

NWR SENIOR BECOMES PILOT

Ricky Murray (left), a North Warren Regional High School senior, stands with his flight instructor, Geoff Orlandi of Orlandi Flight Center, at Blairstown Airport after Ricky returned from his successful flight test to become a FULLY LICENSED FAA PRIVATE PILOT on January 20, 2015. Talk about accomplishment at a young age! Through flight training, Ricky has not only enhanced his education in science, technology, engineering and math, but he has acquired a status shared by very few that distinguishes him from others and will help launch him toward any career he chooses. Reaching the goal of a pilot license while only 18 years old reveals to everyone, and to Ricky himself, that he is able to accomplish anything as long as he remains dedicated and disciplined. If you want your child to leave high school with a credential impressive to colleges and employers; enhanced education; more self confidence; and deeper self awareness, then consider flight training.
