any more than we need an amendment regarding Prohibition, any more than we ever needed an amendment regarding Prohibition. We require an amendment prohibiting firearms. Period.

How the NRA can countenance the death of one child through the use of a firearm, with its gobbledygook rhetoric, is beyond the pale. The 2nd Amendment is an anachronism; the NRA something obtuse!

And Oh! While you wait. the arrogant leetle preeck (who said 'you asked for this') Mock Fuckerbird FINALLY offered a feeble apology - for the 50 million escapees through Cambridge, Analytica – after the stock value in his company, Asscomics dropped by a buncha billion, and still counting.
