Insulation: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Exterior rigid foam panel insulation. The exterior insulation provides a continuous thermal break between inside and outside, minimizing energy loss. Typical homes are insulated only on the interior. The framing members are in contact with the outside, creating a thermal bridge that transfers hot and cold through to the inside. Exterior insulations cuts this bridge to create energy saving and improve interior comfort. • Interior spray foam insulation to create an air tight building. Energy is lost through air infiltrating a home through the exterior walls. Spray foam greatly reduces air infiltration. • Under-slab rigid insulation. ABOUT EDGEWATER

Just seven miles north of The Loop, Edgewater attracted Chicago's elite in the late 19th and early 20th century. Chicagoans first laid down roots in Edgewater in their lakeside summer homes in the 1880s. The community soon became one of the most affluent in the Chicagoland area, lining the lake with mansions and family homes farther inland. In recent years, Chicagoans have continued to move north to settle in Edgewater, contributing to the continued strength and vibrancy of the lakeside neighborhood.

Edgewater is admired for its eclectic architecture, antique shops, superb beaches, pioneering restaurants, independent retailers and robust arts scene. The community is home to a diverse population and well-known for its authentic international fare, boutique grocery stores and thriving arts organizations. Edgewater is a great neighborhood for families, boasting street festivals in the Chicago tradition, numerous city playlots and block parties organized by individual block clubs and supported by the local Aldermen. Family events such as outdoor theater, art shows, garden walks and parades occur throughout the year. A thriving and vibrant commercial district supports family-friendly businesses and there are excellent public and private school options.

When summer rolls around, Edgewater's beaches are a must-visit. Beaches closer to downtown are often crowded, but Edgewater is far enough north to easily claim a spot in the sand. Kathy Osterman Beach (also known as Hollywood Beach) has a beach house with a restaurant, sand volleyball courts, a playground and shallow water, making the large beach kid-friendly and a magnet for families. Foster Avenue Beach is an equally popular spot and offers a glimpse of the bright pink Edgewater Beach Apartments, one of many charming neighborhood landmarks.
