
Welcome to Connections 2016

The Mental Health Association of Southeast Florida is proud to present its 19th edition of "Connections", a guide to behavioral health and support services in Broward County.

"Connections" provides a tool that empowers those with illness to be informed about resources and opportunities available to them in pursuit of recovery. "Connections" is also a resource to connect providers for collaboration and social service referrals to meet the community's need.

Please note that resource information in our community changes rapidly. While our staff and volunteers have made every effort to provide accurate content, there may be adjustments or corrections that were not available at the time this book went to print. We will make every effort to post the most current information in the "Connections" section under Publications & Directories on the MHA website at:

www.mhasefl.org

In addition, the publication is now also available as a mobile website"

www.BrowardConnections.org

MHA appreciates the continued support of our project underwriters: Broward County's Human Services Department and Broward Behavioral Health Coalition. Without their partnership, this resource would not be possible.

The MISSION of your Mental Health Association is to promote mental health and victory over mental illness and related challenges through education, prevention, advocacy, research and empowerment. The Mental Health Association has provided its programs and services in Broward County since 1957. To meet the needs in Miami-Dade County, MHA has expanding its service area to build partnerships and resources and operates as the Mental Health Association of Southeast Florida.

"Connections" addresses each component of the Mental Health Association's mission. We invite you to join in our organization and our advocacy efforts.

Mental health is a goal for everyone.

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

The “Needs Index” (starting on page 7) lists all of the agencies included in this directory under the specific categories of need served by the agency or one of the programs within the agency. Once you have identified an agency that is listed under the category you are looking for, you can locate that agency alphabetically (starting on page 21) for a more in-depth description of the agency and its programs.

If you know the name of the agency you are looking for, you can find it listed alphabetically in the “Agencies & Programs” section (starting on page 21) with a description of the programs and services of that agency.

The “Telephone Index” (starting on page 185), can be used to quickly look up a phone number for a particular agency or to find a specific program of an agency. If you cannot locate a phone number in the “Agencies & Programs” section, you may want to check the telephone index. To locate the full description of that program, look for it alphabetically in the Agency & Program section under the name of its agency which is listed in parenthesis after the program name in the telephone index section.

“Helpful Information” can be found starting on page 153. It includes phone numbers for hotlines, patient assistance programs for medications, national & state resources, information about various issues relevant to adults, and useful publications available through the Mental Health Association of Southeast Florida.

DEPARTMENT OF
JUVENILE JUSTICE (D.J.J.)*954-497-28732928-A N. State Road 7
Lauderdale Lakes, FL 33313www.djj.state.fl.us

Oversees detention, prevention & victims, and residential services for youth.

Probation and Community Intervention

Youth, under 18 years, charged with a crime in Florida are referred to DJJ. A referral is similar to an arrest in the adult criminal justice system. DJJ provides a recommendation to the State Attorney and the Court regarding appropriate sanctions and services for the youth. When making recommendations, DJJ has two options:

Diversion

Offers programs that are alternatives to the formal juvenile justice system for youth who have been charged with a minor crime. Diversion programs employ non-judicial sanctions including restitution to victim(s), community service hours, letter of apology to victim(s), curfew, forfeiture of driver's license, encouragement to avoid contact with co-defendants, friends, or acquaintances deemed to be inappropriate associations, referrals to local social service agencies, and substance abuse or mental health counseling.

Probation

Court-ordered sanctions and services overseen by an assigned juvenile probation officer who monitors compliance and helps the youth connect with service providers. If the youth does not comply with probation, is charged with a serious crime, or has a significant history of offenses, the youth may be ordered to live in a residential facility for a period of time. After discharge from the facility, the youth is usually placed on Conditional Release (much like parole in the adult criminal justice system) that provides monitoring and services while transitioning back to the community after being in a residential program.

Juvenile Detention Center

954-467-4563

222 NW 22nd Avenue
Ft. Lauderdale, FL 33311

Secure facility that serves youth detained pending adjudication, disposition or placement in commitment facility. Services include education, mental health, substance abuse treatment and health care.

Prevention and Victims Services

Provides contracted delinquency prevention programs that address specific problems and provide interventions for at-risk youth and their families to reduce juvenile crime and protect public safety. Programs target high-risk juveniles and those who exhibit problem behaviors such as ungovernability, truancy, running away from home and other pre-delinquent behaviors.

Residential Services

Contracts to provide residential programs for juvenile offenders.

Broward Girls Academy

954-322-6500

Residential program for low and moderate risk girls, 14-19 years, who are committed to DJJ after being assessed and classified as moderate risk with serious to severe mental disturbance. Services include mental health group, individual and family counseling. Education services are provided by the Broward County Schools.

SELF-ADVOCACY

What You Need to Know

You may have just been diagnosed with a mental illness, or you may have already begun treatment. Either way, you're probably experiencing a range of emotions. For some people, receiving a diagnosis can be a relief, finally being able to put a name to a problem. For others, it can be a major blow. You may experience fear, anger, denial, shame or sadness. You may be wondering, "Why did this happen to me? How will this affect my life? What will people think of me?"

Being told that you have a mental illness is not the end of the world. With help and support, you can recover and achieve your life's ambitions. Of course, you will face many challenges as you begin your treatment, but there is hope. Mental illnesses are manageable. And there are a number of things you can do for yourself after a diagnosis to cope with the news, keep up with your treatment, and support your own recovery.

Be Hopeful

Above all else, it's important to maintain a positive outlook. Here are a few things to keep in mind throughout your treatment and recovery.

- You are not alone in this experience. Mental illnesses are medical illnesses and are common, affecting one in every five Americans.
- You can improve and achieve your goals. Today, many people who are diagnosed with serious mental illnesses are managing their conditions and regaining control of their lives.
- You can and should play an active role in your treatment. The more informed you are about your illness and treatment options, the better you'll be able to direct your recovery.

Get Emotional Support

An important step in coping with a diagnosis is to find emotional support. Talk to friends and family members you feel close to and trust. They care about you and want to help you recover. Discuss your feelings about the diagnosis and any treatments or services that have been recommended. Don't be afraid to let people know how to help you. This support will be important, both as you begin your recovery and when you have to deal with any setbacks along the way. Also, you may want to meet people who have already been through what you are currently experiencing. This can help you prepare for what's ahead and help you avoid any problems others may have been through in their recovery. Seek out self-help groups and support organizations that can reduce any feelings of isolation and loneliness.

Learn All You Can About Your Diagnosis

If you're ready, do some research on your particular illness, the recommended treatments and other self-help ideas. The more you learn, the better you'll be in working with your doctor and making decisions that feel right for you. Talk to people who have had similar experiences about mental illnesses and treatment options. There are a number of websites, including the National Institute of Mental Health (www.nimh.nih.gov) and Mental Health America (www.mentalhealthamerica.net), which can give you additional information. However, beware of some commercial websites that offer quick fixes or don't reveal their sources.

MYTHS & FACTS ABOUT MENTAL ILLNESS

THE MYTHS

MYTH: Mental illnesses are due to poor parenting and moral weakness.

REALITY: Current research has suggested that the majority of mental illnesses are biologically-based and are treatable. Some mental illnesses have a genetic component. Biological and environmental triggers, not yet fully understood, may precipitate the onset of the illness.

MYTH: People who have been treated for a mental illness are unstable and could go “wild” at any moment.

REALITY: Most people with mental illnesses are more likely to withdraw from social contact than aggressively confront others. The vast majority of people with mental illnesses are never dangerous or a threat to others. The fear that they will go “wild” is unfounded and not a reason for denying the person employment opportunities, housing or friendship.

MYTH: All people with mental illnesses are violent and dangerous to society.

REALITY: Statistical research shows that a person with a mental illness is no more likely to commit a violent act than someone in the general population. Individuals who have recovered from a mental illness are more apt to be the victims of a violent crime rather than the perpetrators. The true predictor of criminality is not a history of mental illness but a history of violent actions. A person who has been treated for a mental illness but does not have a previous criminal record is considered less likely to be arrested than the average citizen.

MYTH: People with mental illnesses will never recover.

REALITY: Mental illnesses are treatable and people who have them can and do recover. Mental illnesses should be viewed with the same attitude as physical illnesses. When care and treatment are available, improvement and/or recovery will allow individuals to return to leading normal, productive lives. Unfortunately, discrimination prevents people who have recovered from a mental illness from re-entering the vocational, residential and social mainstream.

MYTH: People with schizophrenia have a “split personality”.

REALITY: “Split personality” is a popular but incorrect description of schizophrenia, one of the major mental illnesses. Dissociative disorder is a separate and very rare disorder. Schizophrenia is a thought disorder characterized by visual or auditory hallucinations and other symptoms of being “out of touch with reality”.

MYTH: All homeless people have a mental illness and they should be hospitalized.

REALITY: One-third of the homeless population is estimated to have a mental illness. Only six percent of the homeless require inpatient psychiatric care, according to the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH).

MYTH: People with a mental illness should be locked up “for their own good”.

REALITY: The mental health system no longer “locks people up” as a treatment. Today, most people are successfully treated in outpatient settings. People with mental illnesses live in the community. Many live with their families while using community support services.

MYTH: It’s okay to discriminate against people with a mental illness because no one can expect you to hire a person with schizophrenia or rent to someone with manic depression.

REALITY: The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 provides comprehensive protection against discrimination based on mental or physical disabilities. The employment provision of the ADA took effect July 26, 1992 for all employers with 25 employees or more; in 1994, for 15 employees or more. All Americans, no matter what their disability, are entitled to work opportunities provided they meet job qualifications. The Fair Housing Amendment Act of 1988 extended protection against discrimination in the sale or rental of housing to people with disabilities.

MYTH: Mental illness is the same as mental retardation.

REALITY: Mental retardation (now called developmental disability) is a condition that develops at birth or during development and involves below average intellectual functioning. Most people with a mental illness are of at least average intelligence and their first episode with mental illness can happen at any age. Mental illnesses respond to treatment.

Learn the Facts

THE FACTS

Mental illness strikes people of all ages, races and economic backgrounds, whether or not there is a history of mental illness. Possible causes include genetic history, chemical imbalances in the brain and other biological and environmental triggers.

More than 54 million Americans have a mental disorder in any given year, although only one-third seek treatment

Late-life depression affects about 6 million adults, but only 10 percent ever receive treatment. At least 10 to 20 percent of widows and widowers develop clinically significant depression within one year of their spouse's death. Older Americans are more likely to commit suicide than any other age group. Although they constitute only 13 percent of the U.S. population, individuals age 65 and older account for 20 percent of all suicides.

One in five children have a diagnosable mental, emotional or behavioral disorder. And up to one in 10 may suffer from a serious emotional disturbance. Seventy percent of children, however, do not receive mental health services.

Each year, 18 million Americans suffer from clinical depression. About 12 million women in the U.S. experience depression every year — roughly twice the rate of men. Depression is often misunderstood; it is not a passing mood or a personal weakness, but a major medical disorder.

It has been calculated that each year, the economy loses an estimated $44 billion because of clinical depression. More than $17 billion is in time lost from work. A RAND Corporation study found that patients with depressive symptoms spend more days in bed than those with diabetes or arthritis, back problems, lung problems or gastrointestinal disorders.

Depression greatly increases the risk of developing heart disease. People with depression are four times more likely to have a heart attack than those with no history of depression Anxiety disorders (phobia, panic disorder, obsessive-compulsive disorder or post-traumatic stress disorder) affect more than 28 million Americans. Symptoms can be totally disabling.

Schizophrenia, a brain disease characterized by impaired thinking, delusions and hallucinations, is the most severe and disabling of the mental illnesses. More than 2.5 million people in the U.S. will be affected by schizophrenia, which is five times more common than many of the prevalent physical illnesses affecting Americans.

Up to one half of all visits to primary care physicians are due to conditions that are caused or exacerbated by mental or emotional problems. However, mental disorders are highly treatable medical illnesses. Hope and help are available. Call your Mental Health Association for resources.

VETERAN'S BENEFITS

Veteran's benefits, consisting of monthly disability payments, health care and various other benefits, are available to veterans of U.S. military service and their dependents.

Who is eligible?

Veterans with Active military service, who have an Honorable or Under Honorable Conditions discharge, and their beneficiaries may receive veteran's benefits.

What benefits are provided?

The major benefits that may be available to veterans and their beneficiaries include health care (for veterans), such as CHAMPVA for Permanent and Total service-connected veterans' spouses; life insurance; mortgage insurance; financial aid for education; vocational rehabilitation; counseling; burial benefits at national cemeteries; survivors' benefits and death benefits for beneficiaries.

Disability payments are available to veterans whose disabilities were incurred or aggravated during their military service. The amount of the benefit depends upon the degree of the impairment and the number of dependents. Low-income war time, disabled veterans may also apply for a pension, regardless of the disability's connection to military service. Disabled veterans also may receive grants for adaptive modification of their homes and automobiles, and assistance with other expenses. The benefits are administered by the Dept. of Veterans Affairs (VA).

How do I apply?

Contact the Florida Department of Veterans' Affairs (FDVA) at 850-487-1533. You can also find them on the Internet at www.floridavets.org or your local County Veteran Service Office (CVSO). You can locate your CVSO in the "Blue Pages" of your phone book under "County Government" or on the FDVA Website. These offices can assist you with any application for veterans benefits. Counselors at this number can answer questions about benefits eligibility and application procedures. They also make referrals to other VA facilities, such as medical centers and national cemeteries. These facilities also accept applications for benefits.

Understand Your Health Care Options

Getting the services you need and paying for them can be a challenge. Your options may be limited by whether or not you have insurance, the type of insurance you have (private, HMO, Medicaid, Medicare), and the amount of coverage it provides for mental health care. But, remember, there are options.

- If you're employed and have a health plan, call your health insurer to see if they cover mental health services. Then find out which mental health professionals in your area are willing to accept payment from your insurance plan. If your employer has an Employee Assistance Program (EAP), they can also help you find services you can afford.
- If you can get health care through a government program like Medicaid or Medicare, you should contact a community mental health center or local health department to see which doctors or programs accept this form of health insurance.
- If you don't have health insurance, ask your community mental health center about reduced-cost (or sliding-scale fee) mental health services.
- The Affordable Care Act, or ACA as it is more commonly called, is a Federal Law which makes health care available to individuals who choose to participate. There is a financial eligibility requirement but the Act creates an opportunity for individuals with pre-existing conditions to be eligible for health care coverage. Information is available at www.healthcare.gov

Develop a Partnership with Your Doctor and/or Therapist

Once you have received a diagnosis and are in contact with a doctor or a mental health professional, here's what you need to know about making the most of these relationships from the start.

- Make sure it's the right fit for you. If possible, interview multiple providers; don't be afraid to meet with more than one. You'll want to find a doctor, mental health professional or peer counselor with whom you can relate. Ask them about their style of treatment and experiences helping other people with your particular illness.
- Be open with your doctor or therapist. Go to your appointments with a list of questions you may have about your diagnosis and the therapies that are being proposed.
- After starting a course of treatment, you should begin to notice changes: relief from your symptoms, more self-assurance, greater ability to make decisions. You should tell the doctor or therapist about your progress, or if you are having any problems. Don't be afraid to voice your concerns.
- Involve your family and friends in your treatment, if you're comfortable with that. Invite them to accompany you to an appointment or to sit in on a therapy session.
- Treatment takes time. Don't give up.

Getting the right help requires perseverance and self-advocacy.

Take advantage of the options you have and continue to search for other ways to meet your needs.

Remember — getting back to your life is the goal of recovery!

FLORIDA LICENSED MENTAL HEALTH PROFESSIONS CLASSIFICATIONS

PSYCHIATRIST (MEor OS)

Psychiatrists are physicians who have a medical degree (M.D.) or a degree in osteopathic medicine (D.O.) with a specialization in mental illness. They treat a wide range of emotional and behavioral disorders and may be working in hospitals, businesses, public agencies, private practice, etc. Psychiatrists are the only mental health professionals who can prescribe medication.

PSYCHOLOGIST (PY)

Psychologists have either a Ph.D. (Doctor of Philosophy) or a Psy.D. (Doctor of Psychology) or an Ed.D. (Doctor of Education) from an accredited graduate or professional school. They diagnose and treat emotional and behavioral disorders in children, adolescents and adults that range from mild to very severe. Psychologists most often work in hospitals, businesses, public or private practice treatment centers or private practice.

CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER (SW)

Clinical Social Workers have a Master's Degree (M.S.W.) from an accredited graduate school with a specialization in mental health services. They plan, organize and administer direct therapeutic services and intervene in individual, group, community and organizational systems. Clinical Social Workers often work in hospitals, social service agencies or private practice.

MARRIAGE & FAMILY THERAPIST (MT)

Marriage & Family Therapists have a Master's Degree (M.A. or M.S. or M.Ed.) from an accredited graduate school with specialty coursework in marriage and family therapy. They treat stress that accompanies family milestones such as marriage, divorce, birth, death, etc., as well as other emotional and behavioral problems. Marriage & Family Therapists may be working in mental health clinics, public service agencies, businesses, hospitals or private practice.

MENTAL HEALTH COUNSELOR (MH)

Mental Health Counselors have a Master's Degree (M.A. or M.S. of M.Ed.) from an accredited graduate school with specialty coursework in mental health counseling. They treat individuals, families or groups including children, adolescents and adults with a wide range of emotional and behavioral problems. Mental Health Counselors often work in hospitals, schools, businesses, agencies or private practice.

SCHOOL PSYCHOLOGIST (SS)

School Psychologists have either a Doctoral Degree (Ph.D. or Psy.D. or Ed.D.) or a Master's Degree (M.A. or M.S. of M.Ed.) from an accredited graduate school with specialization in child development, learning and behavior disorders. They test, diagnose and assess cognitive abilities that relate to learning or behavioral problems and treat these problems in children and adolescents. School Psychologists often work in government agencies, public or private schools or private practice.

REGISTERED NURSE (RN or ARNP)

Certain classifications of nurses receive specialized training and are qualified to provide mental health care.

PLEASE NOTE:

All licensed mental health professionals have completed a supervised internship prior to sitting for the State of Florida Licensure Exam to determine competency in their particular field. In addition, all must maintain active participation in ongoing Continuing Education to renew their license status. Effective mental health treatment is based on the unique relationship between client and therapist. Although certain license classifications traditionally provide service to certain narrow populations, many services overlap license titles. An exception is the prescription of medication, which is restricted to the Psychiatrist (ME).

Registered Interns are unlicensed individuals working under the supervision of a licensed professional. Registered Interns are listed as ISW, IMT, IMH.

SPECIAL NOTE:

The State of Florida, Department of Health-Division of Medical Quality Assurance provides further information on licensure requirements.

Psychiatrist refers to persons licensed pursuant to chapter 458 or 459.

Psychologist, School Psychologist refer to persons licensed pursuant to chapter 490.

Clinical Social Worker, Marriage & Family Therapist, Mental Health Counselor refer to persons licensed pursuant to chapter 491.

Registered Nurse refers to persons licensed pursuant to chapter 464.

HOW TO TALK WITH YOUR DOCTOR

Before your first appointment, write down the history of your illness:

When did you first feel like this?

How long did it last?

Was it triggered by some event?

Were you treated before?

What medications? What dosages? Did they work, etc.?

Write down any medications you are currently taking and the dosage, including over-the-counter preparations.

Also list medications you have taken in the past. Be honest about any alcohol, prescription or recreational drugs used.

Start a list of questions you want to ask the doctor. Add to it as you think of things you want to say or find out at your next appointment. Then take that paper with you when you go to see him/her.

Bring pen and paper to write down the things the doctor tells you, since memory and concentration may be faulty at this time.

When the doctor gives you a prescription, ask about the potential side effects, if they will lessen, and how long before the medication is expected to produce results.

Be patient since some medications can take several weeks to work, but almost nothing should take longer than 8 weeks. If no improvement is felt by then, insist that your doctor put you on a different medication or give you a good reason why not.

Ask how this medication might interact with any other medications you take, and any food or drink you should avoid. Do not get out of your chair until all your questions are answered to your satisfaction.

Don't be intimidated - she/he is your doctor and it is YOUR body chemistry your doctor is being paid to stabilize. If you have any bad reaction to the medication, do not hesitate to call the doctor, day or night.

TAKING YOUR MEDICATION

As with all the other medications mentioned, do not adjust your dosage of medication or stop it altogether without discussing it first with the doctor who prescribed it. Also, notify your doctor if you are pregnant, and advise him/her of any other medications you are taking. Always check with the doctor before taking any over-the-counter medications.

When to take medications: Take your medications at the same time every day. If you make taking medications part of your regular daily schedule, you are more likely to remember them. Ask your doctor if you can take your medication with meals, at bedtime, etc. so you can better remember.

Missed doses: If you miss a dose...don't panic! You must stay on your medication as ordered to avoid a relapse, but one missed dose or late dose will not cause a major problem if you normally take your medication on a regular basis.

Pill containers: Remember that drugstores can give you medications in two different kinds of containers - child-safe and ordinary ones. The child-safe containers are necessary if you are likely to have children around your home who could get into the medicines, thinking they are candy. On the other hand, child-safe tops are very hard for some people to get off the medicine bottle. If this will be a problem, ask your druggist for the easy flip-off caps on your medicine.

If you are taking more than one medication, and at different times of the day, it is essential that you take the correct dosage of each medication. An easy way to make sure you do this is to use a 7-day pillbox, available in any pharmacy and to fill the box with the proper medication at the beginning of each week. Many pharmacies also have pillboxes with sections for medications that must be taken more than once a day. You can also use small jars to create your own system. This can help you make sure you don't forget to take the right number of pills and to know you have already taken them in case you get mixed up.

Medication and Pregnancy: If you are a woman of childbearing age, you should discuss any plan to become pregnant with your doctor prior to discontinuing birth control methods. Your doctor can best help you to plan this in a safe way for both you and your baby.

Medication and Alcohol: Alcohol and drugs generally do not mix well with medication. Alcohol can also cause mood swings and interact with the medication, making it difficult to get stabilized. Discuss with your doctor if even minimal use is considered.

There are ongoing clinical trials available, some sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health and others by pharmaceutical manufacturers. Call the Mental Health Association of Southeast Florida at 954-746-2055 for information on clinical trials. Also see page 178.

PARTICIPATING IN CLINICAL TRIALS

Through the ages, disorders of the mind have been among the most devastating and feared illnesses of humanity. Today, thanks to ambitious and productive research and the many individuals willing to participate in this research, highly effective treatments for mental illnesses now exist. As a result of these treatments, many thousands of people who have brain diseases such as depression, bipolar disorder, schizophrenia and anxiety disorders lead fulfilling and productive lives.

Scientists study and try different ways to diagnose, treat, and prevent human disease more effectively. The needed research may take place in a basic science laboratory, a clinic, or in the community.

Some clinical research may examine how well a new treatment works -- perhaps a drug or other type of therapy. In other instances, a clinical study might explore factors that affect mental disorders such as the role of genes and their interactions with life experiences.

The pace of progress to date would not have been possible without the participation in research of patients with mental illness and other volunteers, yet neither will the advances of tomorrow be realized without their continued participation. It is important to note that just as research on treatments has evolved to become more effective, so too has our society's attentiveness to the well-being of research volunteers grown. Procedures now in place to protect research participants are more effective than ever before.

To help you make your decision about participating in a research study, the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) has prepared a booklet to answer some of your questions and lists questions that you will want to ask of the clinical study director. You can call the Mental Health Association of Southeast Florida at 954-746-2055 to request a copy of this booklet.

There are many clinical trials available including those from private organizations and governmental entities. You can find a list of current research projects at www.clinicaltrials.gov

It is our hope that by helping people better understand why they might consider participation in the clinical research of mental illnesses, all Americans will benefit in the years ahead.

❖ PATIENT'S BILL OF RIGHTS ❖

Your Rights and the Florida Mental Health Act (The Baker Act)

The Florida law covering both voluntary and involuntary treatment is Chapter 394 of Florida Statutes - known as the Florida Mental Health Act or the Baker Act.

Florida law encourages people with mental illnesses to seek treatment voluntarily and to choose the type of treatment needed. But Florida law recognizes that some people with mental illnesses may need to be involuntarily admitted for evaluation and treatment.

The Baker Act outlines a bill of rights for the person who is mentally ill, provides a system of due process for persons receiving services in designated mental health facilities, and creates a system of community-based acute care services.

A receiving facility is the central reception point for individuals who appear to need emergency mental health care. The receiving facility must ensure that persons receive needed services in the least restrictive setting and in the least intrusive manner. Consequently, receiving facilities must ensure that persons are not inappropriately admitted to community or State hospitals.

Under the Baker Act, no one can be admitted to a State hospital without first being screened by a community mental health center or clinic which must certify that State hospital admission is the most appropriate placement for the individual.

The Legacy of Alana Segall

Alana Segall was born in Vienna, Austria and raised in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. While doing volunteer nursing with the Broward County chapter of the American Red Cross, Alana discovered 9Muses Art Center while looking through the Connections guidebook. Through 9Muses, Alana had reconnected with her creative side. She had long ago dabbled in painting, writing and music, but her artistic impulses faded until she stumbled upon 9Muses. The talented minds she encountered at 9Muses inspire her to share her love of art with her four grandchildren.

Often having worked in watercolor, Alana also frequently painted in acrylic and occasionally attempted oil painting and pastels. Her subjects included animals, people, and scenes of nature. Mothers and children frequently appear in her work, as do elegant dancers and undersea creatures, especially sea turtles. Despite the varied nature of her subject matter, her works are unified by a sense of love, companionship, and hope. She also participated in the Ceramics program at 9Muses, and had recently shown off her poetry skills at 9Muses' monthly Creativity Café event.

Unfortunately, Alana passed away in 2015 while not only being a member of 9Muses but also MHASEFL's Board of Directors' Secretary. She leaves behind a legacy of art and volunteerism.
