PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Welcoming a new season

Do you feel a chill in the air? Me neither. But with this new season and school already in full swing, I'm reminded that it's time to get back to work on enhancing our neighborhood and coming together. We lost our dear Sgt. At Arms Gail Hebert this summer and her husband, Joe, within two weeks of each other. Hearing about their commitment to their community, their family and their church inspired me to continue on this journey in their honor and make Disston Heights an involved neighborhood.

See details on the next page about Carefest 2019 — and consider taking even one hour out of your day on Saturday, Sept. 28 to help clean up alleys and show that Disston Heights cares!!

Who knows, maybe we'll get a cool breeze that day.

— Pam Huff

FINANCE CORNER

Life events can lead you to see a financial advisor

Over the years, you will experience many personal and professional milestones – and they all come with important financial questions. To find the answers, you may need help from a financial professional.

For example, when you start a new job, you may wonder how to begin planning for retirement and what investments can help you work toward that goal. And if you switch jobs, you will need to understand your options for your employer-sponsored retirement plan.

As for your personal life, when you get married, you and your spouse should create a joint investment strategy. And if you have children, you may want to know about the ways to save and invest for college.

Finally, when you retire, you'll need to create a withdrawal plan for your retirement accounts so you don't deplete them too soon.

On your journey through life, you will have to address these and other important financial and investment issues, but you don't have to go it alone – a financial professional can help you find the solutions you need.
