CASSI: "A grocery clerk found unconscious this morning is in critical condition at St. Lukes in Burbank. On the scene, a security guard who saved his life..."

CORDELIA: You don't want to freeze a family member unless you have to.
CASSI: What is this freezing technology? Is it like a flash freeze, where you rapidly drop the temperature?
RUBEN: It's a hypothermic state which slows biochemical processes.
CORDELIA: So you're still alive...
RUBEN: Unlike cryonics where you're frozen after the spirit leaves the body.
CORDELIA: You have to wonder what happens to the soul... Can they put it on Amazon Web Services?
RUBEN: I'm sure that's not too far away. You could save the voice and the expressions.
CASSI: Your grandparents can become apps.
RUBEN: All their social media accounts could continue to make posts... from your grandma's own instagram account.
CASSI: Instagram and Instagrampa.

Dia de los Muertos Celebration

CORDELIA: "Remember the grocery clerk who suffered anaphylactic shock on Halloween?"
RUBEN: "That was Cassi's nephew. She raised him for her sister. He was like a son to her."
CORDELIA: "All it takes is one lethal candy bar if you have food allergies."
RUBEN: "Can we make product labels safer?"
CORDELIA: "Right. One doctor says fatigue could have contributed to making the wrong decision. Our heart goes out to the family."

Cassi Cintron, Morning News

Ruben Vega, Morning News

RUBEN: "You can put your whole family on a bicycle if you're travelling through LA, on the new bike lanes."
CASSI: "One mom tells us it's the fastest way to get everyone going in the same direction."
RUBEN: "And you won't need to worry about spending money on a summer vacation."
CASSI: "Maybe the tandem bicycle is the new staycation?"
RUBEN: "Staycation on wheels? Sounds like a great alternative if you're still saving up for a Tesla."

Cassiopeia Cintron Nucleamos, a local news anchor, mom (and soon to be food activist), is forced to deliver a personal news headline about her immediate family, the turning point of the first act.
