

Let There be Light

Today, God wants to shine His light within you. He wants you to deal with those things that you know are there and hurting you. He wants to set you free from what works against and hurt you.

I had a dream back in June. I've been sitting on waiting to release it. Today is the day. Today you are ready to hear it.

I saw some people I knew in a room. The light in the room became dimmer and dimmer until it was almost pitch black. They began bumping into all kinds of things within the room. It was so painful to watch. They continued to stumble around in the dark wondering why they were trapped inside the dark room. They cried for help, but couldn't hear the answer, or how to turn on the lights. It was heartbreaking to watch. They walked into walls, fell over furniture, they were bleeding, wounded and crying. The effects of the darkness was beginning to paralyze them.

Friend- you are letting the darkness mess with you and it's time to turn the Light on.

I know in my own life there have been times when I was in a dark room for a certain amount of time and the lights came on and filled the room with light that hurt my eyes. Our natural response is to shut our eyes because they cannot bear the sudden brightness of the light. However, it doesn't take long to adjust to light. Even though the light is painful at first, it is good to have it turned on so you can see what is within you.

"Let there be light in your heart." And you saw the light of the gospel of the glory of God in the face of Christ (2 Corinthians 4:4-6).

The truth is light and often harsh to those who have been in the dark. It is like sitting in a dark room containing things that you need, but you can't use them because you can't see them. Then, suddenly, the lights are turned on. And you shut your eyes at first because the light hurts.

What behaviors are you not dealing with? What are you not doing that you should be doing? How many more times will you push it aside? How many times have you run your mouth instead of praying? What has God spoken to you that you no longer believe Him for it?

I pray the light shines in for you.

Lord, I ask You to forgive me for what I've not taken care of. I know I have avoided doing what You've asked me to do. Give me strength to obey You. Remember your faithful servant who desires to do Your will. I love to please You and You alone. I don't want to ignore this anymore. I want to step into all You've called me to be. I want to step into all You've called me to do. I am so thankful You are always faithful, slow to anger and rich in love toward all You made. Today is a new day.
