

Persecuting the unvaccinated

It's no secret that the Biden Administration is intent on making the USA a fully vaccinated country. Every time the President, his cabinet officers or surrogates get in front of a TV camera, the mantra is the same... "Get vaccinated. Protect yourself and protect your family." Translation: "If you don't we're going to make your life a living Hell. We're going to accuse you of spreading the pandemic and of killing your fellow Americans. We're going to call you arrogant, uncaring, egotistical and downright treasonous. We're going to keep up the pressure until you cave and we're going to make it impossible for you to travel, to stay employed, to send your children to school and maybe even to shop for food. In short, we're going to hit you where it hurts and keep hitting you until you bend to our will."

Joe and company started out slowly beating the vaccination drum - cajoling, entreating and earnestly suggesting that you should do your civic duty. That didn't work well enough for them so they decided to pressure federal government employees and contractors doing work for the government. That put a little wind in their sails so they then called up their airline buddies and the unions and made their case for being good patriots - asking them to push their members into complying with vaccination requirements in the hopes that they would comply. The same is true for Blue state governors and big city mayors in Democrat strongholds AND the military. It seemed to be working despite some isolated pushback.

But it still wasn't enough, so the White House weaponized the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and told them to enact a rule regarding mandatory vaccination of all employees working for companies with 100 employees or more. Surely that would do the trick. While this was happening, the White House elbowed its way into the newsrooms and persuaded news readers and commentators on mainstream and Left-wing media to help them ramp up the intensity of the 'All Vax Now' campaign. Public Service Announcements were created to 'encourage' the unvaxxed holdouts to find their true American spirit and drop their silly protestations.

You know the kind: those that talked about natural immunity, religious objections, allergies, underlying conditions that would be exacerbated by the vaccine and those who 'just said no' out of ideological convictions. And yet, the Administration pushed forward with its hypocrisy. As of today, they are opening up our border crossings to international non-U.S. citizen travelers PROVIDING they can show proof of vaccination while hundreds of thousands of non-U.S. citizen illegal aliens are thumbing their noses at the Administration by streaming across our southern border and are NOT being tested for the Coronavirus! This week there was a glimmer of good news and a temporary setback for the Administration as the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals issued a cease and desist order with respect to the OSHA-mandates.

The Administration said it would fight this order (predictably) and will no doubt bully its Justice Department to reverse it. While this is going on, our nation's governors are keeping up the pressure on their states' residents and enlisting the help of willing big city mayors to do their bidding. Vaccination mandates for state/city workers has become the new normal and thousands of EMTs, police, firefighters, nurses and even desk-bound employees are now given an ultimatum: Vax up or get out. School boards and teachers' unions are doing their part to force youngsters to sit for 6-7 hours/day in a masked environment and will soon suffer the same ultimatum: Vax up or stay home. Soon the government will be pressuring parents to get their 5-year olds vaccinated...or else.

How did we come this far?

It's simple. Politically-motivated and power-crazy governors and federal officials saw an opportunity to stage a coup over their constituents' individual rights and seized the day. Carpe diem turned into Carpe aeternum as the virus morphed into the Delta variant, thus opening the door for more of the same coercive 'medicine.' The battle for individual rights, for 'my body my choice' that used to be the Democrats' war cry when it came to a woman's right to choose that allowed for the destruction of human life in the womb has now been updated. It is now your body our choice. "Your rights are what we (the government) say they are. You do not want to oppose us on this. We have just begun to fight. Today OSHA. Tomorrow the IRS."
