OFFICE POLICIES AND INFORMED CONSENT

Welcome and thank you for entrusting Great Life Counseling Center with your care! This document contains important information about our professional services, business practices, and it will serve as a therapeutic contract. Please read it carefully and jot down any questions you would like to discuss.

THE THERAPY PROCESS

There are many possible benefits of psychotherapy groups. These benefits include, but are not limited to, learning how to better understand how you relate to yourself and others, receiving social support, and gaining a sense of validation among peers. Sharing concerns, struggles, and possible solutions can help you to see that you are not alone and that others can benefit from your experiences. Group participants also have the potential benefit of receiving psychoeducational knowledge and skills that are aimed to increase psychological well-being and functioning. Group participants are not required to talk during group discussions, but the more participants share in these discussions, the more they are likely to benefit.

Although psychotherapy groups have many potential benefits, there are some inherent risks or challenges. Attending groups may involve the risk of recalling unpleasant events or discussing troubling or embarrassing issues. Consequently, people may experience feelings of discomfort or distress in reaction to topics discussed in group sessions. Additionally, although group leaders will not share client communications or information except under limited circumstances (see "Confidentially" and "Exceptions to Confidentiality"), an inherent risk with group discussions is the confidentiality of information disclosed. All group participants sign an agreement to hold information disclosed as confidential (see "Group Confidentially Agreement"). However, group leaders cannot promise that other group participants will maintain confidentiality.

EMERGENCY PROCEDURES/POLICIES:

- ❖ Telephone, text, & email consultations between group sessions are welcome. In fact, if participants know ahead of time that they will miss a session(s), they are encouraged to share this information with their group leaders. However, any contact outside of group sessions will be kept brief. Group participants are encouraged to consider individual psychotherapy or waiting until the next group session to discuss matters that will take more than 15 minutes to explore. If out-of-group correspondence requires more than 15 minutes of the group leader's time, charges for each 15-minute increment will incur (including the first 15 minutes). Payment for such consultations is due at the start of the next group session or within 10 business days (whichever occurs first). On weekends and holidays, messages are checked less frequently. Calls, texts, & emails will generally be responded to within 24 hours or by the end of the next business day
