ACTIVE LIVES

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

By Sylvia Duncan

Remember when you just could not wait for a holiday?

I hope readers here are feeling that mood. If not, why not try something entirely different, something that will banish any jadedness? For me it is all about something deliciously and mysteriously different, because, even as I write this, I am looking forward to a trip with the Activity Center group. Branson will be something different for me!

I love the old traditions, built up over my many years, but even in childhood I craved surprises. This was one of them. I never forgot it.

It is the memory of roasting chestnuts in the fireplace, specifically the fireplace in the front room, a room used so rarely that the gleaming grate and the hand-hooked rug in front of it had a magical attraction. This was in England, in a small town not far from the North Sea, damp, windy and bleak in December. There was another fireplace in the room where we usually ate and congregated. It was cosy there, but the front room fireplace had an open grate. My Mum had heard Nat King Cole singing about the chestnuts and fire, and we had both. Was there a Yule log? Yes, and a poker, used only by my father to poke at the huge log until the fire was deemed ready for the nut roasting.

There were four of us children, aged eight, ten, twelve, and fourteen, old enough to be enchanted by something we had only heard sung about. The fire was lit; chestnuts rinsed and slashed with a knife were slowly cooked on the gleaming coals in a big heavy pan. We watched anxiously. My Dad shouted for us to stay back, but our cheeks were hot with excitement, and we could not wait for this delicacy. Mum tested them to see if they were ready to be peeled and eaten. They were creamy and crunchy, worth waiting for, like so many things that take time and planning.

By the time you read this, we travelers with the Activity Center will have been to Branson for the holiday show extravaganza. We will have tales to tell of amazing acrobats, a ride on the Branson Belle, two morning shows, two evening shows and the stops as promised at Russell Stover and Cracker Barrel, both well known delights to those who have been this route before. Branson will have been, for me, as fresh and new as roasting chestnuts over the fire in the front room fireplace.

I think, not mournfully, but realistically, of the many holiday events already behind us. The memorable ones have a special tradition, unspoiled, not overdone, where, even if not roasting chestnuts, we are together, with old and new friends and family members. Some are no longer with us, but we gain new ones and new activities.

Thank you, Nancy Ackermann, for the planning of the Branson trip, and to the Activity Center staff for the anticipation of new and different delights!
