The Three C's of Growing Professionally: Confidence, Coachability, and Communication with

Marissa Russo, M.Ed.

Assistant Director of Career Readiness University of Tampa

Marissa Russo is the Assistant Director of Career Readiness at the University of Tampa. In addition to her work at the university, she also provides collegiate and professional advice for members of the Society for Collegiate Leadership and Achievement. Her practical experience has been working as a recruiter in the corporate environment and working in five different higher education institutions with a focus on career and academic development. Marissa has a Bachelor of Science in Health Administration from the University of Central Florida and her Masters of Education in Higher Education and Student Affairs from the University of South Carolina. Her clientele ranges from college students entering the workforce to adults wanting to make a career transition. Whether it be that you need tips on how to maintain confidence in yourself, how to crush an interview, or how to have better work/life balance – Marissa's got your back. She focuses on a strengths-based approach to help you be successful in college, the workplace, and in life. Her motto is that she "cares about people and likes to get stuff done" and she's excited to work with you and encourage you to reach your goals!
