

Non-biotin IF Detection Kits

Mouse, Rabbit, Rat Antibodies on Human and Animal Tissues or Cell Smears

Medaysis MedaFluo™ immunofluorescence detection kits are specially designed for immunofluorescence detection on formalin-fixed paraffin embedded tissues, cryostat sections, and cell smears. The detection components have gone through extensive absorption to reduce cross reactivity. The kits are utilizing biotin-free signal amplification technologies that eliminate endogenous biotin background to achieve optimal signal-to-noise ratio. MF utilize different conjugating technology thus may be used for multiplexing.

Medaysis provides bright and stable Fluor dyes in all detection systems. Fluor dyes exhibit bright fluorescence intensity and photo stability. Also it remains highly fluorescent over a broad pH range (pH 4-9). These make it an ideal choice for researchers' immunofluorescence applications.

Features

Non-biotin

Cleaner staining without background

Brighter fluorescence signal

Improved
 photo-stability

Easy to follow protocol

Reference Table

Product	Technology	Available Dyes	Primary antibodies
MedaFluo™	Non-Biotin	Fluor 488 , 550 , 594 , 650	Mouse, Rabbit, Mouse (on Mouse tissue), Rat (on mouse tissue), Mouse (on rat tissue)

Dyes Specifications

Color	Emission	Fluor	Excitation/Emission*	Spectrally Similar Dyes
 	Green	488	493/518	Alexa Fluor 488, FITC, DyLight 488
 	Yellow	550	562/576	Alexa 546, 555, Cy3, TRITC, DyLight 550
 	Red	594	593/618	Alexa Fluor 594, Texas Red, DyLight 594
 	Red	650	652/672	Alexa Fluor 647, Cy5, DyLight 649

*Excitation and emission maxima in nanometers (+/- 4nm) in phosphate-buffered saline (PBS)

Autofluorescence, caused from endogenous fluorophore such as porphyrins, lipofuscin, NADPH, flavins, collagen, elastin, tryptophan, tyrosine and phenylalanine etc., is an intrinsic property of cells and tissues. It can also be caused by the fixatives used. Autofluorescence complicates the use of fluorescence microscopy and interferes with detection of specific fluorescent signals.

Medaysis ready-to-use Autofluorescence Blocking Kit will reduce or eliminate autofluorescence and increase the signal to noise ratio. With the Autofluorescence Blocking Reagent, researchers can clearly visualize and quantify the target signal without interference from the autofluorescence.

Cat. No.: MB001L (100ml) and MB001M (18ml)

Features

- Clean staining no autofluorescence
- Increased signal to noise ratio
- User friendly ready-to-use format
- Compatible with commercial fluor
