

Twenty-fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time – 09-21-2025

“Jesus said to his disciples, ‘A rich man had a steward who was reported to him for squandering his property. He summoned him and said, What is this I hear about you? Prepare a full account of your stewardship, because you can no longer be my steward.’”

God is the rich man and we are his stewards. How are we handling what he has given us?

We are all called to be stewards of his gifts and we can be good ones or we can be bad ones – and I’m talking about how much we give. We should all give according to our means.

Regardless, everything we have is from God. We didn’t bring anything into this world nor will we take anything out of it.

There are lots of charities and so-called charities that we can give too but the Catholic Church is still one of the best.

Dollar for dollar, by and large, you’re going to get more for your buck than from any other charity.

Is there corruption in the Church? Of course. The Church is a Divine institution run by human beings. She is therefore, both human and Divine, but in her Divinity – administering the Sacraments – she always gives us what she promises.

So let’s be the best stewards we can be and hit our CMA target quickly because the fact is, whether we like it or not, the Church can’t operate without the financial help of her members.
