

Stop Looking!

Rachael Martin 5,27,2016

So come on already! Get your eyes off your situation. You can't have faith, you can't believe for the impossible to happen, you can't believe for the miracle when your eyes are stuck on the problem. Stop Looking! I'm speaking to myself here too btw!

Jesus's ministry evolved around constantly asking or telling people about their faith or lack of.

Discussing your situation or the craziness of your day is one thing, but if it doesn't end with prayer over it, you have done your situation worse! You have added to your craziness and left it to fester.

I'm not saying to live with your head in the clouds, but I am saying as a follow up to all of the words that have come out of the Cup of J.O.E.s this week – to remember Who wins! To believe in what you don't see more than what you do see. To activate faith in throughout your day and that we should speak it over ourselves until we believe. I believe Lord, and help my unbelief!

Say to the mountain move! I'm not moved by what I see!! With God all things are possible to those who believe and are called according to His promises! I will not continue to believe a bad report. I will believe what Jesus says and the Word of God over my family, my life, and my circumstance until Jesus comes. Stop Looking doesn't mean to sweep it under the rug and pretend it doesn't exist – it means to look it in the eye and say God is bigger and I choose to believe His promises over what I see today and tomorrow and the day after that – One day at a time – and one step at a time – I will trust, I will believe, I will stop making myself stress out over what I can't control anyway!

I will rest in His grace, I will abide in His love and in the shadow of the Almighty – I will say of the Lord – He is my Refuge, and my fortress – and I trust Him today! I put my trust in God and not my husband or wife, I put my trust in God and not my bank account, I put my trust in God and not my flesh, I put my trust in God and look to Him and I will say this every day as much as I remember – that I will Stop Looking at the impossible and I will start speaking that it's possible because of the God I serve and His great Love, His great Mercy, and His Great Strength! IN Jesus name!

Have a great weekend!
