Katelyn has a big passion for dance and everything within the art itself. She is committed to empowering dancers not only through strong technical training but also by building their confidence, creativity, and individuality.

Her dance journey began at age 13 in Colorado at her home studio, TCDC, where she competed for several years and danced with the LADM Company.

While developing her own skills, Katelyn also discovered a love for teaching, working with younger students at her studio.

She later moved to Massachusetts to train for a year at CLI Conservatory, where she had the opportunity to work closely with some of the industry's leading choreographers from around the world. Katelyn's training spans a wide range of styles, including Hip-Hop, Jazz, Musical Theatre, Contemporary, Ballet, Heels, and Concert Dance. Over time, she developed a deep passion for street styles—particularly Hip-Hop, Heels, and Jazz Funk—where she found her unique voice as both a performer and choreographer.

After her time at CLI, she returned to Colorado to begin her choreography journey, teaching at various studios and continuing to inspire dancers of all levels.

Katelyn brings high energy and a strong performance quality to every class she teaches. Her goal is to help each dancer grow in technique, expression, and confidence—encouraging them to not just move, but to truly perform and command the space with purpose and passion.
