First X-12 Hillclimb Launches in the Rain
By Ron Dillon

Utah's newest motorcycle hillclimb, the Ocean Star International X-12 Hillclimb, fired up for the first time ever on April 25-27, 2014 on the Double P Ranch near Snowville, Utah and pulled a gigantic, first-year number of 619 entries from across the country. The event was the first round of the 2014 Malcolm Smith Racing, Klim, Pole Position Raceways North American Hillclimb Association (NAHA) Championship Series, and also featured dozens of classes for stock and altered bikes and 4-wheelers. Besides Ocean Star International, a local brine shrimp company, other heavy-hitter partners were: Box Elder County Tourism, Pepsi, Bud Light, Rockstar Energy, Maverik, C & R Trailer Sales, Big Bam Vapes, Northern Utah Ford Stores, Rhino Rush, Frank May Ski-Doo, Hess Truck & Auto, Honnen Equipment, American Family Insurance, Eliason Trucking, IMT, Gearheads, Rupp's Trucking, Nish Rock & Fuel Saver.

Riders loved the hills, but the weather was a pain. Friday wasn't too bad…it rained in the morning, then cleared off and was pretty good the rest of the day, although the weather prevented the planned kids carnival and helicopter rides from taking place, it sure didn't stop the hillclimbers. Saturday was absolutely miserable with a rain/snow mix, wind and temperatures in the high 30's, all day. Sunday was fine until the very end of the event. At 5:30 pm, with only 22 of the 700 pro class riders remaining, waiting for their second ride, the skies once again opened up with howling winds and an inch of snow. Visibility dropped to zero and NAHA referee Jim wisely pulled the plug. Even though a brand-new 30-foot wide gravel road had been constructed just for the event, several dozen people got stuck in the pits and campground, but fortunately a D-6 bulldozer was on hand and got everyone unstuck without any vehicle damage. Next year's X-12 will likely be held later in the year, and of course the weather was beautiful the day after the event, as expected.

Most classes were packed, from minis to altered vintage bikes; interest in hillclimbing continues to grow and X-12 drew people from nine states, as well as Canada and Poland, although the grim weather kept spectators down to just over 1,000 for the weekend.

Aside from the weather drama, the hillclimbing action was awesome. Stock, trophy bikes ran on their own hill on Friday and hundreds of riders fought tooth and nail to get over, many of them looping out in huge crashes. Finally, on his last run, one rider made it over the top….Karson Lloyd, on a 450 4-stroke finally did the deed and won the ferociously competitive 450 stock class. Karson is only 16, but he simply oozes talent and will likely be turning heads in the pro classes very soon. In fact, he won the 250 semi-pro class with a raging 10-second run, later in the day. Honorable mention goes to local rider Spanky Flint who basically went completely wild to win the 250 2-stroke stock class with an awesome second run of 323 feet. From the bottom it looked like he somehow threw himself and his bike about 50 feet up the hill. It was an impressive sight.

As usual, Friday's women's pro class was a war, with 13 tough, talented young women showing up on a variety of bikes to compete. Chelsea Peterson blazed a smoking 13-second blast to take the win, over Idaho's Shoshauna Conner, while some timing light issues (the only technical issues of the weekend) hampered defending class champ Samantha Curtain (who was credited with a 5th place finish, as well as both of the always fast Whitlock women, Brook and Lexi. All of these women just keep getting better every week.

The weekend's 450, 700 and Open pro action was scheduled to begin on Saturday morning, but as stated earlier, Saturday's weather was simply horrendous.   While the pros and most of the spectators watched from their trailers, the altered trophy riders bikes bravely rolled out to the starting line. Karson Lloyd did it again, somehow coaxing his 250 over the top of the 450-foot altered hill, which was slicker than snot on Saturday. Utah's Tyler Egbert also made the hill look easy as he blasted over to win the 251-600 altered class and Idaho's Jesse Phillips easily blew over the top to win the 601-Up altered class, winning by nearly SEVEN seconds!

The weather had reached the point of absurdity by the time the 4-wheeler pilots rolled to the line on their own 590-foot hill. All of the riders, both stock and modified, spun and slid all the way up the hill, but there were no big crashes, just a lot of close calls. Jason Hess pushed his infamous "Franken-Honda up to over 400 feet to win the stock class, while "Fast Eddy" Kilburn won the modified class with an impressive 18-second blast. That was the end of Saturday, and with better weather promised for Sunday, everyone headed for shelter.

Sunday's weather was better, way better, and the 450 pro qualifying started on time at 9:30am on Sunday morning, with a huge turnout of 79 riders, fighting to get into the 20-person main. California's Joe Shipman laid down a low 13-second pass to advance to the final.   A brand-new crowd-pleaser that debuted at this event was the "last chance qualifier" that allowed two more riders to advance to the final than in previous years, by having the 16th through 25th place finishers take one more run. Austin and Sean Cardwell prevailed, earning the final spots into the main 450 event.

With bad weather coming again later in the day, the 450 main riders came right back to the line and Utah's Jason Smith, Montana's Nick Beer and California's Petey Krunich did what they do best…go really fast and they finished 1-2-3. All of the riders in the class looked impressive, (it took impressive riding to even make the main) but Smith's 14.3 run was over a second faster than anyone else and he looked faster and fitter than ever.

Wild, side by side X-Climb competition ran next, but the course was flawed with one side being generally faster than the other, although some upsets did occur. Krunich knocked Smith out early in the rounds, and looked unbeatable right up to the final where he had to settle for second to Nick Beer. Smith fought his way back to the consolation final and earned third over the always impressive, Californian, Max Simmons.

By this time it was early afternoon on Sunday and only the 700 and Open pro classes remained. The weather was still fine, but reports started to filter in that a terrible storm would arrive in 4-5 hours. Thus, the NAHA board decided to skip the usual qualifying process and take everyone straight to the main events, starting with the Open Pro class. Jason Smith did the trick again, winning with a 12.1, but the wily vet, Utah legend Travis Whitlock made Smith work for it, taking second with a close 12.2, and California's Simmons rolling in third.

The sky was beginning to darken in the west as last class of the weekend, the 700 pro's fired up.   Again, Jason Smith did the deed, fending off Max Simmons, with Sean Cardwell taking a solid third. Simmons ripped off a class winning second run, but unfortunately, it could not be counted when the second and final round of the class was suspended when the weather finally broke loose for good, with only two dozen riders remaining, leaving Simmons with second. Although he didn't get the win, Simmons (and Krunich in the X-Climb) did prove that Smith can be beat, but it takes perfect riding to get it done.

Local enthusiasm for X-12 was incredible, with everyone from Box Elder County Commissioners to local business leaders talking about next year. Certainly the event will return, probably later in the year, and running at least part of it at night seems to be a real possibility, along with discussions about snowmobile grass drags and other entertainment being added.

The organizers again wish to extend a hearty "helmets off" to the sponsors, donators and partners that made things happen at the Double P Ranch in a very short time. A big thank you is also in order to the ranch owner, Darin Peterson and his wife Jo Ellen, and the small army of staff and volunteers who helped, including: Jason Hess, Trustan Anderson, Shane Eliason, Randy Huff, and many, many others. The event could also not have happened without the support of the Box Elder County Commissioners and law enforcement and medical personnel, as well as the Utah State Police. Discussions are also ongoing about hosting other future motorsports events on the ranch including an AMA National Hare & Hound next year. With the BLM getting to be so hard to deal with, more and more events are going to have to move to private property in order to happen, that much is plain.

Round two of the 2014 NAHA Hillclimb Series will happen May 14-16 at Sunnyside, Washington (near Yakima) and will also feature classes for stock and altered bikes. And of course X-12 was hosted by the same people who host Idaho's Big Nasty Hillclimb every year near Boise, which will happen this fall on September 12-14.
