- NOTE:
1. You may hand write your wishes for the distribution of your tangible personal property items on this document. NO TYPING IS PERMISSIBLE.
 2. You must date and initial for each and every item. Subsequently added items do not require resigining.
 3. You do not need to indicate the "effective date", but the presumption is upon the death of your spouse unless otherwise marked. If you indicate the effective date to be upon the spouse's death, then you are declaring a "life estate" of any such item for your spouse.
 4. Be sure to initial, date and cross out any personal items which you transfer, sell, gift or dispose of prior to your death.
 5. Keep the original with your original will as this is legal document authorizing the transfer of your tangible personal property after your death.
