

PSI's Remote Testing Solution Adopted by Washington Insurance Regulators

September 23, 2019

GLENDALE, CA - September 23, 2019 – The Washington State Office of the Insurance Commissioner (OIC), working in conjunction with PSI, is pleased to announce beginning October 1, 2019, a new testing platform will be released in the state of Washington. As part of this release and utilizing technology, PSI will offer online proctoring, in the licensing arena commonly known as remote testing, for the single-line Life, Disability, Property, Casualty, and Personal Lines exams only.

Remote testing means that an exam candidate will have more options for where they may take their state insurance exam. At present, the exams are only offered at the 11 PSI testing centers located in various cities around the state. With the availability of remote testing, an exam candidate may choose to take an exam in the comfort of their home without the necessity to drive to a PSI testing location.

PSI is a leading provider of secure online testing solutions for any learning environment, examination, or certification program. Over 750 institutions and organizations partner with PSI to transform the test-taking experience with innovative technology solutions.

Washington State has relied on PSI for responsive customer support, collaboration, and trust since 2015. With the new remote testing options, PSI and the OIC look forward to making the insurance licensing process even more accessible while continuing to provide fair and efficient regulation of the insurance industry across the state of Washington.
