

you're | the cure

You Are the Heart of Our Success in Illinois.

You don't have to be a doctor to save lives — a heart disease survivor, caregiver or one who loves them can deliver a lifesaving message to policymakers. Join You're the Cure, a nationwide network of people dedicated to finding cures for heart disease and stroke. Those who have firsthand experience with the disease can be a particularly strong voice.

Save Lives with a Simple Procedure: Advocacy

- Become one of the many volunteers from all walks of life who advocate with the American Heart Association.
- Advocate for more research and prevention funding as well as other public policies that lead to cures for heart disease and stroke.

Member Benefits

You get everything you need to be an effective advocate: welcome materials; action alerts to call, write or visit policymakers; education on your elected officials; updates on important issues; and helpful tips to make it all easy.

Heart Disease and Stroke. You're the Cure.
