Dear Mr Handa

2000 OUTSTANDING INTELLECTUALS
OF THE 21st CENTURY
2010

The Oxford English Dictionary defines intellectualism as the "doctrine that knowledge is wholly or mainly derived from pure reason" and it follows by saying that an intellectual is a "person possessing a good understanding, enlightened person".

Surely, therefore, this definition is the reason for your selection to be included in this prestigious publication which is due for release in mid 2010. I invite you to take your place within its pages. Only two thousand intellectuals can be featured from across the world and I therefore urge you to complete the enclosed questionnaire as soon as possible. 2000 Outstanding Intellectuals of the 21st Century will be made even more widely available to Librarians, Research institutes and Academics worldwide. It goes without saying that copies will be housed in the leading libraries of the world including the Library of Congress in Washington DC and the British Library in London.

Inclusion is based on merit alone and there is no obligation to purchase a copy of 2000 Outstanding Intellectuals of the 21st Century. However, I recommend you to study the Reservation Form on the reverse of the enclosed questionnaire and return it to me by the date shown or as soon as possible.

I look forward to receiving your completed questionnaire. Inclusion is a sign of recognition.

Sincerely

Nicholas S. Law
Director General

P.S. I would be very grateful to receive the names of colleagues or friends that you believe deserve consideration for inclusion in this title. Space is provided on the enclosed questionnaire.
