

Dropseed Native Plant Nursery, LLC is committed to protecting the natural communities and native plants of our region. We value large-scale natural area restoration and management projects that protect native species and natural processes. We also value small backyard plantings of native species that conserve water, attract wildlife and reduce the use of fertilizers and pesticides. Margaret Shea, the owner has over 25 years of training and practical experience in natural areas management, restoration and biological inventory. Mrs. Shea has been a featured speaker at many national and local meetings. Dropseed Native Plant Nursery strives to carry out its seed collecting, nursery management, and restoration and landscape projects with extreme care of the existing environment. We collect seed from local natural areas with the permission of the owners and grow out this seed in our plant production beds.
