

Nadine Ellman

Kingsbury Forest

Professor Louie

Watercolor on paper

“When I was in high school I fell in love with painting and sketching in art class, although my parents said I was born with a crayon in my hand. About 4 years ago I started taking art lessons which jump-started my watercolor painting skills. Now many of my waking moments you will find a paintbrush in my hand. Painting is my passion. My motivation is capturing human emotions. I usually use people I am familiar with for my studies, choosing the eyes as a reflection of the soul. Watercolor is my preferred medium.”